1 Introduction

The Taxable Fringe Benefits Guide was created by the Internal Revenue Service office of Federal, State and Local Governments (FSLG) to provide governmental entities with a basic understanding of the Federal tax rules relating to employee fringe benefits and reporting.

As a supplement to other IRS publications, the Taxable Fringe Benefit Guide is designed to help individuals responsible for determining the correct tax treatment of employee fringe benefits and the appropriate withholding and reporting for them.

This publication covers:

- How to determine whether specific types of benefits or compensation are taxable.
- General procedures for computing the taxable value of fringe benefits.
- Reporting the taxable value of benefits on Forms W-2 and 1099-MISC.
- Rules for withholding Federal income tax, social security and Medicare taxes from taxable fringe benefits.
- How to contact the Internal Revenue Service with questions regarding taxation and reporting requirements.

NOTICE

This guide is intended to provide basic information on the tax treatment of fringe benefits. It reflects the interpretation by the IRS of tax laws, regulations, and court decisions. The explanations in the guide are intended for general guidance only, and are not intended to provide a specific legal determination with respect to a particular set of circumstances. Additional research may be required before a determination may be made on a particular issue. Citations to legal authority are included in the text. You may contact the IRS for additional information. You may also want to consult a tax advisor to address your situation.

What Is a Fringe Benefit?

A fringe benefit is a form of pay (including property, services, cash or cash equivalent) in addition to stated pay for the performance of services. Some forms of additional compensation are specifically designated as “fringe benefits” in the Internal Revenue Code; others, such as moving expenses or awards, have statutory provisions providing for special tax treatment but are not designated as fringe benefits by the Code. This publication uses the term broadly to refer to all remuneration other than stated pay for which special tax treatment is available. The definition of fringe benefits applies to services of employees and independent contractors; however, unless otherwise indicated, this guide applies to fringe benefits provided by an employer to an employee. (For a discussion of whether a worker is an employee or independent contractor, see Publication 15-A.) Fringe benefits for employees are taxable wages unless specifically excluded by a section of the Internal Revenue Code (IRC). IRC §61 IRC §3121, 3401; IRC §61(a)(1)

The IRC may provide that fringe benefits are nontaxable, partially taxable, or tax-deferred. These terms are defined below.

Taxable – Includible in gross income unless excluded under an IRC section. “Taxable” means the benefit is included in the employees' wages and reported on Form W-2, Wage and Tax Statement, and generally is subject to Federal income tax withholding, social security (unless the employee has already reached the current year social security wage base limit), and Medicare. If the recipient is an employee, this amount is includible as wages. For example, bonuses are always taxable because no IRC section excludes them from taxation.

Nontaxable (excludable) – Excluded from wages by a specific IRC section; for example, qualified health plan benefits excludable under section 105.

Partially taxable - Part is excluded by IRC section and part is taxable. Benefits may be excludable up to dollar limits, such as the public transportation subsidy under IRC §132.

Tax-deferred – Benefit is not taxable when received, but subject to tax later. For example, employer contributions to an employee's pension plan may not be taxable when made, but may be taxed when distributed to the employee.

More than one IRC section may apply to the same benefit. For example, education expenses up to $5,250 may be excluded from tax under IRC §127. Amounts exceeding $5,250 may be excluded from tax under IRC §132.

A benefit provided on behalf of an employee is taxable to an employee even if the benefit is received by someone other than the employee, such as a spouse or a child. Reg. § 1.61-21(a)(4)

If an employee's wages are not normally subject to social security or Medicare taxes (for example, because the employee is covered by a qualifying public retirement system), otherwise taxable fringe benefits are not be subject to social security or Medicare taxes.

General Valuation Rule

Generally, taxable fringe benefits are valued at their fair market value (FMV). FMV is the amount a willing buyer would pay an unrelated willing seller, neither one forced to conduct the transaction and both having reasonable knowledge of the facts. In many cases, the cost and FMV are the same; however, there are many situations in which FMV and cost differ, such as when the employer incurs a cost less than the value to provide the benefit. Reg. §1.61-21(b)

The taxable amount of a benefit is reduced by any amount paid by or for the employee. For example, an employee has a taxable fringe benefit with a fair market value of $3.00 per day. If the employee pays $1.00 per day for the benefit, the taxable fringe benefit is $2.00 per day.

Special valuation rules apply for certain fringe benefits and will be covered in other sections.

IRC Sections Excluding Fringe Benefits

The following Code sections provide a statutory basis for specific benefits. They are discussed later in the text.

- §104 – Compensation by employer for injury or sickness
- §105 – Benefits received through employer health or accident insurance
- §106 – Health insurance premiums paid by employer
- §117(d) - Qualified tuition reductions
- §119 - Meals or lodging for employer's convenience
- §125 - Cafeteria plans
- §127 - Educational assistance program
- §129 - Dependent care assistance program
- §132(b) - No additional-cost service
- §132(c) - Qualified employee discounts
- §132(d) - Working condition fringe benefits
- §132(e) - De minimis benefit
- §132(f) - Qualified transportation expenses
- §132(g) - Qualified moving expense reimbursements
- §132(j) - On-premises athletic facilities
- §132(m) - Qualified planning services
- §132(n) – Qualified military base realignment and closure fringe
- §137 – Adoption assistance programs

2 How To Report Taxable Fringe Benefits

In general, taxable fringe benefits are reported as wages on Form W-2 for the year in which the employee received them. However, there are many special rules and elections for different benefits. IRC 451(a); IRS Ann. 85-113, 1985-31

Employer's Election of When To Withhold

The employer may elect to treat taxable fringe benefits as paid in a pay period, quarterly, semiannual, or annual basis, but no less frequently than annually.
IRS Ann. 85-113

Alternative Rule for Income Tax Withholding

The employer may elect to add taxable fringe benefits to employee regular wages and withhold on the total, or may withhold on the benefit at the supplemental wage rate of 25%.
Reg. §31.3402(g)-1; Reg. §31.3501(a)-1T

Special Accounting Period

Under a special rule, benefits provided in November and December, or a shorter period in the last 2 months of the year, may be treated as paid in the following year. Only the value of benefits actually provided during the last 2 months may be treated as paid in the subsequent year. You do not have to notify the IRS that you are using this special accounting rule. IRS Ann. 85-113

An employer may use this rule for some fringe benefits and not others. The special accounting period need not be the same for each fringe benefit. However, if an employer uses the special accounting period rule for a particular benefit, the rule must be used for that benefit for all employees who receive it.

Employer's Election Not To Withhold Income Tax on Vehicle Use

An employer may elect not to withhold income taxes on the taxable use of an employer's vehicle that is includible in wages if the employer: (1) notifies the employee, and (2) includes the benefit in the employee's wages on the Form W-2 and withholds social security and Medicare tax. IRC §3402(s)(1)

Note: This election is available for employer-provided vehicles only. In general, an employer does not have a choice whether to withhold on taxable fringe benefits.

Accountable Plan

An accountable plan is an allowance or reimbursement policy (not necessarily a written plan) under which amounts are nontaxable to the recipient if the following requirements are met:

- There must be a business connection to the expenditure.
- There must be adequate accounting by the recipient within a reasonable period of time.
- Excess reimbursements or advances must be returned within a reasonable period of time. IRC §62(c); Reg. §1.62

Business Connection

“Business connection” means that the expense must be a deductible business expense incurred in connection with services performed as an employee. If not reimbursed by the employer, the expense would qualify as a deductible expense by the employee on the employee’s 1040 income tax return. Reg. §1.62-2(d)

Adequate Accounting

The employee must verify the date, time, place, amount, and business purpose of expenses. Receipts are required unless the reimbursement is made under a per diem plan. Reg. §1.62-2(e); Reg. §1.274-5(b)(2)

Employees generally should have documentary evidence, such as bills, receipts, canceled checks, or similar items to support their claimed expenses. This rule does not apply in the following circumstances:

1. Meal or lodging expenses that you reimburse on a per diem basis (discussed later), at a rate at or below the allowable maximum, under an accountable plan.
2. Individual expenditures (except for lodging) of less than $75.
3. Expenditures for transportation expense for which a receipt is not readily available. Reg. §1.274-5(c)(2)

Timely Return of Excess Reimbursements

The employee must return any excess reimbursement within a reasonable period of time. The determination of the length of a reasonable period of time will depend on the facts and circumstances. The rules below provide “safe harbors” for meeting the test of timeliness. Reg. §1.62-2(g)(1)

Safe Harbors for Substantiating Expenses and Excess Reimbursements

If an employer uses either of the following methods, the requirements of timely substantiation and return of excess advances/reimbursements will be considered met. Reg. §1.62-2(g)

Fixed Date Method

If the fixed date method is elected, the following conditions must be met:

- The advance is made within 30 days of when an expense is paid or incurred, and

- The expense is substantiated within 60 days after it is paid or incurred, and
- Any excess amount is returned to the employer within 120 days after the expense is paid or incurred. Reg. §1.62-2(g)(2)(i)

Under this method, the maximum number of days for repayment of an advance is 150 (up to 30 days in advance plus 120 days maximum for settlement).

Periodic Statement Method

Under this method, substantiation and the return of excess must be made within 120 days after the employer provides employee with a periodic statement (at least quarterly) stating that any excess amounts are required to be returned. Reg. §1.62-2(g)(2)(ii)

Under this method, the maximum number of days for repayment of an advance is 210 (90 days for the calendar quarter plus 120 days maximum for settlement).

Other Reasonable Method

If an arrangement does not meet one of the safe-harbor methods, it may still be considered timely, if it is reasonable based on the facts and circumstances. Reg. §1.62-2(g)(1)

Example: An employee on an extended travel assignment might have a longer period to substantiate expenses and return any excess allowance than an employee on a brief overnight trip.

Other Rules for Employer Accountable Plan

Employers may have multiple expense allowance policies and may have both accountable and nonaccountable plans for different types of reimbursements. Employers may establish more restrictive conditions for the plan than imposed by the accountable plan requirements. Employees cannot compel the employer to establish an accountable plan. Reg. §1.62-2(j)

Nonaccountable Plan

A nonaccountable plan is an allowance or reimbursement program or policy that does not meet all three requirements for an accountable plan. Payments, including advances, reimbursements, allowances, etc., made under a nonaccountable plan are taxable wages subject to all withholding when paid or when constructively received by an employee. The employees may be able to deduct these expenses as itemized deductions on their individual tax returns. Reg. §1.62-2(c)(3)

Travel Advances

To prevent a financial hardship to employees who will be traveling away from home on business, employers will often provide advance payments to cover the costs incurred while traveling. (Allowable travel expenses are discussed in Section 9.) There must be a reasonable timing relationship from when the advance is given to the employee, when the travel occurs, and when it is substantiated. There must also be a relationship between the size of the advance and the estimated expenses to be incurred.

Accountable plan advances

Travel advances are not treated as wages and are not subject to income and employment taxes when they are paid under an accountable plan. The advances must be paid for travel expenses related to the business of the employer, substantiated by the employee, and any excess returned in a reasonable period of time. Reg. §1.62-2(c)(4)

If an employee does not substantiate expenses or return excess advances timely, the advance is includible in wages and subject to income and employment taxes no later than the first payroll period following the end of the reasonable period. Reg. §1.62-2(h)(2)

Nonaccountable plan advances

Advances from nonaccountable plans to the employee are subject to withholding when the advances or reimbursements are made to the employee. Reg. §1.62-2(h)(4)(ii)

When advances are included in income

Advances become taxable, to the extent they are not substantiated by the employee, no later than the first payroll period following the end of the reasonable period of time. A reasonable period may end in the year after the advance was made. After the end of the calendar year, any amounts previously reported in wages cannot be reversed, unless the amount was erroneously treated as wages at the time of inclusion. Reg. §1.62-2(h)(2)

Example: A small state agency pays a monthly mileage allowance of $200 to certain employees. The agency does not require the employees to substantiate their expenses or return any excess. The mileage allowance does not meet the rules for an accountable plan and therefore is a nonaccountable plan. The $200 allowances are taxable wages to the employees when paid to them; therefore, the employer should withhold for social security, Medicare and income taxes. The employer must match the social security and Medicare contributions. The employees may be able to take deductions for these expenses on their individual tax returns.

Example: An agency puts an accountable plan into effect that requires employees to account for their business mileage and return any excess allowance. Two of the employees account for their mileage but fail to return the excess. The mileage allowance meets the requirements of an accountable plan. But because the excess allowance was not returned, the excess is wages to the two employees and is subject to withholding for income, social security, and Medicare taxes. The withholding is required no later than the first payroll period following the end of the reasonable period.

Late Substantiation or Return of Excess

If an employee substantiates expenses and returns excess advances after the employer has treated amounts as wages, the employer is not required to return any withholding or treat amounts as nontaxable. Reg. §1.62-2(h)(2)

Form W-2 Reporting

Generally, payments made under an accountable plan are excluded from the employee's gross income and are not reported on Form W-2. However, cash advances, allowances, and reimbursements that do not fall under the accountable plan rules become wages subject to the reporting rules. If the employer pays a per diem or mileage allowance and the amount paid exceeds the amount the employee substantiated under IRS rules, you must report the excess as wages on Form W-2. The excess amount is subject to income tax withholding and social security and Medicare taxes. Report the amount substantiated (i.e., the nontaxable portion) in box 12 using code L. (See Form W-2 Instructions.)

Note: This chart refers to the 2012 Form W-2. If you are considering another year, check the instructions for that year. The box numbers and codes are subject to change.

TYPE OF REIMBURSEMENT	EMPLOYER W-2 REPORTING*
Under an Accountable Plan
Actual expense reimbursement: Adequate accounting made and excess returned	No amount reported
Actual expense reimbursement: Adequate accounting and return of excess both required but excess not returned	The excess amount reported as wages in Boxes 1, 3, and 5. Taxes withheld are reported in Boxes 2, 4, and 6.
Per diem or mileage allowance up to the Federal rate: Adequate accounting and excess returned	No amount reported
Per diem or mileage allowance up to the Federal rate: Adequate accounting and return of excess reimbursement both required but excess not returned	The excess amount reported as wages in Boxes 1, 3 and 5. Taxes withheld are reported in Boxes 2, 4, and 6. The amount up to the Federal rate is reported only in Box 12, Code L - it is not reported in Boxes 1, 3, and 5.
Per diem or mileage allowance exceeds the Federal rate: Adequate accounting but excess reimbursement over Federal rate not returned	The excess amount reported as wages in Boxes 1, 3 and 5. The amount up to the Federal rate is reported only in Box 12, Code L - it is not reported in Boxes 1, 3 and 5. Taxes withheld are reported in Boxes 2, 4, and 6.
Under a Nonaccountable Plan
Either adequate accounting or return of excess, or both, not required by plan	The entire amount reported as wages in Boxes 1, 3 and 5. Taxes withheld are reported in Boxes 2, 4, and 6.
NO REIMBURSEMENT PLAN	The entire amount reported as wages in Boxes 1, 3 and 5. Taxes withheld are reported in Boxes 2, 4, and 6.

3 Working Condition Fringe Benefits

Working condition fringe benefits include property or services that, if the employee had paid for the property or service, the cost would have been deductible on the employee's individual income tax return. Therefore, if the cost of an item is deductible by an employee as a business expense, it may be excludable from the employee's wages as a working condition fringe benefit if provided by the employer. IRC §132(d)

If a specific section of the Internal Revenue Code provides for an exclusion from income for a benefit, the rules regarding working condition fringe benefits under section 132 do not apply to that benefit. Reg 1.132-1(f)(1)

General Rules for Working Condition Fringe Benefits

- Benefit must relate to employer's business
- Employee would have been entitled to an income tax deduction if paid personally
- Business use must be substantiated with records

Any expense that meets these tests can be a working condition fringe benefit. It is not necessary that a specific statute addresses that type of expense.

Definition of Employee

All of the following are considered employees for purposes of working condition fringe benefits: Reg. §1.132-1(b)

- Current employees
- Partners
- Board of directors of the employer
- Independent contractors
- Volunteers

Although not employees for most employment tax purposes, independent contractors are treated as employees for this purpose and are therefore eligible to receive nontaxable reimbursements as working condition fringe benefits.

Note: Taxable fringe benefits for employees are reportable on Forms W-2 and W-3. Taxable fringe benefits for independent contractors are reportable on Form 1099.

Cash payments or cash equivalents are not working condition fringe benefits, unless they represent reimbursements paid under an accountable plan.

4 De Minimis Fringe Benefits

De minimis fringe benefits include property or services, provided by an employer for an employee, with a value so small that accounting for it is unreasonable or administratively impracticable. The value of the benefit is determined by the frequency it is provided to each individual employee, or, if this is not administratively practical, by the frequency provided by that employer to the workforce as a whole. IRC §132(e); Reg. §1.132-6(b)

Example: An employer gives an employee snacks each day valued at one dollar. Even though small in amount, the benefit is provided on a regular basis and is, therefore, taxable as wages.

The law does not specify a dollar threshold for benefits to qualify as de minimis. The determination will always depend on facts and circumstances. The IRS has given advice at least once (ILM 200108042) that a benefit valued at $100 did not qualify as de minimis. However, this technical advice addresses a specific situation and cannot be relied upon in addressing another specific situation.

