Specific Instructions

File Form 1098-Q, Qualifying Longevity Annuity Contract Information, if you issue any contract that is intended to be a qualifying longevity annuity contract (QLAC). Prior to annuitization, the value of a QLAC is excluded from the account balance that is used to determine required minimum distributions. A QLAC is an annuity contract that is purchased from an insurance company for an employee under any plan, annuity, or account described in section 401(a), 403(a), 403(b), or 408 (other than a Roth IRA) or eligible governmental plan under section 457(b), and that, in accordance with the rules of application of paragraph (d) of Regulations section 1.401(a)(9)-6, Q&A-17, satisfies each of the following requirements.

- Premiums for the contract satisfy the requirements of paragraph (b) of Q&A-17.
- The contract provides that distributions under the contract must commence no later than a specified annuity starting date that is no later than the first day of the month after the employee's 85th birthday.
- The contract provides that, after distributions under the contract begin, those distributions must satisfy the requirements of Regulations section 1.401(a)(9)-6 (other than the requirement that annuity payments commence on or before the required beginning date).
- The contract does not make available any commutation benefit, cash surrender right, or other similar feature.
- No benefits are provided under the contract after the death of the employee other than the benefits described in paragraph (c) of Q&A-17.
- When the contract is issued, the contract (or a rider or endorsement with respect to that contract) states that the contract is intended to be a QLAC.
- The contract is not a variable contract under section 817, an indexed contract, or similar contract, except to the extent provided by the Commissioner.

An employee includes the owner of an IRA (other than a Roth IRA), where applicable.

Limitations on Premiums—Plans

The premiums paid with respect to the contract on a date satisfy the limitations requirements if they do not exceed the lesser of the dollar limitation of paragraph (b)(2) of Q&A-17 or the percentage limitation of paragraph (b)(3) of Q&A-17.

Dollar limitation. Effective for tax years beginning in 2020, the dollar limitation is an amount equal to the excess of $135,000 over the sum of (1) the premiums paid on the contract before that date, and (2) the premiums paid on or before that date on any other contract intended to be a QLAC and that is purchased for the employee under the plan, or any other plan, annuity, or account described in section 401(a), 403(a), 403(b), or 408 or eligible governmental plan under section 457(b).

Percentage limitation. The percentage limitation is an amount equal to the excess of 25% of the employee’s account balance under the plan (including the value of any QLAC held under the plan for the employee) as of that date over the sum of (1) the premiums paid before that date on the contract, and (2) the premiums paid on or before that date on any other contract intended to be a QLAC and that is held or was purchased for the employee under the plan.

For purposes of the dollar and percentage limitations on premiums, unless the plan administrator has actual knowledge to the contrary, the plan administrator may rely on an employee’s representation, made in writing or such other form as may be prescribed by the Commissioner, of the amount of the premiums paid for any other contract intended to be a QLAC, but only with respect to premiums that are not paid under a plan, annuity, or contract that is maintained by the employer or an entity that is treated as a single employer with the employer under section 414(b), (c), (m), or (o).

For purposes of the 25% limit, an employee’s account balance on the date on which premiums for a contract are paid is the account balance as of the last valuation date preceding the date of the premium payment, adjusted as follows:

• The account balance is increased for contributions allocated to the account during the period that begins after the valuation date and ends before the date the premium is paid.
• The account balance is decreased for distributions made from the account during that same period.

Limitations on Premiums—IRAs
The premiums paid with respect to the contract on a date satisfy the limitations requirements if they do not exceed the lesser of the dollar limitation of paragraph (b)(2) of Regulations section 1.408-8, Q&A-12 or the percentage limitation of paragraph (b)(3) of Regulations section 1.408-8, Q&A-12.

Dollar limitation. Effective for tax years beginning in 2020, the dollar limitation is an amount equal to the excess of $135,000 over the sum of (1) the premiums paid on the contract before that date, and (2) the premiums paid on or before that date on any other contract intended to be a QLAC and that is purchased for the IRA owner under the IRA, or any other plan, annuity, or account described in section 401(a), 403(a), 403(b), or 408 or eligible governmental plan under section 457(b).

Percentage limitation. The percentage limitation is an amount equal to the excess of 25% of the total account balances of the IRAs (other than Roth IRAs) that an individual holds as the IRA owner (including the value of any QLACs held under those IRAs) as of December 31 of the calendar year immediately preceding the calendar year in which a premium is paid over the sum of (1) the premiums paid before that date on the contract, and (2) the premiums paid on or before that date on any other contract intended to be a QLAC and that is held or was purchased for the individual under those IRAs.

For purposes of the dollar and percentage limitations on premiums, unless the trustee, custodian, or issuer of an IRA has actual knowledge to the contrary, the trustee, custodian, or issuer may rely on the IRA owner’s representation, made in writing or in such other form as may be prescribed by the Commissioner, of the amount of premiums paid for any other contract intended to be a QLAC and that are not paid under the IRA, and the account balance of any other IRA.

