

Federal Tax Obligations of Non-Profit Corporations

Non-profit status may make an organization eligible for certain benefits, such as state sales, property, and income tax exemptions; however, this corporate status does not automatically grant exemption from federal income tax. To be tax exempt, most organizations must apply for recognition of exemption from the Internal Revenue Service to obtain a ruling or determination letter recognizing tax exemption.

Exemption as a charitable, educational, or religious organization under section 501(c)(3) is generally considered the most favorable status, because donations to 501(c)(3) organizations are tax deductible. To be exempt under that section, an organization must apply within 27 months after the end of the month in which it was created.

Although certain types of organizations are not required to apply for recognition of exemption, many do so in order to clarify their tax status. A user fee must accompany an exemption application. The IRS will not process an application until the user fee is paid.

Applying for Federal Tax Exemption? New User Fees for 2010

An organization that applies for IRS recognition of its tax-exempt status must generally pay an application fee (sometimes called a user fee). These fees will increase for all applications for exemption (Forms 1023, 1024, and 1028) postmarked after January 3, 2010:

- $400 for organizations whose gross receipts are $10,000 or less annually over a 4-year period
- $850 for organizations whose gross receipts exceed $10,000 annually over a 4-year period
- $3,000 for group exemption letters.

A complete schedule of all IRS user fees was published in the annual procedure released in January 2010.