Definition of Employee for De Minimis Fringe Benefits

Any individual receiving a de minimis fringe benefit is treated as an employee for this purpose Reg. §1.132-1(b)(4)

Examples of Excludable De Minimis Fringe Benefits Reg. §1.132-6(e)(1); Notice 2011-72

All of the following may be excludable if they are occasional (infrequent), not routine:

- Personal use of photocopier (with restrictions)
- Group meals, employee picnics
- Theater or sporting event tickets
- Coffee, doughnuts, or soft drinks
- Flowers or fruit for special circumstances
- Local telephone calls
- Traditional birthday or holiday gifts (not cash) with a low FMV
- Commuting use of employer's car if no more than once per month
- Employer-provided local transportation
- Personal use of cell phone provided by employer primarily for a business purpose

Special rules apply to occasional meals and local transportation, discussed below.

De Minimis Exclusion for Occasional Meal Reimbursements

Regularly-provided meal money does not qualify for the exclusion for de minimis fringe benefits provided by an employer. Occasional meal money can meet an exception and be excludable, if the following three conditions are met:

- Occasional Basis - Meal is reasonable in value, and is not provided regularly or frequently, and
- Provided for Overtime Work - Overtime work necessitates an extension of the employee's normal work schedule, and
- Enables Overtime Work - Provided to enable the employee to work overtime. Meals provided on the employer's premises that are consumed during the overtime period, or meal money expended for meals consumed during that period, satisfy this condition. Reg. §1.132-6(d)(2)

If meal reimbursements are provided as part of a company policy or union contract, they are not excludable as de minimis benefits, because the benefit is required and is not occasional. The employer would normally have the opportunity to set up the administrative procedures for reporting the benefit, so accounting for it does not meet the “administratively impracticable” standard for de minimis benefits.

Meal money calculated on the basis of number of hours worked (for example, $5.00 per hour for each hour worked over 8 hours) is never excludable as a de minimis fringe benefit. Reg. §1.132-6(d)(2)

Example: Nontaxable de minimis meal benefit

A commuter ferry breaks down and engineers are required to work overtime to make repairs. After working 8 hours, the engineers break for dinner because they will be working for an additional 3 hours. The supervisor gives each employee $10.00 for a meal. The meal is not taxable to the engineers because it was provided to permit them to work overtime in a situation that is not routine.

Example: Taxable de minimis meal benefits

An employer has a policy of reimbursing employees for breakfast or dinner when they are required to work an extra hour before or after their normal work schedule. The reimbursements are taxable because the employer has a policy which indicates the benefit is routinely provided. In addition, the meal reimbursement does not enable the employee to work overtime, but is an incentive to do so.

De Minimis Transportation Rule for Unusual Circumstances and Unsafe Conditions

Local commuting transportation provided to an employee by an employer on an occasional basis because of unusual circumstances and unsafe conditions may be treated as a de minimis fringe benefit, and the value of the transportation that exceeds $1.50 per trip is excludable. This benefit is not available to individuals considered control employees (defined in section 14). Whether “unusual circumstances” exist is determined with respect to the employee receiving the transportation, and is based on all facts and circumstances. Reg. §132-6(d)(2)(i)(C)(iii)(A)

Example: Unusual circumstances include an employee temporarily working outside his normal work hours or an employee temporarily making a shift change. IRC §132-6(d)(2)(C)(iii)(B)

“Unsafe conditions” is determined by a history of crime in the geographic area surrounding the employee’s workplace or residence and the time of day during which the employee must commute. IRC §132-6(d)(2)(i)(C)(iii) (C)

Benefits That Do Not Qualify as De Minimis

The following are common examples of benefits that do not qualify as de minimis:

- Cash - except for occasional and infrequent meal money to allow overtime work
- Cash equivalent (i.e., savings bond, gift certificate for general merchandise at a department store)
- Certain transportation passes or costs
- Use of employer's apartment, vacation home, boat
- Commuting use of employer’s vehicle more than once a month. Reg. §1.132-6(d)(3)
- Membership in a country club or athletic facility

Some of these benefits may be excludable under other provisions of the law. For example, the use of athletic facilities on the premises of the employer by current or former employees, or their family members, may be excludable from wages under section 132(j)(4). See Publication 15-B.

5 No-Additional-Cost Services

A service provided to employees that does not impose any substantial additional cost on the employer may be excludable as a no-additional-cost fringe benefit. A “no-additional-cost service” is a service offered by the employer to its customers in the ordinary course of the line of business of the employer in which the employee performs substantial services, and the employer incurs no substantial additional cost (including foregone revenue) in providing the service to the employee. IRC 132(b)

No-additional-cost services occur frequently in industries with excess capacity services. Examples include transportation tickets, hotel rooms, entertainment facilities, etc.; they may occur with governmental facilities as well (for example, a municipal golf course or recreation center).

To determine whether the employer incurs any substantial additional cost, include lost or foregone revenue as a cost. An employer is considered to incur substantial additional costs if the employer or employees spend substantial amount of time in providing the service, even if the time spent would otherwise be idle or if the services are provided outside normal business hours. Reg. 132-2(a)-5

Reciprocal Agreements

A no-additional-cost service provided to your employee by an unrelated employer (i.e., another government entity) may qualify as a no-additional-cost service if all the following apply:

- The service is the same type of service generally provided to customers in both the line of business in which the employee works and the line of business in which the service is provided.
- You and the employer providing the service have a written reciprocal agreement under which a group of employees of each employer, all of whom perform substantial services in the same line of business, may receive no-additional-cost services from the other employer.
- Neither you nor the other employer incurs any substantial cost either in providing the service or because of the written agreement.

No-additional-costs benefits made available only to highly compensated employees are not excludable.

For more information on no-additional-cost benefits and restrictions that apply to them, see Publication 15-B.

6 Qualified Employee Discounts

A qualified employee discount allows an employee to obtain property or services from his or her employer at a price below that available to the general public. In some cases, employees are able to purchase goods or services from the employer at a lower price than the property or service is offered to the general public. For a governmental employer this would include, for example, municipal park districts that offer a variety of amenities to the public such as swimming pools, fitness and weight room facilities, and golf courses. When these amenities are offered to the public for a fee and the same amenities are offered to an employee at no cost, the possibility of a taxable benefit to the employee exists. However, the benefit is excludable if it meets the requirements of a qualified employee discount. For the benefit to be excludable, the property or service must be offered to the public in the ordinary course of business.

An excludable “qualified employee discount” generally cannot exceed:

- For merchandise or other property, the employer’s gross profit percentage times the price charged to the public for the property. IRC §132(c)(1)(A)
- For services, no more than 20% of the price charged to the general public for the service. For this purpose, the price charged to the general public at the time of the employee’s purchase is controlling. IRC §132(c)(1)(B); Reg. 1.132-3(b)

The exclusion for a qualified employee discount applies whether the property or service is provided at no charge (in which case, only a portion will be excludable as a qualified employee discount) or at a reduced price. The exclusion also applies if the benefit is provided through a partial or total cash rebate of an amount paid for the property or service. Reg. 1.132-3)(a)(4)

For more information, see Publication 15-B.

7 Qualified Transportation Fringe (QTF) Benefits

This section discusses rules that apply to benefits provided to his/her employees for the employee's personal transportation, such as commuting to and from work. IRC §132(f)(1) Reg. § 1.132-9(b)

Qualified Transportation Fringe (QTF) benefits include:

- Commuter transportation in a commuter highway vehicle
- Transit passes
- Qualified parking
- Qualified bicycle commuting expenses

Employer-provided QTFs with fair market values (FMV) that do not exceed monthly excludable limits are exempt from withholding and payment of employment taxes, not reported as taxable wages on the employee's Form W-2, and not included in gross income.

The exclusion from income for this benefit applies only to employees; former employees and independent contractors are not eligible. IRC §132(f)(5) IRS Notice 94-3; TD 8933; Regs. §1.132-9(b)

Valuation

Generally, transportation benefits, under the general rule for fringe benefits, are valued at FMV; exceptions are noted where applicable.

Combined Benefits

The exemption applies whether an employer provides one or a combination of these benefits to employees. The total benefits cannot exceed the statutory dollar limitations, or the excess is taxable as wages to the employee. The benefit may also be offered in the form of a pre-tax, payroll deduction for employees. See the discussion “Salary Reduction Agreements” later. IRC §132(f)(4)

Cash Reimbursements for Transportation Expenses

Cash reimbursements for transportation expenses can be excludable if the employer establishes a bona fide reimbursement plan. This means there must be reasonable procedures to verify reimbursements and the employees must substantiate the expense. See “Transit Passes” for additional requirements. IRC §132(f)(3)

Cash Advances

Cash advances for transportation benefits are not considered reimbursements and are treated as taxable wages.

Nondiscrimination Rules

Nondiscrimination rules applicable to other benefits do not apply to QTFs – these benefits are exempt even if provided exclusively to highly-compensated employees. Reg. §1.132-8

Transportation in a Commuter Highway Vehicle

To exclude the value of transportation in a commuter highway vehicle, the following must apply to the vehicle:

- It is provided by an employer, or by a third party for the employer.
- It is used for travel between an employee residence (or parking lot) and the workplace.
- It has seating capacity for at least six adults (excluding the driver).
- Half of the seating capacity (excluding the driver) is occupied by employees.
- The employer must reasonably expect that at least 80% of the mileage is used for transporting employees between residences, the workplace and/or parking area.

IRC §132(f)(5)(B); Reg. §1.132-9(b)

Commuter transportation may include vanpools, and the vehicles may be owned and operated by transit authorities or employees.

Dollar Limitations

The maximum nontaxable benefit in 2012 is $125 per month. The maximum applies separately to each month. PL 111-312; IRC §132(f); IR 2011-104; Rev. Proc. 2011-52

Valuation

Automobile lease valuation, vehicle cents-per-mile rule, or commuting valuation rules (discussed in section 14) may be used in lieu of FMV. If one of these methods is used, the employer must use the same valuation rule to value the use of the commuter vehicle by each employee who shares the use. Reg. §1.132-9(b), Q&A-21; Reg. §1.61-21(d),(e)&(f)

Substantiation Requirements

Only cash reimbursements by employers for use of a commuter vehicle need to be substantiated with actual proof of the commuter vehicle use by the employee. Reg. §1.132-9(c)

Transit Passes

A transit pass is any pass, token, fare card, voucher, or similar item (including an item exchangeable for fare media) entitling a person to transportation. The pass must be used for transportation on a public or privately-owned mass transit system, or on transportation provided by a person in the business of transporting people in a vehicle, seating at least six adults, excluding the driver.

Dollar Limitations

The maximum nontaxable value per person is limited to the combined value of commuter transportation and transit passes per month ($125 commuter transportation + $240 parking = $365 in 2012.)

Valuation

For transit passes sold at a discount, the discounted price rather than the face amount of the transit pass can be used to figure the exclusion as long as the discount is available to the general public. Reg. §1.132-9(b)

Example: 10 tickets cost $17.50 if purchased separately, but a packet of 10 tickets is available to the public for $15, or $1.50 each. Only $15 counts against the annual maximum exclusion.

Example: Each month during 2012, the state health department distributes transit passes with a face amount of $100 to all employees. These same passes can be purchased from the transit system by any individual for $115. Because the value does not exceed the applicable statutory monthly limit of $125 for 2012 no portion of the transit pass is includible as compensation.

Substantiation Requirements

If the employer distributes the transit passes, there are no substantiation requirements. See below for cash reimbursements. Reg. §1.132-9(b)

Cash Reimbursements - Special Rule

Cash reimbursement is nontaxable only if no voucher or similar item is readily available for direct distribution to employees. A voucher is readily available for direct distribution only if an employee can obtain it from a voucher provider that does not impose fare media charges or other restrictions that effectively prevent the employer from obtaining vouchers. § 132(f)(3) Reg. §1.132-9(b), Q-16-19

Example: Maddy buys a transit pass for $120 each month in 2012. At the end of each month, she presents her used transit pass to her employer and certifies that she purchased and used it during the month. The employer reimburses her $120. Lulu also purchases a monthly transit pass for $120, but presents it to her employer at the beginning of the month and certifies that she purchased it and will use it during the month. Her employer reimburses her at the time she presents the transit pass. In both situations, the employer has established a bona fide reimbursement arrangement for purposes of excluding the $120 reimbursement from the employee's gross income in 2012.

Qualified Parking

Qualified parking is parking provided to employees on or near the business work premises, or parking on or near a location from which employees commute to work by commuter highway vehicle, mass transit, or vanpool. IRC §132(f)(5)(C)

The maximum nontaxable value is $240 per month in 2012. PL 111-312; IRC §132(f)(2)(B); IR 2011-104

Qualified Bicycle Commuting Expenses

Employees may exclude reimbursements paid by employers for qualified bicycle commuting expenses. The maximum exclusion is $20 times the number of months the employee uses a bicycle for commuting to work. Allowable expenses include the purchase, maintenance, repair and storage expenses related to bicycle commuting. IRC 132(f)(1)(D)

The bicycle commuting expense exclusion cannot be claimed for any period in which the exclusion for public transit passes or qualified parking is claimed. IRC 132(f)(1)(F)(iii)(II)

Salary Reduction Agreements

A salary reduction agreement is a way to provide QTF benefit pre-tax to employees, without additional cost to the employer. An employee can choose between receiving a fixed amount of taxable cash or QTF for a specified future period. A QTF salary reduction plan need not be in writing; but the election by the employee must be in writing or another permanent form, such as electronic. IRC §132(f)(4); Regs. 1.132-9 Q&A 11-15

Note: QTFs are prohibited benefits under cafeteria plan rules. You cannot include these benefits as part of a cafeteria plan. Reg. §1.132-1(b)(2)(i)

The election under a salary reduction agreement must contain the following:

- Date of the election,
- Amount of compensation to be reduced, and
- Period for which the election is valid.

Limitations

The salary reduction may not exceed the combined applicable statutory monthly limits for QTFs. For the calendar year 2012, the limitation is $365 ($240 parking + $125 transportation).

This election may not be revoked after the employee is currently able to receive the cash or after the beginning of the period for which the QTF is to be provided. Any unused QTF may not be refunded. However, the unused portion may be carried over to subsequent periods and used to provide QTFs as long as the amount expended does not exceed annual limits.

Negative Election

An employer may provide a negative election to decline participation in a salary reduction plan, if the employee receives adequate notice that a salary reduction will be made and is given adequate opportunity to choose to receive cash compensation instead of the QTF. A negative election means that no response is treated as a “Yes” vote; that is, the employee wants the QTF and does NOT choose the cash.

Example: Agency Y maintains a QTF benefit arrangement. Employees of Y are paid twice per month, on the 10th and 25th day of the month. Employee Q elects, before the first day of the month, to reduce his compensation in return for QTFs totaling $200 through the year 2012 (for qualified parking). Because the election was made before he could receive the cash and the election is for a specific period, the arrangement satisfies the requirements for a valid salary reduction.

Example: In the above example, if employee Q revoked his election on the 10th of the month, it would be effective for the second pay period, since the revocation cannot be effective during a current pay period. It must be for a future period.

Effect on Deferred Compensation Plans

Employees participating in a deferred compensation plan are limited to a percentage of their compensation that they may contribute annually. In computing what is considered compensation for purposes of the limitation, an employer may exclude certain fringe benefits, including QTFs. IRC §314(e) IRC §403(b)(3); IRC §414(s)(2)&(3); IRC §415(c)(3); IRC §125

Other Local Transportation Benefits

Three other local transportation fringe benefits allow employers to provide transportation for commuting to employees that is eligible for special tax treatment:

- Occasional cab fare
- Unusual circumstances
- Unsafe conditions

Occasional Cab Fare (Local Transportation)

Local transportation fare provided to any employee is a nontaxable de minimis fringe benefit if it is reasonable, occasional and is provided to permit the employee to work overtime. Reg. §132-6(d)(2)

For this purpose, “occasional” means infrequent; not occurring on a regular or routine basis. Reg. §132-6(d)(2)(A)

“Overtime” involves an extension of the employee’s normal work schedule. Reg. §132-6(d)(2)(B)

Transportation Provided for Unsafe Working Conditions Only

Local transportation for commuting provided to an employee by an employer because of unsafe conditions is taxable to the employee as wages at a rate of $1.50 each way. This benefit is available to qualified employees and the employer is required to have a written plan.

Reg. §1.61-21(k)(5)

For this purpose, “unsafe conditions” exist if a reasonable person would, under the facts and circumstances, consider it unsafe for the employee to walk to or from home, or to walk or use public transportation at the time of day the employee must commute. Reg. §61-21(j)(5)

Example: Alison is a qualified employee under the requirements for the commuting valuation rule and works as a data-entry clerk for the state revenue department. Her normal hours of work are 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. Public transportation, the only means of transportation available to her, is considered unsafe by a reasonable person at the time she is required to commute from home to her workplace. The employer hires a car service to pick her up at her home each evening to transport her to work and to return her to home each morning when she finishes her shift. The amount includible in Alison's income is $1.50 for the one-way commute from home to work each evening, because public transportation is considered unsafe at that time of day. However, the value of the commute from work to home each morning is includible in Alison's income at FMV since unsafe conditions do not exist for this trip.