Consequences of Excess Premiums
If an annuity contract fails to be a QLAC solely because a premium for a contract exceeds the limits under paragraph (b) of Q&A-17, then the contract is not a QLAC beginning on the date that premium payment is made unless the excess premium is returned to the non-QLAC portion of the employee’s account in accordance with paragraph (d)(1)(ii)(B) of Q&A-17. If the contract fails to be a QLAC, then the value of the contract may not be disregarded under paragraph A-3(d) of Regulations section 1.401(a)(9)-5 as of the date on which the contract ceases to be a QLAC.

If the excess premium is returned to the non-QLAC portion of the employee’s account by the end of the calendar year following the calendar year in which the excess premium was originally paid, then the contract will not be treated as exceeding the limits under paragraph (b) of Q&A-17 at any time, and the value of the contract will not be included in the employee’s account balance under paragraph A-3(d) of Regulations section 1.401(a)(9)-5.

If the excess premium is returned to the non-QLAC portion of the employee’s account after the last valuation date for the calendar year in which the excess premium was originally paid, then the employee’s account balance for that calendar year must be increased to reflect the excess premium in the same manner as an employee’s account balance is increased under paragraph A-2 of Regulations section 1.401(a)(9)-7, to reflect a rollover received after the last valuation date.

Death of Employee
Surviving spouse is the sole beneficiary. If the employee dies on or after the annuity starting date for the contract, the only benefit allowed to be paid (except as provided in paragraph (c)(4) of Q&A-17) after the employee’s death is a life annuity payable to the surviving spouse where the annuity payment is not in excess of 100% of the annuity payment that is payable to the employee.

If the employee dies before the annuity starting date, the only benefit allowed (except as provided in paragraph (c)(4) of Q&A-17) is a life annuity payable to the surviving spouse where the annuity payment is not in excess of 100% of the annuity payment that would have been payable to the employee as of the date that benefits to the surviving spouse start. However, the annuity is permitted to exceed 100% of the annuity payment that would have been payable to the employee to the extent necessary to satisfy the requirement to provide a qualified preretirement survivor annuity (as defined under section 417(c)(2) or ERISA section 205(e)(2)) pursuant to section 401(a)(11)(A)(ii) or ERISA section 205(a)(2).

Any annuity payable to the surviving spouse of an employee who dies before the annuity starting date must start no later than the date on which the annuity payable to the employee would have started under the contract if the employee had not died.

Surviving spouse is not the sole beneficiary. In this situation, the only benefit allowed (except as provided in paragraph (c)(4) of Q&A-17) after death is a life annuity payable to the designated beneficiary where the annuity payment is not in excess of the applicable percentage (determined under paragraph (c)(2)(iii) of Q&A-17) of the annuity payment that is payable (if the employee dies on or after the annuity starting date for the contract) or would have been payable (if the employee dies before the annuity starting date) to the employee. For more information on the applicable percentage, see paragraph (c)(2)(iii) of Q&A-17.

When the employee dies before the annuity starting date, any life annuity payable to a designated beneficiary (other than a surviving spouse) must commence by the last day of the calendar year immediately following the year of the employee’s death.

Multiple beneficiaries. If an employee has more than one designated beneficiary under a QLAC, the rules in paragraph A-2(a) of Regulations section 1.401(a)(9)-8 apply for purposes of paragraphs (c)(1) and (c)(2) of Q&A-17.
Return of Premiums
In general, in lieu of a life annuity payable to a designated beneficiary under paragraph (c)(1) or (c)(2) of Q&A-17, a QLAC is permitted to provide for a benefit paid to a beneficiary after the death of the employee in an amount equal to the excess of the premium payments made with respect to the QLAC over the payments already made under the QLAC.

If a QLAC is providing or will provide a life annuity to a surviving spouse under paragraph (c)(1) of Q&A-17, it is also permitted to provide for a benefit paid to a beneficiary after the death of both the employee and the spouse in an amount equal to the excess of the premium payments made with respect to the QLAC over the payments already made under the QLAC.

A return of premium payment under paragraph (c)(4) of Q&A-17 must be paid no later than the end of the calendar year following the calendar year in which the employee dies. If the employee's death is after the required beginning date, the return of premium payment is treated as a required minimum distribution (RMD) for the year in which it is paid and is not eligible for rollover. See the Instructions for Forms 1099-R and 5498 for further information regarding rollovers and RMDs.

If the return of premium payment is paid after the death of a surviving spouse who is receiving a life annuity (or after the death of a surviving spouse who has not yet begun receiving a life annuity after the death of the employee), the return of premium payment must be made no later than the end of the calendar year following the calendar year in which the surviving spouse dies. If the surviving spouse's death is after the required beginning date for the surviving spouse, then the return of premium payment is treated as an RMD for the year in which it is paid and is not eligible for rollover.
