

Important Information Regarding the Medical Loss Ratio (MLR) Rebate

Please note this is a unique situation that only affects a small group of taxpayers.

What is the Medical Loss Ratio (MLR) rebate and how does it affect you?

Due to the Affordable Care Act enacted in May 2010, insurance companies are required to spend a specified percentage of premium dollars on medical care and quality improvement activities, meeting an MLR standard. Insurance companies that do not meet the MLR standard are required to provide rebates to their consumers.

What do you need to do if you received the MLR rebate?

If you received the MLR rebate in 2013 for months you received the HCTC in 2012, use the following to calculate the amount you need to return to the federal government. Once you have calculated the amount you must return, include that amount as "Other Taxes" owed on Line 60 of your 2013 Form 1040, U.S. Individual Income Tax Return, and enter the corresponding code, "HCTC."

Steps to calculate the percentage of the MLR rebate owed to IRS		Example Calculation	Your Calculation
1	Take the full amount of the MLR rebate check	$500
2	Determine the number of months you were enrolled in your health plan in 2012	10 months
3	Divide Line 1 by Line 2	= $50
4	Determine the number of months you received the HCTC in 2012*	8 months
5	Multiply Line 3 by Line 4	= $400
6	Multiply Line 5 by 72.5% (.725) for the HCTC tax credit percentage	= $290
7	Enter the total from Line 6 onto Line 60 as "Other Taxes" owed on your 2013 Form 1040, U.S. Individual Income Tax Return, and enter the corresponding code, "HCTC."

*The number of months you received the HCTC can be found in Box 2 on your 2012 Form 1099-H, Health Coverage Tax Credit (HCTC) Advance Payments.