A “qualified employee” for this purpose is one who:

- Performs services during the year;
- Is paid on an hourly basis;
- Is not exempt under the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA) of 1938;
- Is within a classification to which the employer actually pays, or specified in writing that it will pay, overtime pay of at least one and one-half times the regular rate provided in section 207 of the FSLGA;
- Received pay of not more than a specified dollar amount for the year ($115,000 for 2012).

Note: Occasional, infrequent transportation provided by the employer may be excludable as a de minimis fringe benefit. See section 4 and Reg. §1.61-21(k)(6) for details.

8 Health and Medical Benefits

Under IRC sections 105 and 106, employer-provided health benefits, including reimbursement and insurance, are generally excluded from the income of employees. This applies to any employer-paid system, whether the benefit is provided directly (i.e., through self-insurance) to employees or through an insurance provider or a trust. However, if the plan discriminates in favor of highly compensated employees, the amounts paid to those employees are subject to Federal income tax. IRC § 105(h)

The following summarizes the tax treatment of some common forms of employer-provided health benefits:

Direct reimbursement or payment - An employer may pay employee or reimburse qualifying medical expenses, without the payment resulting in taxable income to the employee. These payments may be made with or without a written plan. This includes payments for specific injuries or illness, but not payments based on work missed (i.e., sick pay). IRC §105

Health Reimbursement Arrangement (HRA) - An HRA is a written plan to provide employer payment or reimbursement for qualifying medical or health benefits. It may provide for the carryover of benefits from year to year, and may specify the types of medical benefits that are covered. An HRA can only be financed by employer contributions, and cannot involve an employee election to participate. For more information, see Publication 969. IR C§105(b); IR C §106; Notice 2002-45

Employer contributions to health plans – Contributions to the cost of accident or health insurance, including qualified long-term care insurance paid by an employer, is excludable from the income of employees. This includes employer contributions to an Archer Medical Savings Account (MSA) account or to a health savings account (HSA). See Publication 969 for more information on these plans. IRC §106

Flexible Spending Arrangement – Under a written employer plan, the employee may choose to reduce salary and contribute to an account for medical expenses on a pre-tax basis. Amounts in the account may be used to pay for qualifying medical expenses, generally only within that calendar year. Long-term care benefits are not excludable from income tax, but are excludable from social security and Medicare taxes. IRC §106(c)(2)

Cafeteria plan - A cafeteria plan, which may include a flexible spending arrangement, is a written benefit plan that meets the requirements under section 125. Under section 125, employees can choose from among cash and certain qualified benefits, including:

- Accident and health benefits (but not Archer medical savings accounts or long-term care insurance)
- Adoption assistance
- Dependent care assistance

- Group-term life insurance coverage
- Health savings accounts, including distributions to pay long-term care services

Benefits provided under a cafeteria plan are subject to social security and Medicare taxes on the same basis as the specific benefits would be if provided outside the plan. If the employee elects qualified benefits, employer contributions are excluded from wages for income tax purposes if the benefits are excludable from gross income under a specific section of the Internal Revenue Code (other than scholarship and fellowship grants under section 117 and employee fringe benefits under section 132). IRC §125

For more information, see Publication 15-B, Publication 963, and the Cafeteria Plans FAQ on the FSLG web page. IR C§125

9 Travel Expenses

Reimbursements received by an employee who travels on business outside of the area of his/her tax home may be excludable from wages. This section covers key concepts used in determining whether travel-related expenses are excludable, including:

- Tax home
- The definition of “away from home”: overnight/sleep or rest rules
- Temporary vs. indefinite travel assignments
- Substantiation methods
- Reimbursements for travel expenses

Qualifying expenses for travel are excludable if they are incurred for temporary travel on business away from the general area of the employee’s tax home. In order to be excludable as reimbursements, the travel must be temporary and be substantially longer than an ordinary day’s work, requiring an overnight stay or substantial sleep or rest. IRC §162(a)(2)

Travel expense reimbursements include:

- Costs to travel to and from the business destination
- Transportation costs while at the business destination
- Lodging, meals and incidental expenses
- Cleaning, laundry and other miscellaneous expenses

There are no tax consequences to reimbursements for allowable expenses if the accountable plan rules, discussed in Section 2, are met.

Example: An employee works for an agency in Detroit, and travels to Denver to conduct business for an entire week. The employee incurs the cost of travel to and from Denver, as well as lodging and meals while there. Because the employee is traveling away from his/her tax home on the employer's business for substantially longer than a day, the employee is considered in travel status. Reimbursements for substantiated travel expenses incurred by the employee are excludable.

Tax Home

Identifying the employee's tax home is critical because the employee must be considered away from his or her tax home for reimbursements for travel expenses to be excludable. In most cases, the employee's tax home is the general vicinity of his/her principal place of business. The taxpayer may receive excludable travel reimbursements while temporarily away from the tax home in the pursuit of business. Whether the main place of work is the employer's business office or the taxpayer’s residence, the tax home includes the entire metropolitan area; therefore, the taxpayer is not away from home unless he or she leaves the metropolitan area. Rev. Rul. 73-529; Rev. Rul. 93-86

One Regular or Main Place of Business

Generally, the tax home is the employee's regular place of business or official duty station, regardless of where the employee maintains a family home.

Example: An employee lives and works in New York. The New York area is considered the employee's tax home.

Example: An employee lives in New York, but works permanently in Philadelphia. Even though the employee lives in Philadelphia, New York is considered the employee's tax home.

More Than One Regular or Main Place of Business

If an employee has more than one regular place of business, the tax home is the employee's main place of business. The main place of business is generally determined by the time worked, degree of business activity, and income earned in each location.

Example: An hourly employee works in his employer's office in Portland three weeks a month and in a satellite office in Seattle for one week a month. Portland is the employee's tax home.

No Regular or Principal Place of Business

An employee may have a tax home even if he/she does not have a regular or main place of business. If the employee works in the general area of the residence where he/she regularly lives, the general area of that residence is the tax home. Rev. Rul. 73-529; Rev. Rul. 93-86

Example: A forestry worker has a home in a remote location and works at various forest sites in the general area. His employer does not have an office where the employee works or reports. The general area of his residence may qualify as the employee's tax home.

Tax Home Election for State Legislators

Section 162(h) of the Code provides that a state legislator whose district is more than 50 miles from the capitol building may elect to treat his/her residence within the legislative district he or she represents as the tax home. IRC §162(h)(1)(B); TD 9481; TAM 9127009; Prop Reg 1.162-24

Away From Tax Home

In order for a reimbursement of an expense for business travel to be excludable from income, including meals and lodging, a taxpayer must travel "away from home" in the pursuit of business on a temporary basis.

The statutory phrase "away from home" has been interpreted by the U.S. Supreme Court to require a taxpayer to travel overnight, or long enough to require substantial "sleep or rest". Thus, merely working overtime or at a great distance from the taxpayer's residence does not create excludable reimbursements for travel expenses if the taxpayer returns home without spending the night or stopping for substantial "sleep or rest" U.S. v Correll, 389 U.S. 299, 302-303 (1967); Rev. Rul. 75-170; Rev. Rul. 75-432

See Meal Allowances, later, for further discussion of the "sleep or rest" rule.

Questions concerning the sleep or rest rule have been addressed in numerous court cases over the years. Each case addresses a specific situation and should not be relied on to address another situation, but they illustrate the development of law in this area. Some of the major cases and IRS rulings in this area are listed below, and some of these cases are briefly discussed afterward.

Sleep/Rest Test Not Met - Reimbursements Taxable

U.S. v Correll, 389 U.S. 299, 302-303(1967)
Barry v. Commissioner, 27 AFTR 2d 71-334, 435 F2d 1290(CA1 1970)
Coombs v. Commissioner, 608 F2d 1269, 1276(1979)
Fife v. Commissioner, 73 T.C. 621(1980)
Rev.Rul. 68-663, 1968-2 C.B. 71
Matteson v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo 1974-96
Unger v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo 1986-64, 51 TCM 455

Sleep/Rest Test Met - Reimbursements Not Taxable

Williams v. Patterson, 286 F.2d 333 (5th Cir. 1961)
Rev. Rul. 75-170, 1975-1 CB 60
Anderson, David, (1952) 18 TC 649
Weaver, Don, (1953) PH TCM 54001, 12 CCH TCM 1421
Rev. Rul. 75-168, 1975-1 CB 58
Johnson, Mose, (1982) TC Memo 1982-2
Rev. Rul. 75-432, 1975-2 CB 60
Siragusa v. Commissioner, T.C. Memo 1980-68

Court Case 1: Williams v. Patterson

A railroad conductor regularly rented a hotel room near a railroad station where he slept and ate during a 5-hour layover as part of an 18-hour workday. He could deduct his meal and lodging costs because his layover was long enough to obtain sleep or rest and was required by his job to do so.

Court Case 2: Barry v. Commissioner

A consulting engineer worked with clients in a three-state area by making one-day trips to each client. She frequently left home at 6:30 a.m. and did not return until midnight. During the day, she stopped in a rest area and closes her eyes for 20 minutes to refresh herself for the drive. She could not deduct the cost of her meals on these trips because she was not away from home long enough to obtain substantial sleep or rest.

Court Case 3: Unger v. Commissioner

A truck driver's "safety breaks" which consisted of resting or sleeping at the wheel of the truck for periods ranging from 45 minutes to three and one-half hours, were considered by the courts to be a mere pause from his daily work routine and consequently did not constitute a substantial amount of sleep or rest. Therefore, the truck driver was not considered to be away from home.

Example: An employee is required to travel from Milwaukee to Madison to work on a project. She leaves home at 11:00 a.m. on Monday, with plans to return home the same day. She is unable to complete the project on Monday, so she spends the night in Madison. After completing the project the next day, she returns to Milwaukee by 10:30 a.m. Even though the employee had not planned to spend the night and is gone for less than 24 hours, she has met the "away from home" rule because she spent the night away from her tax home on business.

Example: An employee is required to travel from Dallas to Austin to work for the day. The employee leaves home at 6:30 A.M. and returns that night at 10:00 P.M. On the trip home the employee stops for dinner and rests in the car for two hours. Even though the employee has been away from home for substantially longer than his/her normal work day, the employee is not considered to be in travel status. Courts have ruled that stopping for a meal or a rest in a car does not meet the substantial "sleep or rest" rule.

Example: A government agency supplies office equipment to all agencies within the state. An employee drives a tractor-trailer with equipment from the warehouse in Sacramento to an agency in San Diego. After 10 hours the driver stops and rents a room at a rest stop for a 4-hour nap before completing the round trip. Because the driver rented a room in order to sleep, he/she is considered to have met the "sleep and rest" rule. Reimbursements for meals and lodging are not taxable to the employee.

Temporary vs. Indefinite Travel Assignments

Reimbursements of travel expenses for "temporary" assignments away from the tax home are generally not taxable to the employee. If the assignment is "indefinite," the employee is considered to have moved his/her tax home to the new work location. Reimbursements of expenses for "indefinite" travel are taxable. The employer must determine whether an assignment is realistically expected to last less than one year when the assignment begins. .
Rev. Rul. 93-86; Rev. Rul. 99-7

An assignment is generally considered temporary if it is realistically expected to be, and does in fact last, one year or less.

An assignment is generally considered indefinite if it is realistically expected to last, and does in fact last, for more than one year.

The above are the general rules. All relevant facts must be considered to determine whether the travel assignment was intended to be temporary or indefinite. Rev. Rul. 93-86; Rev. Rul. 93-7

Return Home from Temporary Work Location

If the employee goes home on days off from a temporary location while traveling away from his or her tax home, the allowable expense for those days is the lesser of (1) travel expenses home, or (2) the cost of staying at temporary assignment.

"Temporary" Travel Assignment Becomes "Indefinite"

If an assignment away from home at a single location is, initially, realistically expected to last one year or less, and then later it is realistically expected to last longer than one year, the assignment is considered temporary until the date the expectations change. At that time, the travel is considered "indefinite" and any travel reimbursements from this date on are taxable.

Example 1: Joan accepts a 6-month work assignment away from her tax home, intending to return to her tax home at the finish of the temporary assignment. The assignment lasts for 6 months and Joan returns to her regular job at her tax home. Joan's reimbursements are excludable because the assignment was intended to last, and did last, less than one year.

Example 2: Joan accepts a temporary assignment away from her tax home for 6 months, intending to return to her tax home at the finish of the temporary assignment. After 4 months at the temporary job assignment, Joan agrees to stay for an additional 14 months. Joan is not taxed on employer reimbursements for travel expenses paid or incurred during the first 4 months of her temporary assignment. Joan will be taxed on reimbursements for the additional 14 months because the assignment has now become an indefinite assignment. If there had been a reasonable basis at the start of the assignment to believe that it would be extended, then it would have been considered indefinite from the start. Revenue Ruling 73-578

Example 3: Joan accepts an assignment away from her tax home for 15 months. After 7 months, the employer cancels the assignment and Joan returns to work at her tax home. Although Joan's assignment lasted less than one year, it had been realistically expected to last for more than one year when the assignment began. Therefore, the assignment was considered "indefinite" and the reimbursements for the 7 months are taxable. Revenue Ruling 93-86

Reimbursements for Travel Expenses

In order for reimbursements for ordinary and necessary business expenses incurred while traveling away from the employee's home overnight to be excludable from taxable wages, the reimbursements must be made under an accountable plan, discussed in section 2. An accountable plan requires that expenses must have a business connection, documentation, and a timely return of excess reimbursements. An accountable plan may include a per diem allowance method. Rev. Proc.2005-67; Reg. §1.274-5(j)(1)

Per Diem Reimbursement

A per diem system is a daily allowance to pay for lodging, meal and incidental expenses while traveling on business. The amount of the expenses reimbursed under a per diem allowance method will be deemed substantiated without receipts, provided the requirements of the regulations are met.

Federal Per Diem Rate

Federal per diem rates include separate rates for lodging and for meals and incidental expenses (M&IE). These rates apply to employees of the Federal government, and also establish the maximum amounts for different geographical areas that can be excluded per day for lodging, meals and incidental expenses (M&IE). The rates are revised each year, and are available on-line as IRS Publication 1542; see also Revenue Procedure 2011-47 and Notice 2011-81 for special rules. Notice 2011-81; Rev. Proc. 2011-47

Lodging includes only the cost of the lodging itself. Room tax and energy surcharges are not considered part of the lodging cost.

M&IE includes meals, tips and fees for food and luggage-handling services.

An employer is not required to reduce the M&IE even if meals are provided in-kind to the employee, if the employer reasonably believes that the M&IE will be incurred.

Employers may use lower per diem rates than the Federal rates. The accountable plan rules apply in the same manner in these cases. If a rate higher than the Federal rate is used, the excess is taxable as wages.

Per Diem Allowance Rules

If a per diem allowance is used, employees are deemed to have substantiated the amount of expenses equal to the lesser of the Federal per diem rate or the per diem allowance paid by the employer).

- The per diem must be at or less than Federal rates to be fully excludable.
- No receipts are required if a per diem allowance is used, but the payments must meet the other substantiation requirements including time (date), place, and business purpose.
- An employer's substantiation requirements must, at a minimum, meet the Federal requirements. An employer may have more stringent requirements, such as requiring meal and/or lodging receipts. Reg. 1.62-2(c); Rev. Proc. 2011-47; Rev. Rul. 2006-56

Example: An employee traveling away from home on business is reimbursed by his employer at the Federal per diem rate for the city in which he spends the night. Because the employee is reimbursed at the Federal per diem rate for the city in which he spends the night, the employee does not have to provide receipts. However, the employee must provide adequate substantiation verifying the time, place and business purpose of the trip. The employer may require additional substantiation. Reg. 1-62-2(c)

Miscellaneous Expenses

Miscellaneous expenses are not considered part of a per diem reimbursement and, therefore, substantiation is required. Employers may require actual receipts or written certification as substantiation depending on their travel policies.

Miscellaneous expenses include cab fares, fax, telephone, copy charges, room taxes, energy surcharges, laundry, cleaning and pressing of clothes, and other business related expenses.

Miscellaneous expenses are not part of M&IE and therefore these reimbursements, in addition to the M&IE allowance, may be excludable from wages. Rev. Proc. 2009-47

Optional Method for Incidental Expenses Only

An employer payment of $5 per day or partial day may be deemed to be substantiated expenses under the per diem rules if the employee:

- Is traveling away from home on business, and
- Does not pay or incur meal expenses, and
- Is not receiving per diem or M&IE expenses. Rev. Proc. 2011-47; Notice 2011-81

Travel for Days of Departure and Return

For both the day travel begins and the day travel ends, the per diem meal allowance is to be prorated by one of two methods:

- Allow $\frac{3}{4}$ of the per diem meal allowance for each of those days, or
- Use any method that is consistently applied and that is in accordance with reasonable business practice, such as the actual hours away from home on the first and last day. Rev. Proc.2006-41

Traveling to More Than One Location

If the employee is traveling to more than one location in one day, use the per diem rate for the area where the employee stops for rest or sleep. Rev. Proc.2006-41

Per Diem Paid Under a Nonaccountable Plan

A per diem plan that fails to comply with any of the accountable plan requirements is considered a nonaccountable plan. Reg. §1.62-2(a)(4)

Per diem payments made under a nonaccountable plan are wages subject to Federal income tax, and employer and employee social security and Medicare taxes. The payments are included in wages in boxes 1, 3, and 5 on Form W-2.

