Associate Chief Counsel (Procedure & Administration)

SUBJECT:

Low Income Taxpayer Clinics: Ancillary Return Preparation

This responds to your request that we define the term "ancillary" as found in the proposed tax return preparer regulations.

The proposed regulations, at Prop. Treas. Reg. §301.7701-15(a)(8)(i), exclude from the definition of income tax preparer those low income taxpayer clinics (LITCs) and their employees that assist taxpayers with a tax return or claim for refund, if the LITC meets certain requirements. First, the LITC's assistance must be "directly related to a controversy with the IRS," or an "ancillary part of an LITC program to inform individuals for whom English is a second language [ESL] about their rights and responsibilities under the Internal Revenue Code." Second, if an LITC charges a fee for the return or refund claim assistance, the clinic must meet the requirements of §301.7701-15(a)(8)(ii) of the proposed regulations.

The term "ancillary" essentially means incidental. That is, the LITC's program must focus on outreach and education—not tax preparation. If, for example, in the course of an LITC's conducting outreach or education, an ESL client requests help with a tax return and the LITC obliges, the return preparation would be ancillary (incidental) to the LITC's primary activity of outreach and education.

Assuming an LITC advertises its services, it would have to advertise and promote itself as providing information and education to help ESL individuals understand the federal tax system. For example, an LITC could advertise a community meeting to acquaint ESL individuals with their rights and responsibilities under the tax system. Posters, radio advertisements, or any other media announcing the meeting could not mention tax return or claim for refund assistance. Nor could any posters at the LITC's clinic advertise return or refund claim preparation.