Example: An employee regularly travels as part of her job requirements. The employer provides her with a monthly per diem allowance based on an estimate of the number of days traveled. The employer does not require the employee to return any of the allowance that exceeds substantiated business expenses.

Because the employer does not require the employee to return excess advances or allowances, this is not an accountable plan, and the entire amount of the allowance is taxable to the employee as wages.

Other Per Diem Methods

The following are alternative per diem methods that may be applied to travel expenses.

Meals-Only Substantiation Method

An employer may reimburse the actual lodging expense and use the M&IE per diem allowance plan for the meals and incidental expenses. Reg. 1.62-2; Rev. Proc. 2011-47; Pub. 1542

High-Low Substantiation Method of Substantiation

“High-low substantiation” is another deemed substantiation method that may be used in place of the per diem method. The IRS designates key cities or localities as "high-cost" areas. All other localities are considered "low-cost" areas. Use of this method eliminates the need to keep records of the current rate for each city. A single per diem rate is assigned to all high-cost areas and all other areas are assigned another rate. An employer that uses the high-low method for an employee must use the high-low method for that employee for all travel in the continental United States that year, unless an actual expenses method or the meals and incidental expenses method is used. See Publication 1542 and Revenue Procedure 2011-47 for more information and current high-low rates. Rev. Proc. 2011-47

10 Transportation Expenses

Transportation expenses are costs for local business travel that is not away from the tax home area overnight, and is in the general vicinity of the principal place of business. Transportation expenses must be distinguished from reimbursement for commuting costs, which are not excludable from employee income. IRC 162(a)(2); IRC 62(c); Rev Rul. 99-7

Reimbursements for transportation expenses are excludable from income if they are provided for:

- Daily transportation between the employee's residence and a temporary work location outside the metropolitan area where the employee generally works.
- Daily transportation between the employee's residence and a temporary work location in the same business (regardless of distance) if the employee has a regular work location away from the residence.
- Daily transportation between the employee's residence and another work location in the same business, if the residence is the employee's principal place of business.

If none of these situations apply, the transportation expenses are commuting and are taxable if reimbursed to the employee. See Taxable Commuting Expenses, below. Rev Rul. 99-7

Transportation expenses may include:

- Air, train, bus, shuttle and taxi fares in area of tax-home
- Mileage expenses or costs of operating a vehicle
- Tolls and parking fees

Transportation expenses do not include:

- Meal and lodging costs
- Commuting to regular or principal place of business
- Travel expenses (see section 9)

Temporary vs. Indefinite Assignments

For transportation expenses, as with travel expenses, it is important to note the distinction between "temporary" and "indefinite" assignments. Reimbursements of transportation expenses for temporary assignments in the general area of the tax home are generally not taxable to the employee. Reimbursements of expenses for indefinite assignment transportation expenses generally are taxable. ILM 199948019; Rev. Rul. 99-7

Note: The distinction between temporary and indefinite work locations is only applicable to transportation between an employee's residence and a work location, regardless of the distance. It is not applicable to transportation between one work location and another. If the residence is the principal place of business, all reimbursements for transportation between the residence and other work sites are excludable.

Temporary Transportation Expenses

The following requirements must be met to exclude transportation expenses under a temporary assignment:

- Duration at a single location is realistically expected to last, and actually does last, one year or less
- Assignment is away from the main place of work
- Reimbursement cannot be for commuting

Indefinite Assignment Transportation Expenses

If an assignment is indefinite, this generally precludes exclusion for reimbursement of transportation expenses. An indefinite assignment exists under these circumstances:

- Duration at a single location is realistically expected to be longer than one year, and
- The assignment location is away from the principal place of work

A break of 7 months generally results in the beginning of a new assignment. RR 99-7; PLR 200026025; PLR 200025052

"Temporary" Transportation Assignment Becomes "Indefinite"

If, at the beginning of an assignment at a single location, it is realistically expected to last one year or less, and then later it is realistically expected to last longer than one year, the assignment is considered temporary until the date the expectations change. At that time, the transportation is considered "indefinite" and any reimbursements from this date are taxable. The decision of whether an assignment is realistically expected to last more than one year is made when the assignment begins.

The IRS considers all of the facts to determine whether the travel assignment was truly intended to be temporary.

Example: Tom, a state auditor, is assigned to an audit of another agency that is expected to take, and does take, 18 months to complete. The agency he is auditing is in the same town as his regular place of business. Tom travels daily from his residence to the office of the agency he is auditing and is reimbursed for his mileage by his employer.

Although the travel is considered "indefinite" because the audit is expected to take more than one year, Tom is not traveling away from his tax home area, and therefore the transportation is considered commuting. The reimbursements for mileage are taxable wages to Tom.

If Tom had traveled from his main place of business rather than from his residence, the reimbursements could be excludable because he was not traveling from his residence, so the "temporary vs. indefinite" rules do not apply.

Transportation Expenses and Commuting

It is important to distinguish expenses for transportation from commuting. "Commuting" refers to travel between an employee's personal residence and main or regular place of work. Reimbursements of transportation expenses for getting from one workplace to another in the course of the employer's business within the general area of the tax home may be excludable from wages, whereas reimbursements for commuting are not excludable. Reg. §1.162-2(e); Rev. Rul. 99-7

Taxable Commuting Expenses

The following are examples of commuting, for which reimbursements would be taxable and no deduction allowed:

1. An employee drives from his residence to his principal or regular workplace(s) (during or after work hours, whether required or not by employer).
2. An employee drives from her residence to her regular workplace on the weekend because of an urgent meeting convened by her employer.
3. An employee has an office in the home that qualifies as a principal place of business and drives between the home and another work location in a different trade or business.
4. An employee with no regular or main place of business drives between his residence and his first business stop, and last business stops and home.

Example 1: An employee drives from her home to her main office in morning. In the afternoon she drives to a satellite office in another town, and then returns to her residence. The trip between the employee's home and place of business is personal commuting and any reimbursement for this part of the trip is taxable to her as wages. Assuming the accountable plan rules are met, employer reimbursement for the travel from her main office in to the satellite work site and the return trip home is excludable.

Example 2: A fish and game warden lives in a remote area and does not have a regular place of business. He drives daily to various temporary job locations and is reimbursed for his mileage. Reimbursements for the daily travel between the employee's residence and the first work location, and last work location and home are taxable as wages because the game warden does not have a regular place of business and he is not driving to a work site outside of the general area of his residence. Reimbursements for travel between the work sites are not taxable. However, if he had a regular place of work, travel between home and the regular workplace would be commuting and reimbursements for this would be taxable.

Example 3: An employee travels from his residence to a temporary work site for the day, driving past his official duty station on the way. Reimbursements for transportation between residence and temporary work site may be excludable to the extent of the actual distance traveled. ILM 199948018

Example 4: A high-school music teacher is assigned to two schools on a permanent basis. She works at the first school in the morning and drives from the first to the second school in the afternoon. She is reimbursed for her travel between the two locations. The travel is not taxable to the teacher because she is traveling between work sites.

Substantiation of Transportation Expenses

Transportation expenses are subject to the same accountable plan rules as those for travel expenses, discussed in section 9. They are fully excludable when paid under an accountable plan. The following requirements must be met:

- Business connection
- Substantiation
- Excess returned within a reasonable time Reg. §1.62-2(c); Reg. §1.274-5T(b)(2)

Substantiation requires that the employees be able to prove amount, date and time, place and business purpose of expenses, and keep contemporaneous records such as receipts. Expenses must not be lavish, but reasonable based on circumstances Reg 1.62-2; 1.274-5T(b)(2)

11 Moving Expenses

Payments or reimbursements for moving expenses are generally not considered fringe benefits; however, many employers provide compensation or reimbursement for these expenses and a brief discussion is included here. For more information, see Publication 521, Moving Expenses.

Moving expenses incurred to change residences are considered personal expenses and reimbursements or payments to cover them are included in wages, unless the move is directly related to work and the expenses meet the criteria set forth under IRC § 217. Personal expenses are not deductible under IRC § 262.

If the moving expenses qualify under IRC § 217, they may be taken as a deduction on the individual's Federal income tax return. If the expenses are paid or reimbursed by an employer, the moving expense payment can be treated as an excludable fringe benefit to the employee under IRC § 132(g).

General Rule

A moving expense reimbursement received directly or indirectly from an employer (under an accountable plan) is excludable to the employee if the following tests of IRC §217 are met.
IRC §82 & §217

- Individual must be an employee
- Employee must actually incur or pay the expenses
- Expenses are closely related to starting work at the new job location (generally moving expenses incurred within one year from the date the employee first report to work at the new location qualify)
- Expenses must meet the time and distance tests:

Time Test: The employee must work at least 39 weeks full-time in the first year after arriving in the new location.

Distance test: The new job is at least 50 miles farther from the former home than the old job location was from the former home.

Note: A different time test applies to self-employed persons. See Publication 521.

Allowable Expenses

Moving Expenses are the reasonable expenses for:

- Moving household goods and personal effects;
- The travel costs between the former and the new residence by the shortest and most direct route, and

- Certain in-transit storage expenses for up to 30 consecutive days. IRC § 217(b); Reg. 1.217-2(b)(3)

Moving expense payments can be direct or indirect. Direct payments are made directly to the employee for moving expenses. Indirect payments are made to a third party on behalf of the employee (i.e., a moving and storage company, or an airline, or travel agency). Reg. §1.82-1(a)(3)

Travel Time for Traveling Expenses

An employee can be reimbursed for the cost of transportation and lodging for herself and members of her household while traveling from her former home to her new home. This includes expenses for the day she arrives. An employee can include any lodging expenses he had in the area of his former home within one day after he could not live in his former home (the furniture had been moved). An employee can be reimbursed for traveling expenses for only one trip to his new home for himself and members of his household. However, all family members do not have to travel together or at the same time.

The period for travel begins one day after former residence is no longer suitable for occupancy and includes one night lodging at prior residence, and ends on the date the employee secures lodging at the new place of residence. The qualified expenses are deductible only for the first day the employee arrives at the new location.

Note: Any relocation allowances paying for more days than defined above are taxable as wages to the employee.

Delayed Moving

There is no fixed time limit for reimbursed moving expenses. Depending on facts and circumstances, expenses may be incurred for tax years after the 12-month period after arriving. For example, the employee may be waiting for dependents to finish school. Rev. Rul. 78-200 Reg. §1.217-2(a)(3)

These rules are further illustrated in Publication 521.

12 Meals and Lodging

The fair market value of meals or lodging furnished to an employee by an employer may be nontaxable to the employee. IRC §119 provides an exclusion for meals and lodging under certain circumstances. Cash provided for meals is not excludable under this Code section; however, under certain circumstances cash can be excluded as a de minimis fringe benefit. IRC §119

In-Kind Requirement

"In-kind" refers to payments made in something other than cash. Meals or lodging paid in the form of cash equivalent do not qualify for this exclusion.

Meals are excludable from wages of the employee if they are provided:

- On the employer's business premises, and
- For the employer's convenience.

Lodging is excludable from wages of the employee if it is provided:

- On the employer's business premises, and
- For the employer's convenience, and
- As a condition of employment.

Federal law takes precedence over a state statute or an employment or union contract in determining the Federal tax liability for furnished meals or lodging. The actual facts and circumstances and the requirements of IRC §119 determine the liability for Federal income, social security and Medicare taxes. IRC§119(b)(1)

Regardless of any state statute, the employee is entitled to exclude the value of such meals and lodging from his wages for Federal tax purposes because the lodging is provided in kind, is on employer's business premises, for the employer's convenience, and is required as a condition of employment. Reg. §1.119-1(f)

Example: An employee of a state institution is required by his employer to reside at the institution in order to be available for duty at all times. Under the applicable state statute, the employee's lodging is regarded as part of the employee's compensation. For Federal tax purposes, the amounts are nevertheless excludable.

If an employee has an option to receive additional compensation in place of actual meals or lodging, then the meals and lodging, if chosen, are taxable. Reg. §1.119-1(e)

Meals

As stated above, to be excludable, meals must be provided on the premises and for the convenience of the employer. Each of these tests is discussed below.

Meals on the Business Premises of the Employer

“On the business premises of the employer” means that the meals must be provided either at:

- A place where the employee performs a significant portion of duties, or
- The premises where the employer conducts a significant portion of his or her business.
Reg. §1.119-1(c)

Example: Meals are provided at no cost to employees on a state ferry. The ferry qualifies as the employer’s business premises and the employee performs a significant portion of duties there. Meals are furnished for the convenience of the employer because the employer cannot stop the ferry to allow the employees to go to lunch. The meals are not taxable.

Meals for the Convenience of the Employer

Meals are provided for the convenience of the employer if they are provided for a substantial “noncompensatory” reason; that is, the intention is not to provide additional pay for the employee. This determination depends on the facts and circumstances.

Meals provided in the following situations are furnished for substantial noncompensatory reasons:

- Workers need to be on call for emergencies during the lunch period
- The nature of the business (not merely a preference) requires short lunch periods
- Eating facilities are not available in the area of work
- Meals are furnished to restaurant employees, before, during or after work hours
- Meals are furnished to all employees, if meals are furnished to substantially all the employees for substantial noncompensatory reasons
- Meals are furnished immediately after working hours because the employee’s duties prevented him or her from obtaining a meal during working hours

Example 1: Meals are furnished during working hours so that employee is available for emergency calls during the meal; for example, firefighters at the firehouse. You must have evidence that emergencies occur.

Example 2: Meals are furnished to employees in a remote site because there are insufficient eating facilities in the area, such as a remote logging camp.

Example 3: An employer has pizza delivered to the office at a group meeting because the business requires the meeting be kept short, and there are no alternative facilities in the immediate area.

Example 4: Meals are furnished by a bank that experiences highest customer demand during the lunch hour and therefore establishes a short meal period to meet this need (not to allow the employee to leave earlier).

Meals provided to improve general morale or goodwill, or to attract prospective employees, are not provided for a substantial noncompensatory reason and are taxable. Reg. 1.119-1(a)(2)

Meals Not Provided for the Convenience of Employer

Meals provided before or after working hours are not for the convenience of employer, unless:

- Provided for a restaurant or cafeteria employee, or
- Duties prevent the employee from taking a meal until immediately after working hours
Reg. §1.119-1(a)(2)

Meals provided with a charge may or may not be considered for the "convenience of the employer." If there is a mandatory charge or deduction from the employee's pay for meals, gross income to the employee is reduced by this amount. IRC §119(b)(3)

De Minimis Meals

Infrequent meals of minimal value may be excludable as a de minimis fringe benefit, regardless of the tests above. See the discussion of de minimis fringe benefits in section 4.

Meals or Lodging Furnished With a Charge

If an employer charges an employee a fixed amount for a meal or for lodging, regardless of whether the employee takes the meal, the employee's regular taxable wages are reduced by the amount of the charge. If not provided for the convenience of the employer, the FMV of meal or lodging is then added to the wages. Generally, the FMV of the meal will be the amount charged for the meal by the employee, resulting in no net tax effect. IRC §119(a)(2); IRC §119(b)(3)

Optional Meal for Purchase

An optional meal is generally not considered provided for the convenience of the employer. If an employer provides a meal that an employee may choose to purchase, the employee's taxable wages are not reduced by the amount the employee pays for the meal. If the meal is not for the convenience of the employer, the FMV of the meal, less any amount charged by the employer, is included in the employee's wages. IRC §119(b)(3)

Meals While Traveling

As discussed in section 9, employers often reimburse employees for meals while traveling away from home overnight. These meals generally fall under the rules for travel expenses, discussed earlier. The taxability of these reimbursements or allowances depends on whether there is a valid business reason for the meals and whether the expenses are substantiated. Reimbursements or allowances must first meet the accountable plan rules in order to be excludable.

Overnight Travel

In general, meals are subject to the same rules as other expenses when they occur under the conditions of travel expenses, discussed in section 9. The overnight rule, discussed earlier, and the accountable plan rules apply. In order for travel meal reimbursements to be excludable from wages, employees must be traveling away from their tax home on their employer's business. As with other travel-related expenses, the general area of work, not the employees' residence, determines the tax home.

Traveling "away from home" means:

1. The employee must be traveling away from the general tax home area substantially longer than an ordinary day's work, and
2. The employee needs to obtain substantial sleep or rest to meet the demands of the work while away from home. IRC §162(a)(2) Rev. Rul. 75-170 Rev. Rul. 75-432

Meals Away From Tax Home But Not Overnight

Generally, these meals are taxable as wages to the employee because travel must be away from home overnight to be excludable.

Example: An employee is required to travel from Topeka to Wichita to work for the day. The employer agrees to pay for the employee's meals while in Wichita. The employee leaves home at 7:00 a.m. and returns home at 9:00 p.m. Before the employee returns in the evening, the employee takes a nap in his car for an hour.

Although the employee is away from his tax home for substantially longer than a normal work day and even stops for rest, the employee is not considered to be away from home overnight. The rest is not considered to be substantial. Any meal money that the employee receives is taxable as wages.

For more information, refer to section 9.

Meals as Entertainment

Reimbursements or allowances provided to employees for meals in the course of entertaining customers may be excludable if the expenses are ordinary and necessary, and meet either a Directly-Related Test or an Associated Entertainment Test.

Directly-Related Test – Entertainment-related meal reimbursements may be excludable from wages if:

- The main purpose of the combined business and meal is the active conduct of business,
- Business is actually conducted during the meal period, and

- There is more than a general expectation of deriving income or some other specific business benefit at some future time.

All of the facts must be considered, including the nature of the business transacted and the reasons for conducting business during the meal. If the meal takes place in a clear business setting and is for your business or work, the expenses are considered directly related to your business or work. Reg. §1.274-2(c) and (d)

Examples of Directly-Related Meals or Entertainment

- Meals at a hospitality room sponsored by an employer at a convention.
- Entertainment of civic leaders at the opening of a new city hall.

Associated Entertainment Test - Entertainment-related meal reimbursements meet the associated test and are excludable if the entertainment is:

- Associated with the active conduct of the employer's business, and
- Directly before or after a substantial business discussion.

Generally, an expense is associated with the active conduct of a business, if there is a clear business reason for incurring it. The purpose may be to get new business or to encourage the continuation of an existing relationship. These activities need not occur in a clear business setting.

Whether a business discussion is substantial depends on the facts of each case. A business discussion will not be considered substantial unless you can show that you actively engaged in the discussion, meeting, negotiation, or other business transaction to get income or some other specific business benefit. You must be able to show that the business discussion was substantial in relation to the meal. Reg. §1.274-2(c) and (d)

Trade or Professional Association Meetings

Reimbursements for meal expenses directly related to and necessary for attending business meetings or conventions of certain exempt organizations are excludable from wages if the expenses of your attendance are related to your trade or business. These organizations include chambers of commerce, business leagues and trade or professional associations. Reg. §1.274-2(d)(3)

Example: A manager regularly buys lunch for all of the employees in her group after monthly group meetings in an effort to boost morale. The manager and the employees are reimbursed by the employer. This does not meet either the directly-related test or the associated test and is not a qualified business meal. The value of the meal is considered taxable to the employees.

Example: A government official attends a meeting as a representative of his agency. The meeting is followed by a dinner for which the official pays and is reimbursed by the agency. The meal reimbursement meets the associated business test, and therefore qualifies as an excludable business meal.

Substantiating Employee Meal Expense Reimbursements

Meal expense reimbursements or allowances must meet the accountable plan rules, discussed in section 2, in order to be excludable from wages. There must be a business connection, documentation of expenses, and a requirement to return excess advances or reimbursements to qualify as an accountable plan. An employer may reimburse employees using an actual expense or per diem method.

Reimbursements for allowable business travel meals while traveling away from home overnight may be substantiated using either an actual expense method or a per diem method.

Meals while not traveling, such as meals with meetings or overtime meals, must be substantiated using the actual expense method.

If an employee chooses not to be reimbursed for expenses, the employee cannot claim the expenses on his/her personal tax return. P.W. Havener, 23 TCM 539.

Lodging

Whether lodging is provided for a substantial noncompensatory reason and for the convenience of the employer depends on the facts and circumstances. Reg. §1.119-1(b)

Lodging provided to a state governor is considered to be for the convenience of the employer. Rev. Rul. 75-540

Rent-subsidized living quarters provided to state legislators do not satisfy the convenience of the employer or condition of employment tests where the legislator is not required to accept them. However, a legislator may make an election to have his/her personal residence treated as his or her tax home, allowing the value of the lodging to be excludable as a qualified travel expense. (See the discussion of travel expense reimbursements earlier.) IRC §162(h)(1)B; Reg. 1.162-24; TAM 9127009

Lodging Required as Condition of Employment

Lodging is required as a condition of employment if the employer requires the employee to live on the premises to be able to perform their job duties. Common examples may include park rangers, firefighters or apartment managers. For the exclusion to apply, the employee must be required to accept lodging. Where lodging is provided as a condition of employment, meals, if provided, may qualify as excludable. Reg. §1.119-1(a)

Example: An employee at a prison is given the choice of residing at the institution free of charge, or of residing elsewhere and receiving a cash allowance in addition to his regular salary. If he elects to reside at the prison, the value of the lodging is taxable as wages to the employee because he is not required as a condition of employment to reside on the premises.

Example: A full-time executive works for a city but lives in another community. The city provides a rented apartment locally to help defray the executive's personal commuting costs. The requirements for lodging to be excluded from income have not been met. The lodging is not on the business premises of the employer, and therefore, does not qualify for an exclusion.

Lodging for Educational Institutions

Qualified campus lodging furnished to employees is not taxable to an employee as wages, if:

- Lodging is located on or near the campus, and
- The employee pays rent for the taxable year of at least 5% of appraised lodging value, or
- Rent charged to the employee is comparable to rent charged by the institution to students or non-employees. IRC §119(d)

If the employee pays no rent for the lodging, or less than 5% of appraised value or comparable rent, the following rules determine the taxable wages the employee is deemed to receive.

If the employee pays no rent: The lesser of 5% of the appraised value or the comparable rent is included in income as wages.

If the employee pays annual rent that is less than the 5% of appraised value or comparable rent: The difference between what is actually paid and the lesser of 5% of the appraised value or the comparable rent is included in wages. IRC §119(d)

The benefit applies to employees of institution and their spouses and dependents.

13 Reimbursement for Use of Employee-Owned Vehicle

Government employees often use their personal automobiles for official use. An employee can deduct the costs of operating the vehicle for work as an employee, using either actual expenses or a standard mileage rate. If an employer reimburses these expenses under an accountable plan, they are not deductible by the employee, but are excludable from the employee's income. If reimbursements are made under a non-accountable plan, or exceed the allowable amounts, they may be taxable as wages. See Publication 463 for more information on vehicle expenses.

Standard Federal Mileage Rate

In most cases, an employer can choose to reimburse the employee a mileage allowance in lieu of actual automobile expenses.

As of January 1, 2012, the standard mileage rate is 55.5 cents per mile. The rate for the current year can be found on www.irs.gov or in Publication 553. Notice 2012-01

Mileage-rate reimbursements for allowable business travel are excludable from the wages of the employee, if equal to or less than the standard Federal mileage rate. Reg§1.274(g)(2)(iii); Reg. § 1.274-5

Reimbursements for non-business travel, including commuting, are always taxable even if paid at or below the Federal mileage rate and are to be included in regular wages and subject to all income and employment taxes. (But see De Minimis Nontaxable Personal Use, later.)

Personal commuting between the residence and the principal place of business is considered non-business travel or personal use. See section 10 for a discussion of commuting.

Employer Reimbursements in Excess of Federal Mileage Rate

Reimbursements in excess of the Federal mileage rate are taxable as regular wages to the employee. When there is an excess reimbursement, both the nontaxable and taxable amounts are reported on Form W-2 as follows:

- Amounts up to Federal mileage rate: box 12, code L
- Amounts in excess of Federal mileage rate (taxable): boxes 1, 3, and 5 (withholding reported in boxes 2, 4 and 6)

Employer Reimbursement Paid at or Less Than the Federal Rate

If an employer reimburses an employee's business mileage under an accountable plan, at or below the Federal mileage rate, and the employee substantiates the business mileage, then:

- The reimbursement is not taxable to the employee.

- No income tax is withheld.
- No reporting is required on Form W-2.

Reimbursement for Actual Expenses

If the employer reimburses the employee for actual expenses, such as fuel purchased, incurred in the performance of work, these are excludable if made under an accountable plan. The employee must be able to document the amount of the expenses and their connection to the business. Any expenses that are personal in nature (for example, commuting) are never excludable and reimbursements for these must be included in taxable wages.

See Publication 463 for more information on allowable vehicle expenses.

Employee Deduction

If employer reimbursement is less than the Federal rate, employees who itemize deductions on their personal returns (Form 1040) can deduct the difference between the Federal mileage rate and the employer reimbursement, using Schedule A and attaching Form 2106.

Substantiation Requirements

The employee is required to provide substantiation to the employer. Substantiation rules require the employee to record the date, business purpose, and place of each trip. Reg. §1.274-5T(c)(1)-(2); Reg. §1.274-5A(f)(3)

Mileage should be recorded "at or near the time" incurred. Monthly expense reports generally qualify as at or near the time. Reg. §1.274-5T(c)(2)(ii)

Example: In 2012, a state agency paid automobile mileage reimbursements at the Federal rate of 55.5 cents per mile to employees for business use of their personal vehicles. The employees verified their expenses on monthly expense reports. Because the reimbursement does not exceed the Federal mileage rate and the business use has been verified, the reimbursements are not included in employee wages. No reporting is required on Form W-2.

Rule If Employee Declines Reimbursement from Employer

If employees choose not to be reimbursed for business mileage, they cannot claim the expenses on their personal tax returns. P.V. Havener, 23 TCM 539

14 Employer-Provided Vehicle

If an employer provides a vehicle that is used by an employee exclusively for business purposes and substantiation requirements are met, there are no tax consequences or reporting required. The use is treated as a working condition fringe benefit. Business use does not include commuting (except as discussed later). Employees should maintain records to substantiate that all vehicle use was for business. Reg. § 1.132-6(e)(2)

Employer Vehicle Used for Both Business and Personal Use

If an employer-provided vehicle is used for both business and personal purposes, substantiated business use is not taxable to the employee (see Substantiation Requirements, below). Personal use is taxable to the employee as wages. The employer can choose to include all use as wages; in this case, the employee may pay the employer for personal use rather than having it treated as wages. Reg. § 1.61-21(c)

What is Personal Use?

The following are examples of taxable personal use of an employer-provided vehicle:

- Commuting between residence and work station
- Vacation, weekend use
- Use by spouse or dependents

Example: An employee goes into his office on the weekend. This is personal commuting, regardless of whether it is required by the employer. Reg. § 1.162-2(e);

De Minimis Nontaxable Personal Use

An exception to the limitation on personal use applies for use that qualifies as de minimis. De minimis benefits in general are discussed in section 4. Examples of de minimis use of an employer-provided vehicle that can be excludable include:

- Small personal detour while on business, such as driving to lunch while out of the office on business.
- Infrequent (not more than one day per month) commuting in employer vehicle. This does not mean that an employee can receive excludable reimbursements for commuting 12 days a year. The rule is available to cover infrequent, occasional situations. Reg. § 1.132-6(d)(3); Reg. § 1.132-6(e)(2)

Example: An employee uses a motor pool vehicle for a business meeting. The employer requires that motor pool vehicles be returned at the end of the business day, but the employee is delayed and the motor pool is closed when the employee arrives back at the office. The employee takes the vehicle home and returns it the next morning.

Assuming that this is an infrequent occurrence for that employee (generally happening no more than once a month) the commuting value of the trip is considered a nontaxable de minimis fringe benefit. If not an infrequent occurrence, the commuting would be taxable to the employee.

Substantiation Requirements

Separate records for business and personal mileage are required. IRC 274(d)

If records are not provided by the employee, the value of all use of the automobile is wages to the employee, and the employee can then take itemized deductions for any substantiated business use on Form 1040, Schedule A. Reg. §1.132-5(b)

If records are provided by the employee to the employer, only the personal use of the automobile is wages to the employee.

Exceptions to the recordkeeping requirements apply in certain situations discussed later in this section.

Valuing Personal Use of Employer-Provided Vehicle

Personal use of an employer's vehicle is taxable wages to the employee. The following procedure should be used to determine how much to include in wages on the employee's Form W-2. Under the general valuation rule for fringe benefits, the amount to include in income is fair market value. This generally means the lease value of the vehicle, but other rules may apply in certain circumstances. Reg. §1.162-2(d); Reg. §1.132-5(b)

Three Automobile Valuation Rules

- Automobile Lease Valuation Rule Reg. §1.61-21(d)
- Vehicle Cents-Per-Mile Rule Reg. §1.61-21(e)
- Commuting Rule Reg. §1.61-21(f)

General requirements for using these special valuations rules

To use one of the special valuation rules, the employer and employee must timely report personal use as wages. Generally, the rules are applied on a vehicle-by-vehicle basis; employer may use different rules for different vehicles.

Automobile Lease Valuation Rule

Compute the value for purposes of the lease valuation rule as follows:

1. Determine the fair market value of vehicle on first day made available to employee (use the table in Reg. §1.61-21(d)(iii) or Publication 15-B to compute the annual lease value);
2. Multiply the annual lease value by the percentage of personal use computed in Step 1.
3. If fuel is provided, add 5.5¢ per mile driven by the employee to the table lease value.

Maintenance and insurance costs are included in the standard mileage rate. Reg. §1.61-21(d)

Note: The employer's cost, including tax, title, etc. may be used to determine the FMV. See the Regulations for information on the valuation of leased vehicles. Reg. §1.61-21(d)(5)

Example: Joe, an employee of Agency XYZ, uses an agency-provided car. In 2012, Joe drives the car 20,000 miles, of which 4,000 were personal miles or 20% ($4,000/20,000 = 20\%$). The FMV of the car is \$14,500 for an Annual Lease Value of \$4,100. Personal use is valued at \$820 ($\$4,100 \times 20\%$) plus \$220 ($5.5¢ \times 4,000$ miles) for fuel costs. \$1,040 ($\$820 + \220) is included in Joe's wages.

Recalculation of Value after 4-Year Lease Term

Once computed, the Annual Lease Value remains in effect through December 31 of the 4th full calendar year after the rule is first applied. Reg. §1.61-21(d)(2)

Transfer to Another Employee

If the vehicle is transferred to another employee, the employer may recalculate the annual lease value based on the fair market value as of January 1 of the year of transfer. This recalculation is not allowed if the primary purposed of the transfer is to reduce Federal tax liability.

Reg. §1.61-21(d)(2)

Daily Lease Value

This method is required if the vehicle is available for less than 30 days. Figure the daily lease value by multiplying the annual lease value by a fraction, using four times the number of days of availability as the numerator, and 365 as the denominator.

You can apply a prorated annual lease value for a period of continuous availability of less than 30 days by treating the automobile as if it had been available for 30 days. Use a prorated annual lease value if it would result in a lower valuation than applying the daily lease value to the shorter period of availability. Reg. §1.61-21(d)(4)

Fleet Average Valuation Rule

If the employer has 20 or more cars used for business and personal use by employees, a "fleet-average value" may be used to calculate the annual lease valuation. For 2012, each car must be valued at less than $21,100. (For trucks and vans, the amount is also $21,900.) Reg. §1.61-21(d)(5)(v); Rev. Proc. 2012-13

Vehicle Cents-Per-Mile Rule

To use the vehicle cents-per-mile rule, the vehicle must meet one of the following tests:

- It is regularly used (50% or more each year) in the employer's business, or is
- Generally used each workday to transport at least three employees to and from work, in an employer sponsored commuting vehicle pool, or is
- Driven by employees at least 10,000 miles per year. Reg. §1.61-21(e)

You must continue using the cents-per-mile rule for the vehicle for all later years, except the employer can use the commuting rule for any year during which use of the vehicle qualifies under that rule. However, if the vehicle does not qualify for the cents-per-mile rule during a later year, you can use for that year and thereafter any other rule for which the vehicle then qualifies.

Limitation on Value

For 2012 the cents-per-mile valuation rule cannot be used for cars with FMV exceeding $15,900. The limit for trucks and vans is $16,700. Rev. Proc. 2012-13; Reg. §1.61-21(e)(1); Reg. 1.280F

Multiply the standard mileage rate by number of personal miles driven. If fuel is not provided, the standard mileage rate can be reduced by up to 5.5 cents (55.5 cents – 5.5 cents = 50 cents per mile in 2012). Reg. §1.61-21(e); Notice 2012-01

Example: Joe drives his agency-provided car for 2,000 personal miles in 2012. The amount included as wages is $1,110 (55.5 cents x 2,000 personal miles) or, if no fuel is provided, would $1,000 (50 cents x 2000 miles).

Commuting Valuation Rule

Personal use for commuting can be valued at $1.50 each way if all of the following conditions are met:

- The vehicle is owned or leased by the employer;
- The vehicle is provided to the employee for use in the business;
- The employer requires the employee to commute in the vehicle for a bona fide non-compensatory business reasons
- The employer has a written policy prohibiting personal use other than commuting
- The employee does not use the vehicle for other than de minimis personal use
- The employee who uses the vehicle is not a control employee (defined below)

If more than one employee commutes in the vehicle, the $1.50 each-way rule applies to each employee. Reg. §1.61-21(f)

Note: The employer must require the employee to use the vehicle for a business purpose; it cannot be voluntary on the employee's part. For example, a transportation employee, who is on call 24 hours a day to respond to road emergencies, is required by his employer to commute in a vehicle outfitted with communications or other equipment the employee would need if called out at night.

Commuting Rule Not Available for Control Employee

Personal use of a vehicle by a "control employee" cannot be valued using the commuting valuation rule ($1.50 rule). A control employee in a governmental organization is either an:

1. Elected official, or an
2. Employee whose compensation is at least as great as a Federal government employee at Executive Level V (for 2012, $145,700) Reg. §1.61-21(f)(6); OPM EO 2011-21 December 2011

Instead of the above definition of control employee, the employer may treat all employees who are "highly compensated" (Generally, for 2012, those exceeding $115,000 compensation) as their only control employees. IR 2008-18; Reg. 1.132-8(f); Notice 2011-103

Example: An agency in a rural area does not have secure parking and has had a history of vandalism to its vehicles. The employer requires employees using the vehicles for the day on business to take the vehicles home overnight. The trip home and to the office the next day is considered taxable personal commuting. The commuting may be valued at $1.50 each way, because the employee had a valid noncompensatory business reason for commuting in the employer's vehicle. If this was an unusual situation for the employee, that is, generally occurring no more than once a month, the commuting could also be considered a nontaxable de minimis fringe benefit.

Example: An agency requires an employee to take home a van to carry displays and equipment to a trade show the next day. In this situation, the commuting could be valued at $1.50 for the trip from the office to home since the agency is requiring the employee to use a specific vehicle for valid business reasons (assuming the other rules listed above are met). If this was an unusual situation for the employee, that is, generally occurring no more than once a month, the commuting could be considered a nontaxable de minimis fringe benefit.

Qualified Nonpersonal Use Vehicles

Use of a qualified nonpersonal use vehicle, including commuting, is excludable to the employee as a working condition fringe benefit if the specific requirements for the type of vehicle are met.

Recordkeeping and substantiation by the employee are not required by the IRS. Reg. § 1.274-5T(k); Reg. § 1.132-5(h)

Eligible Vehicles

A qualified nonpersonal use vehicle is any vehicle that the employee is not likely to use more than minimally for personal purposes because of its design. Qualified nonpersonal use vehicles generally include all of the following:

- Clearly marked police, fire, or public safety officer vehicles (discussed below)
- Unmarked vehicles used by law enforcement officers if the use is officially authorized (discussed below)
- Qualified specialized utility repair truck (discussed below)
- An ambulance or hearse used for its specific purpose
- Any vehicle designed to carry cargo with a loaded gross vehicle weight over 14,000 pounds
- Delivery trucks with seating for the driver only, or the driver plus a folding jump seat
- A passenger bus with a capacity of at least 20 passengers used for its specific purpose
- Construction or specially designed work vehicles, (i.e., bucket trucks, dump trucks, cement mixers, forklifts, garbage trucks)
- School buses
- Tractors, combines and other special-purpose farm vehicles. Reg. § 1.274-(k)(2)

Clearly Marked Police, Fire, or Public Safety Officer Vehicles

A clearly marked police, fire, or public safety officer vehicle is a qualified nonpersonal use vehicle only if the following apply:

- The employee must always be on call.
- The employee must be required by the employer to use the vehicle for commuting.
- The employer must prohibit personal use (other than commuting) for travel outside of the officer or firefighter's jurisdiction. The employee must be required by the employer to use the vehicle for commuting.
- It is readily apparent, by words or painted insignia, that the vehicle is a public safety vehicle. A marking on a license plate is not a clear marking for this purpose.
Reg. § 1.274-5T(k)(3); Prop. Reg. 106897-08

Unmarked Law Enforcement Vehicles

Unmarked law enforcement vehicles are qualified nonpersonal use vehicles only if the following apply:

- The employer must officially authorize personal use
- Personal use must be incident to use for law-enforcement purposes; i.e., no vacation or recreational use.

- The employer must be a governmental unit responsible for prevention or investigation of crime.
- The vehicle must be used by a full-time law enforcement officer; i.e. officer authorized to carry firearms, execute warrants, and make arrests. The officer must regularly carry firearms, except when it is not possible to do so because of the requirements of undercover work. Reg. § 1.274-5T(k)(6)

Public Safety Officer

A public safety officer is an individual serving a public agency in an official capacity, with or without compensation, as a law enforcement officer, as described above, or a firefighter, chaplain, or member of a rescue squad or ambulance crew. TD 9483; §1.274-5

Qualified Specialized Utility Repair Truck

The following tests must be met for a specialized utility repair truck to qualify as a qualified nonpersonal use vehicle:

- The truck (not a van or pickup) is designed to carry tools, equipment, etc.
- The truck has permanent interior construction, including shelves and racks.
- The employer must require the employee to commute for emergency call-outs to restore or maintain utility services (i.e., gas, water, sewer). Reg. § 1.274-5T(k)(5)

Vans and pickup trucks do not qualify as qualified nonpersonal use vehicles unless specifically modified to be unlikely to allow more than minimal personal use. For a van or pickup truck with a loaded gross vehicle weight of 14,000 pounds or less, the vehicle must be clearly marked with permanently affixed decals, special painting, or other advertising associated with the trade, business, or function and:

Vans must have a seat for the driver only (or the driver and one other person) and either of the following items:

- Permanent shelving that fills most of the cargo area, or
- An open cargo area, and the van always carries merchandise, material, or equipment used in your trade, business, or function. Rev. Rul. 86-97PLR 200236022

Pickup trucks must be either:

1. Equipped with at least one of the following items:
 - a. A hydraulic lift gate.
 - b. Permanent tanks or drums.
 - c. Permanent side boards or panels that materially raise the level of the sides of the truck bed.

or

2. Used primarily to transport a particular type of load (other than over the public highways) in a construction, manufacturing, processing, arming, mining, drilling, timbering, or other similar operation for which it was specially designed or significantly modified.

Safe Harbor Substantiation Rules

A safe harbor rule relieves employees of the requirement to keep detailed records in two situations. How the safe harbor rule applies depends on whether the vehicles are not used for any personal purposes, or for nonpersonal vehicles with no personal use other than used only for commuting.

Employees using employer vehicles are not required to keep detailed records of vehicle use if all of the tests below are met:

For vehicles not used for personal purposes:

- The vehicle is owned or leased by the employer and is provided to the employee for use in the employer's business
- When not in use, the vehicle is kept on employer's premises (i.e., motor pool cars)
- No employee using the vehicle lives at the employer's business premises
- The employer has a written policy prohibiting personal use, except de minimis use (such as driving to lunch while away from the office)
- The employer reasonably believes the vehicle is not used for any personal use (other than de minimis) Reg. § 1.132-5)(e) and (f); Reg. § 1.274-6T(a)(2)

For vehicles not used for personal purposes other than commuting:

- The vehicle is owned or leased by the employer and is provided for use in the employer's business
- For bona fide noncompensatory reasons, the employer requires the employee to commute to and/or from work in the vehicle
- The employer has established a written policy prohibiting personal use other than commuting and de minimis use
- The employer reasonably believes that, except for commuting and de minimis use, no individual uses the vehicle for personal purposes
- The employee is not a control employee (for definition, see "Commuting Rule Not Available for Control Employee" earlier)
- The employer accounts for the commuting use by including the commuting value in the employee's wages. Reg. § 1.274-6T(a)(3)

Written Policy Statements

The employer must maintain a written policy statement that implements a policy restricting personal use of employer-provided vehicles. The Conference Report to P.L. 99-44, Contemporaneous Recordkeeping Requirements Repeal, states that a resolution of a city council, or a provision of state law, or the state constitution qualifies as a written policy statement for the safe harbor provisions.

Employer Monitoring Required

Although detailed recordkeeping is not required, the employer must have some way to prove that the vehicles are being used in accordance with the rules. For example, the employer may use internal controls such as requiring employees using motor pools to sign vehicles out, and signed statements by the employees agreeing to no personal use, or (if applicable) no personal use other than commuting.

15 Equipment and Allowances

This section discusses some common situations involving employee use of equipment and supplies, as well as allowances provided by an employer to pay for them. In general, any equipment provided by the employer that represents ordinary and necessary business expenses, are excludable from income. Allowances paid or reimbursements made by an employer to an employee are excludable. However, these payments must be made under the terms of an accountable plan. IRC §162

As discussed earlier, the accountable plan rules require:

- Business connection – the expenses must qualify as a business expense to the employer and as a deduction on the employee's Form 1040 as an employee business expense, if the employer did not reimburse the expense.
- Substantiation of amount, date and time, place, and business purpose
- Excess returned within a reasonable time Reg. §1.62-2(c)(1)Reg. §1.274-5T; Reg. §1.274-5T(b)(2)

Allowances, reimbursements, or periodic payments that are not accounted for are treated as wages, subject to income tax, social security and Medicare tax withholding.

Example: An employer pays a premium per working hour (sometimes called a “tool allowance”) for employees who provide their own tools. The employees retain ownership and control of their tools and there is no requirement to account to the employer. The employees are not required to substantiate the cost of each item. The premium is not specifically related to the employees’ actual expenses. Reimbursements based on the hours worked cannot meet the accountable plan requirements. Payments of this type do not meet the accountable plan rules and, therefore, are additional compensation includible in income and fully taxable as wages. The employees may be entitled to claim an employee business expense deduction on their personal 1040 tax returns (Form 2106 and Schedule A.)

Work Clothes and Uniform Allowances and Reimbursements

Clothing or uniforms are excluded from wages of an employee if they are:

- Specifically required as a condition of employment, and
- Are not worn or adaptable to general usage as ordinary clothing.

The accountable plan rules must be met for reimbursements or clothing allowances. IRC §162; Reg. §1.62-2(c)(1)

Note: If the clothing qualifies as excludable, then reimbursement for the cleaning costs are also excludable.

Periodic allowance payments made to employees for the purchase and maintenance of specific articles of employer-required uniforms are not taxable to the employees provided that the uniforms are not adaptable to general use, and are not worn for general use. In addition, the employees must substantiate the expenses. If the employer does not require substantiation, the allowance is taxable as wages and subject to withholding when paid.

Example: An agency is required to reimburse certain employees for shoes under a union contract. The shoes are not safety shoes. If the shoes are not safety shoes and are adaptable for general wear, the reimbursements are included as wages to the employees even if the employer is required to make the payment.

Safety Equipment

Safety equipment is excludable from employee wages if the equipment is provided to help the employee to perform his/her job in a safer environment. To be excludable, it is not necessary that the equipment be required by the employer. However, the accountable plan rules must be met for reimbursements for safety equipment. IRC § 162; Reg. §1.62-2(c)(1)

Common examples include a hardhat, an anti-glare screen for computer, or safety shoes.

Example: A government entity pays employees on an annual basis for part of the cost of safety equipment not required by employer. The payments may be excludable even though the safety equipment is not required by the employer. If the equipment helps the employee perform his/her job in a safer environment, it may qualify as an employee business expense. If the expenses are substantiated, the reimbursement would be excludable to the employee.

Mileage Allowances

Reimbursements for expenses of operating employee-owned vehicles are discussed in section 13. The tax treatment of cash allowances or reimbursements for automobile use is governed by the accountable plan rules.

Example: An employer provides an employee with a car or mileage allowance and does not require substantiation. The car allowance is fully taxable as wages to the employee; the accountable plan rules have not been met.

Listed Property

Employers often provide employees with certain equipment for use outside of the employer's premises in the performance of their duties. These items (and other items listed in IRC section 280F) are considered "listed property." Because the property by its nature lends itself to personal use, strict substantiation requirements apply. Employees are required to account for business and personal use. IRC § 274(d); IRC § 280F(d)(4); IRC § 132(d)

Examples include automobiles, property used for recreation, and computers and related equipment. Computers and peripheral equipment used regularly in a place of business are not listed property.

The following rules apply to listed property: IRC § 280F(d)(4)

- Business use is excludable from the wages of the employee as a working condition fringe benefit.
- Personal use is included in the wages of the employee.
- If substantiation requirements are not met, all use is included in the wages of the employee.

Substantiation Requirements

The employee must keep records of business and personal use of listed property in order to determine whether the value of any of the use is included in the employee's wages. IRC § 274(d)

16 Awards and Prizes

Generally, the value of an award or prize given by an employer is taxable to an employee as wages, included on Form W-2, and subject to Federal income tax withholding, social security and Medicare. IRC 74; IRC 3121(a)(20)

If the employer pays the employee's share of taxes on an award, the amount of taxes paid are additional wages to the employee (except for agricultural and domestic services) and are subject to all payroll taxes, as discussed in the previous section. To calculate the tax on employee taxes paid by the employer, see Publication 15-A. RR 86-14

There are three types of non-cash awards that may be excluded from income. Each category has specific requirements that have to be met in order to be excludable. These categories are:

- Certain employee achievement awards
- Certain prizes or awards transferred to charities
- De minimis awards and prizes

To be excludable, an award must be made under a qualified award plan. An award is considered made under a qualified plan if:

- The award is made under an established written plan, and
- The plan does not discriminate in favor of highly compensated employees (generally, for 2012, those exceeding $115,000 compensation)
- The average cost of all employee achievement awards (both qualified and nonqualified awards for length of service and safety) made by the employer during a single year does not exceed $400. Awards of $50 or less are not included in computing the average. Reg. § 1.274-8(c)(5); IRC §414(q)(1); Reg. §1.274-8(c)(5)

Other awards, unless they are qualifying de minimis fringe benefits, are nonqualified awards and are taxable. A worksheet to compute the taxability of an award to an employee is provided in Publication 535, Business Expenses.

The three categories of nontaxable awards are discussed in detail below.

Employee Achievement Awards

An employee achievement award is an item of tangible personal property (not cash) for length-of-service or safety. (Cash awards are always taxable.) The following requirements must be met for an achievement award to be excludable:

- Must be given for length-of-service or safety, and

- Must be awarded as part of a meaningful presentation, and
- Cannot be disguised wages, or made under circumstances that create a significant likelihood that it is disguised wages.

Achievement awards that do not meet these requirements are taxable, as discussed below.

Taxable Safety Achievement Awards

An award will not qualify as a safety achievement award if either of the following applies.

1. It is given to a manager, administrator, clerical employee, or other professional employee.
2. During the tax year, more than 10% of the employees, excluding those listed in (1), have already received a safety achievement award (other than one of very small value). Eligible employees must have worked full-time for a minimum of one year prior to the award. Reg. § 1.274-8(d)(3)

Example: If an agency has 50 eligible employees and six receive safety awards, the sixth award is taxable because 10% of the eligible employees have already received it.

Taxable Length-of-Service Achievement Awards

An award will not qualify as a length-of-service award if either of the following applies.

- The employee received the award during his or her first 5 years of employment.
- The employee received another length-of-service award (other than one of very small value) during the same year or in any of the prior 4 years.

Note: A traditional retirement award is an exception to the 5-year rule. Reg. § 1.274-8(d)(2)

Generally, if an award is taxable to an employee, it is valued at its fair market value (FMV). The taxable amount of an award to an employee depends on whether the award is made under a qualified or nonqualified plan, whether the cost of the award to the employer exceeds the dollar limitations, and the FMV of the award. IRC § 274(j)(2)

Awards Included in Income

Regardless of the cost of an award or its FMV, the following awards are taxable as wages to an employee:

- Cash or cash equivalent awards, such as savings bonds or general merchandise gift certificates
- Recognition awards, cash or non-cash, for job performance unless they are qualifying de minimis fringe benefits
- Awards for performance, such as outstanding customer service, employee of the

- month, or highest productivity
- Achievement awards, cash or non-cash, that do not meet the qualified plan award rules
- Awards for length of service or safety achievement that do not meet the requirements for excludable treatment
- Non-cash prizes (unless de minimis) won by employees from random drawings at employer sponsored events Reg. §1.274-2(c)(4); . §1.274-2(c)(5)

Prizes or Awards Transferred to Charities

Certain prizes and awards given in recognition of charitable, scientific, artistic or educational achievement are not taxable if the recipient transfers them to a charitable organization. IRC §74(b)

The following requirements must apply for a transferred award to be excludable from wages:

- Award is for achievement
- Recipient is selected without entering any contest
- No substantial future services are required
- Recipient transfers the award to a charitable organization recognized under IRC 170(c) prior to receiving the benefit

Example: A college instructor is chosen as teacher of the year by a national education association. He is awarded $5,000, which, before accepting, he directs the education association to transfer to a college scholarship fund at the institution where he teaches. The award is not taxable to the college instructor.

Example: In 2012, an agency presents employee length of service awards to 6 employees for a total cost to the employer of $1,800. The average cost of all awards is $300 ($1,800/6). Since the average cost of all awards does not exceed $400, the awards are considered qualified plan awards provided there is a written plan that does not discriminate in favor of highly paid employees.

De Minimis Awards and Prizes

A prize or award that is not cash or cash equivalent, of nominal value and provided infrequently is excludable from an employee's wages. Prizes or awards that are given frequently to an employee do not qualify as an excludable de minimis award, even if each award is small in value. IRC §132(e)

Examples of Excludable De Minimis Awards

- Nominal gifts for birthdays, holidays
- Holiday turkey and hams

- Flowers, plaques, coffee mugs for special occasions
- Gold watch on retirement
- Parking for employee of the month, if value is less than statutory limit for qualified transportation fringe benefits (see section 3).

“Nominal” for this purpose means small in value, relative to the value of total compensation. There is no set dollar amount in the law for nominal prizes or awards. (The IRS gave advice at least once, in 2001, that a benefit of $100 did not qualify as de minimis.) ILM 200108042

“Cash equivalent” means readily convertible to cash, for example, a voucher for merchandise, a savings bond or gift certificate.

Example: An employer provides dinner at an annual awards banquet for employees. The regulations specifically indicate that occasional group meals are considered nontaxable fringe benefits. Reg. §1.132-6(e)(1)

Cliff Provision

If an employer provides an award that exceeds either the value or frequency limitations for de minimis fringes, the entire award is included in the employee's wages, not just the portion that exceeds the de minimis limits. Reg. §1.132-6(d)(4)

Dollar Limitation

The maximum amount of excludable awards to a single employee during a calendar year is limited to:

- $400 for awards made under a nonqualified plan, or
- $1600 in total for awards made under both qualified and nonqualified plans

Example: An employer only makes awards to employees that are non-cash qualifying length-of-service or safety awards. In order to avoid the extensive recordkeeping and tracking required for determining the taxability of awards, the employer has a policy of not making awards that exceed $400 per employee annually. In this situation, none of the awards would be taxable to the employees.

Example: An employee receives two employee achievement awards during the year. The cost and FMV of the awards were the same.

	Cost and FMV
Nonqualified plan award of a watch	$ 400
Qualified plan award of a stereo	1,350
Total awards	$1,750
Less: Annual limitation	(1,600)
Taxable portion of awards	$ 150

Cost Exceeds Dollar Limitations - Excess Deduction Award

Generally, if an award is taxable to an employee, it is valued at FMV. If the cost to an employer for an award exceeds the plan dollar limitations, either $400 (non-qualified plan) or $1,600 (qualified plan), then the amount included in wages is the greater of:

1. The part of the employer's cost that is more than the plan dollar limitation (but not more than the FMV), or
2. The amount by which the FMV exceeds the amount of the plan dollar limitation. Reg. §1.74-2(b)

Example 1: Excess Deduction Award

An employer pays $520 for golf clubs given to an employee as a nonqualified plan employee achievement award. The fair market value of the award (golf clubs) at the time it is given to the employee is $750.

	Cost	FMV
Award	$520	$750
Less: Limitation	400	400
Excess over limitation	$120	$350

The amount included in taxable wages to the employee is $350, the greater of the cost less the limitation or the FMV less the limitation. If the award had been a qualified plan award, the employee would not have been taxed on any of the value of the award.

Example 2: Excess Deduction Award

An employer pays $395 for golf clubs given to an employee as a nonqualified plan employee achievement award. The fair market value of the clubs at the time the award is given to the employee is $450.

	Cost	FMV
Award	$395	$450
Less: Limitation	400	400
Excess over limitation	$ 0	$ 50

Because the employer's cost of the award does not exceed the $400 limitation for nonqualified awards, the employee is not taxed on the value of the award. Reg. §1.74-2(b)

Awards Funded by Third Party

If funds for awards or prizes are provided by an outside party, the award is taxable in the same way as if provided directly by the employer. If the funds are turned over to the employer to select and distribute the awards, the employer is responsible for all applicable payroll taxes and withholding. IRC §3402(d)

Example: A bank provides funds to a state agency to support a special performance award program. The agency chooses the recipients and distributes the awards. The value of the awards are additional compensation to these employees and reportable on their Forms W-2, subject to payroll taxes and withholding. The treatment would be the same if the outside party were a nonprofit organization or an educational foundation.

Example: A television set, donated by a business to a state agency, is awarded through a random drawing to an employee. The fair market value of the television is considered taxable wages to the employee. Prizes in a random drawing of employees are considered wages. A television set is not considered a de minimis benefit.

In the case where the outside party selects and distributes the award directly to an agency employee without any direction or decision making from agency personnel, then the award is income to the recipient and must be reported. The outside party is required to furnish a Form 1099-MISC to the recipient for a calendar year if the total awarded to that individual in that year has a value of $600 or more.

Example: Special duck prints donated by artists are given away as awards to employees. For purposes of determining the taxable value, the FMV can be determined by an appraisal, by establishing the sales price of similar prints by the artist, or by any other reasonable method. The taxability of the value of the prints to the employees depends on the type of award, dollar limitations, and other specific requirements.

17 Professional Licenses and Dues

Employer reimbursements to employees for the cost of their professional licenses and professional organization dues may be excludable if they are directly related to the employee's job.

Once an employee has completed the education or experience required for a professional license, the expenses necessary to maintain a license or status are considered ordinary and necessary business expenses. If the employer pays these expenses under an accountable plan, and the professional license is related to the position the employee holds with the employer, the value of the benefit is not taxable to the employee.

If paid by an individual, the fees are deductible as a business expense on the individual's Federal income tax return. IRC §162 Reg. §1.62-1T(e)

If paid or reimbursed by an employer for an employee, the fees are a working condition fringe benefit. If paid under an accountable plan, they are excludable from the income of the employee. If paid under a nonaccountable plan, they are included in the income of the employee and are subject to Federal income tax, social security, and Medicare taxes. The employee may deduct the expenses on his or her income tax return. IRC § 132(d); Reg. §1.132-5(a)(1)(v); IRC §62(a)(2)(A); Reg. §1.62-2(c)(2); IRC § 62(c)(1)&(2); Reg. §1.62-2(c)(3)

Example: An employer pays the professional dues for an employee, who is a financial officer, to a national association of finance officers. If the accountable plan rules are met, this is an excludable reimbursement to the employee.

Example. A state agency requires an employee to be a notary. The employee submits the paid receipt for the annual fee to maintain this professional license agency, and the agency reimburses the employee. The reimbursement is not taxable to the employee because it is an ordinary and necessary business expense under IRC Section 162 and paid by the employer under an accountable plan.

Example. A state agency pays the annual CPA license fee for the chief game warden each year. The warden does not use his CPA expertise on the job for the agency. Because the game warden does not use his CPA expertise in his capacity as game warden with this state agency, it is not a working condition fringe benefit. The reimbursement to the game warden is taxable to him and is subject to Federal income and employment taxes.

Business and Professional Organizations

If related to the employer's business, payment or reimbursement of dues to clubs organized for business purposes only, such as business leagues, professional organizations and trade associations is excludable to the employee when the employee is performing duties for the employer that are related to the professional organization's focus or mission. Examples of these organizations include bar and accounting associations, state CPA associations, school business officers, or public service organizations. Reg. §1.274-2(a)(2)(iii)(b); Reg. §1.274-2(b)-2

Entertainment and Recreational Organizations

Club dues and memberships are not allowed as business deductions. If an employer provides these benefits to an employee, they are taxable to the employee and subject to withholding for income tax, social security and Medicare.

The payment of club dues by the employer is a taxable fringe benefit. No business deduction is allowed for club dues. If an employer pays or reimburses an employee for club dues, the amount is taxable to the employee and subject to income tax withholding, social security and Medicare taxes. IRC §274(a)(3)

18 Educational Reimbursements and Allowances

Employers frequently pay, or reimburse employees, for educational expenses they incur. In addition, many educational institutions may provide a benefit in the form of free or reduced cost education to employees. Whether or not the reimbursement or value of the education is excludable from wages to the employee depends on several factors. In some cases, general fringe benefit rules (such as those for working condition benefits), apply. In addition, there are three sections of the Internal Revenue Code (IRC) that permit the payments or reimbursements to be excludable from wages under certain circumstances:

For all employers:

IRC 132(d) – Education as Working Condition Fringe Benefit
IRC 127 - Qualified Educational Assistance Program

For certain other employers:

IRC 117(b) – Qualified Scholarships
IRC 117(d) – Qualified Tuition Reductions

An educational payment that is not exempt from tax under one Code section may be exempt under a different section. Excludable treatment of an educational benefit under IRC §132(d) (working condition fringe benefit) can apply only if benefits under any other Code sections do not apply. A chart at the end of this section provides help in determining whether specific payments or reimbursements for education expenses are excludable.

This section summarizes these provisions for employer-paid education. For more information, see Publication 970, Tax Benefits for Education.

Education Working Condition Fringe Benefit – Section 132(d)

Job-related educational expenses may be excludable from an employee's income as a working condition fringe benefit. A working condition fringe benefit (discussed in detail in section 3) is an excludable benefit of property or services provided by an employer to an employee that, if the employee had paid for it, could have been deducted as an unreimbursed employee business expense on Form 1040. The exclusion is generally available for any form of educational instruction or training that improves or develops the job-related capabilities of an employee. IRC §132(d); Reg. § 1.162-5

For governmental employers, benefits may be available to current employees or independent contractors.

For educational reimbursement to qualify as a working condition fringe benefit, the education must be job-related. It is not required that the employer have a written plan or dollar limitations, and the employer may discriminate in favor of highly-compensated employees. IRC §132(d); Reg. §1.132-1(f)(1)

Job-Related

The educational course must be job-related, and either (a) maintain or improve job skills, or (b) be expressly required by the employer or by law.

Examples of qualifying (excludable) courses include work toward an advanced degree necessary to retain the job or pay level. IRC §132(d); Reg. §1.162-5(a)(1)

To be excludable, the educational course must not:

- Be needed to meet the minimum educational requirements of the current job, or
- Qualify the employee for a new trade or business. Reg. §1.162-5(b)(2); Reg. §1.162-5(b)(3)

Substantiation Requirements for Cash Payments to Employees

If an employee receives cash, the employer must require the employee to:

- Use the amount provided for payment of education expenses that qualify as a working condition fringe benefit,
- Verify that the payment was actually used for such expenses, and
- Return to the employer any unused portion of the payment. Reg. §1.132-5(a)(v)

Employee

For purposes of working condition fringe benefits only, the following are considered employees:

- Current employees
- Independent contractors
- Directors and partners
- Volunteers Reg §1.132-5(r) Reg §1.132-1(b)

Qualifying Educational Expenses

- Tuition, books, supplies, equipment Reg. §1.162-6
- Certain travel and transportation costs Reg. §1.162-5(d)
- Graduate or undergraduate level courses Reg. §1.162-5(a)

Courses Qualifying Employee for New Trade or Business

Generally, education courses that qualify an employee for a new position or specialty within his/her existing trade or business are not considered to be qualifying an employee for a new trade or business. Examples of excludable courses that qualify employees for a new position rather than a new trade or business include:

- Elementary school teacher to principal
- Elementary school teacher to secondary school teacher
- Teacher to guidance counselor

Reg. § 1.162-5(b)(3)

Often, courses needed for acquiring a license or certificate are considered to be leading to a new trade or business. Examples include:

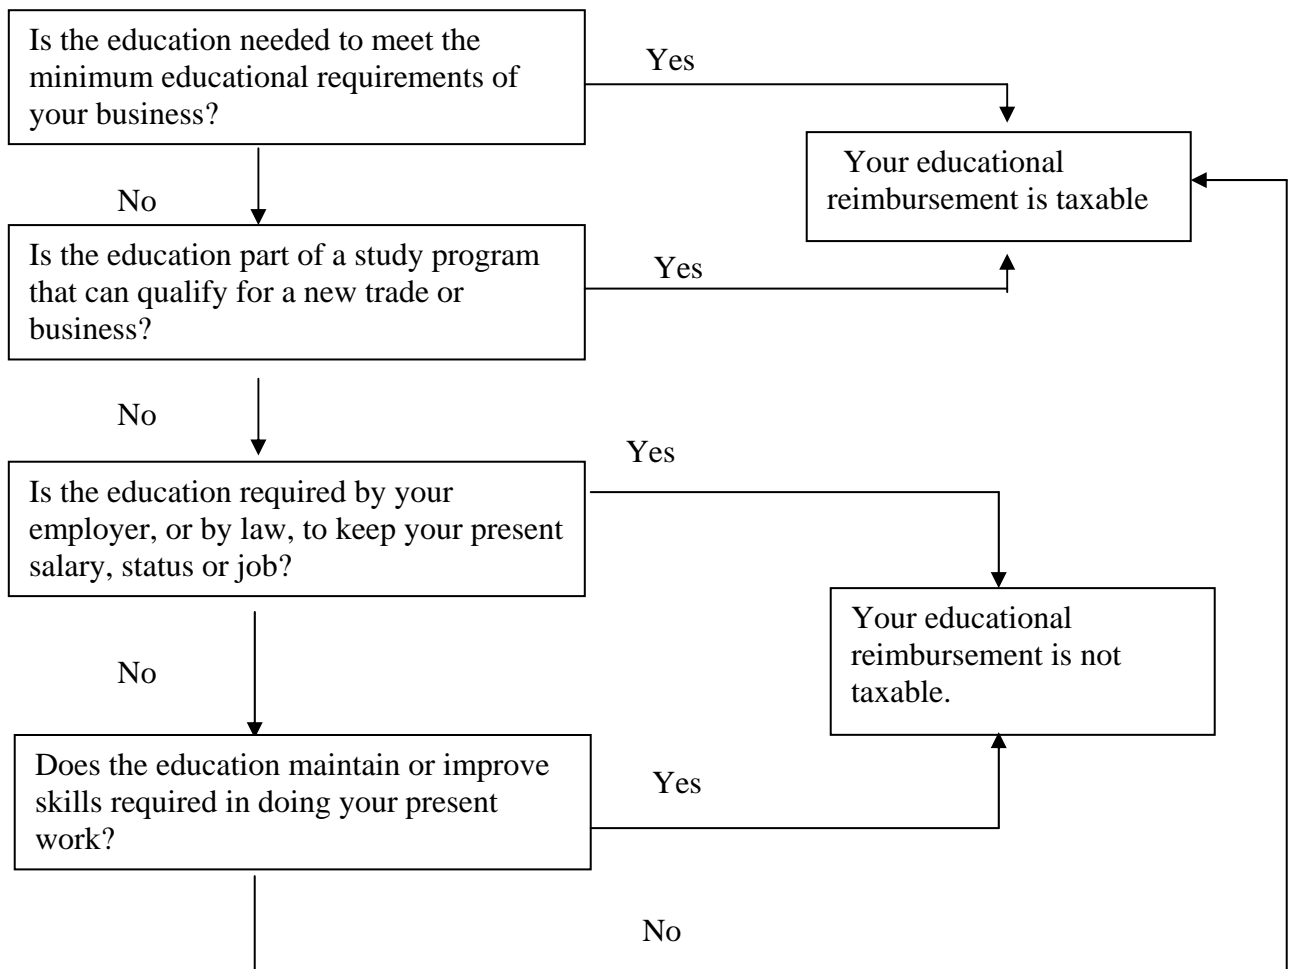

- Accountant to CPA
- CPA to lawyer
- Mechanic to engineer

Example 1: Veronica is a computer technician at a state agency. The agency pays for her to take a graduate computer course at STU University to enhance her current job skills. The class is excludable as a working condition fringe benefit because it is job-related and maintains or improves Veronica's skills, and it does not prepare her for a new trade or business.

Example 2: Due to a teacher shortage, Doug, who has 80 hours of college credits, is given a position as a teacher although the job normally requires 120 hours of credits. Doug is reimbursed by his employer for the expenses of completing the 40 credits at night school while he is teaching. The reimbursement is not excludable as a working condition fringe benefit because the courses are needed to meet the minimum requirements of his present job. (This amount may be excludable under another Code section, i.e., section 127. See Qualified Educational Assistance, later.)

Example 3. Peter, a fiscal technician hired into an Accountant I position, does not have all of the accounting credits he needs for the job. He registers for, and takes, all of the courses required for the position. The courses will improve his job performance, but the primary purpose of taking them is to acquire the minimum requirements for the position. The reimbursement for Peter's classes is not excludable under IRC Section 132(d) because the education is needed to meet the minimum educational requirements of his position. The reimbursement is included in Peter's wages, unless it is excludable under another Code section, i.e. Section 127. See Qualified Educational Assistance, later.)

Working Condition Educational Fringe Benefit -General Guide

Qualified Educational Assistance (Section 127)

Amounts paid or expenses incurred by an employer under an educational assistance plan are excludable from the wages of the employee, if certain requirements are met. Education may be at undergraduate or graduate level. The education is not required to be job-related. IRC §127

The following requirements apply for a qualified educational assistance plan:

- The employer must have a written plan
- The plan may not offer alternative benefits to education
- Assistance does not exceed $5,250 per calendar year for all employers combined

- The plan must not discriminate in favor of highly compensated employees (generally, for 2012, those receiving $115,000 or more)
IRC §127(a)(2); IRC §127(b)(2); Notice 2011-103

Eligible Employees

Individuals who may qualify for the section 127 benefit include current and/or laid off employees, employees retired or on disability, and certain self-employed individuals. Spouses or dependents of employees are not eligible. Reg. §1.127-2(h)

Educational Expenses

Educational expenses includes tuition, books, supplies, equipment necessary for class

Educational expenses do not include tools or supplies that the employee may keep after the course is completed; education involving sports, games, hobbies (unless job-related), meals, lodging, or transportation IRC §127(c)(1)

Example 1. Karen is a secretary at a state agency. She wants to take an undergraduate psychology class at MNO Community College. The state agency has a written educational assistance plan. The state agency pays $250 for the tuition to the community college for the course. Karen receives no taxable income from this benefit because the requirements for an educational assistance plan have been met under IRC 127.

Example 2. Joe, a janitor at a state agency, wants to take a math class leading towards his bachelor's degree. The state agency has a qualified educational assistance plan and reimburses Joe $300 for the course after he verifies the cost. Joe does not have taxable wages from this reimbursement. The fact that he is taking a course leading toward an undergraduate degree is not relevant for qualified educational assistance programs under IRC 127.

Example 3. Tom is a recreation specialist for a municipality. His employer pays for him to take courses toward a license as a soccer referee. If the employer has a qualified plan, Tom does not have taxable income from this benefit, even though the courses he is taking are sports-related. The courses have a reasonable relationship to the business of the employer and this provides an exception to the rule that sports, games and hobby classes are not permitted under educational assistance programs.

Qualified Tuition Reduction - Section 117

Free or reduced tuition for employees of educational institutions may be excludable to employees. The term "qualified tuition reduction" means a tax-free reduction in tuition provided by an eligible educational institution. At the undergraduate level, the education need not be at the same institution where the employee works. Whether a tuition reduction is a qualified tuition reduction, and therefore excludable from income, depends on whether it is for education below or at the graduate level. The qualified tuition reduction must not represent payment for services.

An “educational organization” for this purpose must:

- Maintain a faculty and curriculum, and
- Normally have a regularly enrolled student body on site. IRC §170(b)(1)(A)(ii)

Nondiscrimination

Generally, a qualified tuition reduction cannot discriminate in favor of highly-compensated employees (for 2012, employees with total compensation exceeding $115,000).

IRC 117(d)(3); IRC §414(q)(1)(B)(i); Reg. §1.132-8(f); Notice 2011-103

Eligibility – Below Graduate Level

For purposes of a qualified tuition reduction, an employee may be a:

- Current employee or spouse
- Former employee who retired or left work on disability
- Spouse, widow or widower of deceased employee
- Spouse, widow or widower of employee who retired or left on disability
- Dependent child of employee
- Child of employee, under age 25, with both parents deceased IRC § 117(d)(2)(A)
IRC § 132(h)

Example 1. Carl works for ABC Community College, a division of the State University, as a physics teacher. His two children attend the State University undergraduate program at a reduced tuition. This situation meets the requirements for qualified tuition reduction and does not result in any taxable income for Carl.

Example 2. The facts are the same as in the above example, but in addition to reduced tuition, Carl’s children are receiving free room and board. The tuition reduction remains excludable but the value of the free room and board will be taxed as wages for Carl.

Qualified Tuition Reduction at Graduate Level

Tuition reductions for graduate education are considered “qualified” and are excludable if they are provided by an eligible educational institution to a graduate student performing teaching or research activities for the educational institution. The courses must be taken at the school where the employee is working. The employee must include in income any other tuition reductions received for graduate education IRC §117(d)(5); §170(b)(1)(A)(ii)

Education Below the Graduate Level

Qualified tuition reductions for education below the graduate level (including primary and secondary school) are tax free if provided to the following individuals who are treated as employees.

1. A current employee of the eligible educational institution
2. A former employee who retired or left on disability
3. A widow or widower of an individual who died while an employee
4. A widow or widower of a former employee who retired or left on disability
5. A dependent child or spouse of any person listed in (1) through (4), above IRC 117

Officers, Owners, and Highly Compensated Employees

Qualified tuition reductions apply to officers, owners, or highly compensated employees only if benefits are available to employees on a nondiscriminatory basis. This means that the tuition reduction benefits must be available on substantially the same basis to each member of a group of employees. The group must be defined under a reasonable classification set up by the employer. The classification must not discriminate in favor of owners, officers, or highly compensated employees.

Tuition Waiver for State Employees

Some state laws permit state colleges and universities to waive all or a portion of tuition, services and activities fees for state employees. For example, the benefit is made available to those employed half-time or more in the following classifications for permanent employees:

- Classified and exempt paraprofessional employees of technical colleges,
- Faculty, counselors, librarians, and exempt professional and administrative employees at institutions of higher education.

If the waiver or reduction does not meet the requirements for a qualified tuition reduction, it may still qualify for an exclusion as an educational assistance plan or as a working condition fringe benefit, discussed earlier. IRC §117(d), 127, and 132(d)

Qualified Tuition Reductions and IRC 132

If the tax treatment of an educational expense is expressly provided for in a specific Code section, then it is not covered by IRC 132 (except for section 132(e), de minimis fringe benefits). Because section 117(d) applies specifically to tuition reductions, the exclusions under section 132, such as no-additional-cost benefits, or working condition fringe benefits do not apply to free or discounted tuition provided to employees of an educational institution. Reg. §1.132-1(f)(1)

If the amounts paid (not the value of reduced or free tuition) by the employer for education relating to the employee's trade or business as an employee of the employer is such that, if the employee had paid for the education, the amount paid could be deducted on Form 1040, the costs of the education may be eligible for exclusion as a working condition fringe benefit under section 132. FSA 200231016

Scholarships and Fellowships

Individuals pursuing a course of study or research often receive awards or funds to pay for their educational costs in the form of scholarships, fellowships, stipends, or grants. Regardless of the name given the benefit, the taxability depends on whether the provisions of IRC §117 are met.

The amount is excludable if it is a "qualified" scholarship, and the recipient is a candidate for degree at a qualified educational organization. IRC §117(a)

The amount is taxable if it represents payment for past, present or future services, or payments that fund study or research primarily for benefit of the grantor.

For the scholarship to be nontaxable, no services can be required of the student in order to receive the scholarship or grant, either presently or in the future.

Qualified Scholarship or Fellowship

A qualified scholarship or fellowship is excludable to the extent the amounts are used for qualified tuition and related expenses. This includes fees, books, supplies, and equipment required for a class. This does not include travel, meals or lodging. IRC §117(b)

An educational institution is an organization that exists for an educational purpose, maintains a regular faculty and curriculum, and has a regularly enrolled body of students on site. IRC §170(b)(1)(A)(ii)

Candidate for Degree

A candidate for degree is a:

- Primary or secondary school student, or
- Undergraduate or graduate student pursuing studies or conducting research toward a degree at a college or university
- A full- or part-time student at an accredited educational institution Reg. §1.117-6(b)(4)

Example 1: Jeff, a professor of anthropology, is awarded a fellowship by the college which allows him to devote 100% of his time to a research project of his own choice. The fellowship is designed to award faculty for present or past services. The fellowship is taxable wages to Jeff.

Example 2: Tracy is granted a stipend by the city of Riverdale to attend a paramedic training program. She is required to accept employment with the grantor at the conclusion of the training.

The stipend is taxable wages to Tracy.

Example 3: Mona is a candidate for an advanced medical degree at a university. She receives a fellowship grant of $2,000 per month for performing surgery in a residency program at the university's hospital and a one-time payment of $3,000 for independent research of Mona's own choosing. The $3,000 for research is excludable from income. The $2,000 per month grant to perform surgery represents payment for services and is taxable as wages.

19 Dependent Care Assistance

Under section 129, an exclusion is provided for household and dependent care services provided by an employer for a qualifying person's care and provided to allow the employee to work. The employer can exclude the value of these benefits from employee wages if the employer reasonably believes that the employee can exclude the benefits from gross income.

An employee can generally exclude from gross income up to $5,000 of benefits received under a dependent care assistance program each year. However, the exclusion cannot be more than the smaller of the earned income of either:

- The employee, or
- The employee's spouse.

Nondiscrimination Rule

You cannot exclude dependent care assistance from the wages of a highly compensated employee unless the benefits provided under the program do not favor highly compensated employees (generally, for 2012, those earning $115,000 or more). For more information, see Publication 15-B.

Reporting

Amounts that the employer does not believe will qualify for exclusion are reported as wages on Form W-2, subject to income tax, social security, and Medicare withholding. Amounts that are excluded are shown in box 10 of Form W-2.

Dependent care assistance may be offered as part of a cafeteria plan. For more information, see Publication 15-B and Publication 503, Child and Dependent Care Expenses.

20 Group-Term Life Insurance

An exclusion applies for the cost of up to $50,000 of employer-provided coverage under a group-term life insurance plan, if the plan meets the following requirements:

- It provides a general death benefit that is not included in income.
- It is provided to a group of employees (generally, at least ten full-time employees at some time during the year). Certain exceptions apply to this rule; see the discussion in Publication 15-B).
- It provides an amount of insurance to each employee based on a formula that prevents individual selection. This formula must use factors such as the employee's age, years of service, pay, or position.
- The benefit is provided under a policy carried directly or indirectly by the employer. Even if the employer does not pay any of the policy's cost, the employer is considered to carry it if it arranges for payment of its cost by its employees and charges at least one employee less than, and at least one employee more than, the cost of his or her insurance. IRC 79

Coverage of More Than $50,000

The employer must include in employee's wages the cost of group-term life insurance beyond $50,000 worth of coverage, reduced by the amount the employee paid toward the insurance. The amount to include in employee wages is not the actual cost, but is determined by a table, providing monthly cost per $1000 of coverage in Table 2-2 in Publication 15-B or Table 1 in Regulation 1.79-3(d)(2). Use this table to determine the amount to include in wages of additional coverage.

Dependent Coverage

Group-term life insurance coverage paid by the employer for the spouse or dependents of an employee may be excludable from income as a de minimis fringe benefit if the face amount is not more than $2,000. If the face amount is greater than $2,000, the entire amount of the dependent coverage must be included in income unless the amount over $2,000 is purchased with employee contributions on an after-tax basis. Notice 89-110

Former employees

When group-term life insurance over $50,000 is provided to an employee or former employee (including retirees) after his or her termination, the employee share of social security and Medicare taxes on that period of coverage is paid by the former employee with his or her tax return and is not collected by the employer. The employer is not required to collect those taxes. Use the table providing monthly cost per $1000 of coverage (Table 2-2 in Publication 15-B, or Table 1 in Regulation 1.79-3(d)(2) to determine the amount of social security and Medicare taxes owed by the former employee for coverage provided after separation from service. Report those uncollected amounts separately in box 12 on Form W-2 using codes “M” and “N.” See the Instructions for Forms W-2 and W-3 and the Instructions for Form 941.

See Publication 15-B for more information on how to apply the nondiscrimination tests, and other eligibility rules and reporting requirements for group-term life insurance benefits.

21 Volunteers

Volunteers perform significant services for many governmental entities. The entities may provide the volunteers with various reimbursements, stipends, or other payments. The term “volunteer” generally has no significance in applying the tax law; the general rules for employment tax apply to any compensation received, regardless of the title given to the worker. Reimbursements made under the accountable plan rules for employees, discussed earlier, are excludable from income. In addition, volunteers may be able to deduct business-related expenses against compensation they receive.

As is the case with employees generally, the treatment of the payments for Federal payroll purposes depends on whether the volunteer is an employee or nonemployee, and on the form of payment. The same tests that are used to determine whether other workers are common-law employees apply to workers who are considered volunteers. The discussion below illustrates how the common-law rules may apply to volunteers.

Right To Control

A volunteer is an employee under common law if an entity has the right to direct and control the volunteer's performance, not only as to the results to be accomplished, but also as to the methods by which the results are accomplished. It is the right to control, even if the entity does not exercise the right, that is important. Many factors in an employment relationship may have to be considered before a decision can be made as to whether the entity has the right to direct and control. If an entity does not retain the right to direct and control the details and means of performing the work, the volunteer worker is not an employee.

Evidence of the Right To Control

In determining whether an entity retains the right to control a worker, the IRS generally looks at facts that fall into three main categories of evidence: behavioral control; financial control; and relationship of the parties. The facts considered in these categories include whether the agency provides training or instructions, whether the worker can earn a profit or incur a loss, or whether benefits are provided. All of these elements do not apply in every situation and the degree of importance varies depending on circumstances. The process for determining whether a worker is an employee are addressed in Publication 15-A.

Example: An agency is required to build a watershed in a state forest. Volunteers who are experienced in forestry work have offered their services. The agency asks the volunteers to build the watershed in accordance with environmental laws to the best of their abilities and experience. The agency does not provide other instructions or supervision. These individuals are not employees.

Example: The circumstances are the same as above, except that an agency employee oversees the project. The agency gives instructions, provides the tools and materials, and sets the hours of operation. In this case, the volunteers are common-law employees for tax purposes. See Publication 15-A for more information on the tests for common-law employees.

Volunteer Firefighters

Generally, “volunteer” firefighters are employees of the fire department or district for which they perform services. The usual common-law tests apply to determine their employment status. For example, the relationship between the firefighter and the fire department will generally indicate that the department provides training and direction in how the work will be performed and provides the equipment to perform the work.

Many jurisdictions provide some kind of compensation to volunteer firefighters, or emergency responders, other than payments designated as wages. For instance, volunteer firefighters in some cases receive no amounts designated as salaries, but receive amounts intended to reimburse them for expenses. They may also receive other cash or in-kind benefits, including reductions in property or other local taxes that may be includible in gross income for Federal tax purposes. They may receive no regular payment, but receive a certain amount of reimbursement per call. None of these payments are automatically excluded from income. Volunteer firefighters who are employees can receive tax-free reimbursements for their expenses provided the accountable plan rules are met; any reimbursements that are provided without an accountable plan are includible in income.

Payments under Domestic Volunteer Service Act (Title II and III)

Payments for supportive services or reimbursements of out-of-pocket expenses of volunteers under Title II and III of the Domestic Volunteer Service Act are not wages or compensation and no withholding or reporting is required by the payer. Rev.Rul. 74-322; Rev Rul 78-80

Programs under Title II and III include:

- Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP),
- Foster Grandparent program and other older volunteer programs,
- Service Corps of Retired Executives (SCORE),
- Active Corps of Executives (ACE)

Liability Insurance for Volunteers

Liability insurance provided for volunteers by an entity qualifies as a tax-free working condition fringe benefit. Reg. 1.132-5(r)(3)

Reporting Payments to Volunteers

If a volunteer meets the definition of an employee, the reporting rules are the same as for other employees. Therefore:

- Stipends and other payments for services are wages.

- Reimbursements paid under an accountable plan are not taxable and not reportable.
- Reimbursements not paid under an accountable plan are taxable and reportable on Form W-2 as wages subject to withholding.

If the volunteer does not meet the definition of an employee, no reporting for these types of payments is necessary if the only payments are reimbursements for substantiated expenses. However, if the reimbursements are greater than the expenses, the excess is gross income (unless some other exclusion applies), and is reportable on Form 1099-MISC. Rev. Rul. 80-99; Rev. Rul. 67-30

22 Independent Contractors

Generally, the taxability of fringe benefits or reimbursements paid to independent contractors is similar to that for employees. However, different withholding and reporting requirements apply.

Note: Independent contractors are not eligible for qualified transportation fringe benefits, discussed in section 7. Reg 1.132-9(b) Q-5

Reimbursements for Travel, Transportation and Other Out-of-Pocket Expenses

As with employees, expense reimbursements or advances must meet the accountable plan rules to be excluded from reporting and income. In general, all compensation for services for an independent contractor must be reported on Form 1099-MISC when the amount (excluding reimbursements under an accountable plan) is $600 or more in a calendar year. The amounts are not subject to income or employment tax withholding.

Example: An independent contractor is hired to perform specific services for a set fee, plus out-of-pocket expenses. If the contractor provides adequate substantiation for the out-of-pocket expenses, reimbursements for these expenses will not be reported, either as income on Form 1099 or on the contractor's individual income tax return. The contractor is not permitted to deduct the expenses if they are reimbursed by the payer. If the contractor is not reimbursed, adequate substantiation of the expenses should be retained to claim expenses on the contractor's individual income tax return.

If the individual is considered an independent contractor and does not properly account to the payer for reimbursed expenses, then any advances or reimbursements are to be included on a Form 1099-MISC as taxable nonemployee compensation, along with other payments for their services. Reg. §1.274-5T(h)(2)

Substantiation Requirements

Publication 463 provides information regarding records, substantiation and reporting requirements for independent contractors, such as vendors.

Independent contractors are treated in the same manner as are employees for purposes of working condition fringe benefits. See the discussion of working condition fringe benefits in section 3.

Board and Commission Members

Some of the independent contractor rules and reporting requirements may also apply for board or commission members. Board or commission members are generally considered public officials, and therefore are normally employees; however, under some circumstances, and based on applicable local statutes, they may be independent contractors. Officers, employees and elected officials of states and their political subdivisions and instrumentalities are employees for purposes of Federal income tax withholding. But for FICA (social security and Medicare) purposes, the common-law rules apply to determine whether an individual is an employee.

Public officials are usually subject to a degree of control that is characteristic of an employer-employee relationship. If you are not sure of the employment status of a board or commission member, it may be necessary to consult the statutes or ordinances establishing a position to determine whether that position is a public office. In the case of school boards, the statutes or ordinances usually provide ample evidence that the school board members are public officials. Elected public officials should generally be classified as employees. Appointed public officials may be either employees or independent contractors. See Publication 963 and ILM 200113024 for a discussion of the issue. ILM 200113024

Determining Whether a Worker is an Employee or Independent Contractor

If a worker is an employee, but is working outside of his or her regular employment or job duties with the employer, then for that work the individual could be an independent contractor.

Example: An employee of the department of utilities has been awarded a consulting project for another state agency. Assuming that the other state agency has not retained the right to control the details and means of completing the project, the worker is considered to be an independent contractor for the consulting services and an employee for his position with the department.

Misclassification of Workers

If you classify a worker as an independent contractor and have no reasonable basis for doing so, you may be held liable for employment taxes for that worker. The reclassification may be for more than one tax year and could also include the taxes on fringe benefits that should have been provided, including health insurance, deferred compensation, etc. See Publication 963 for more information. IRC §3509
