1.0 Introduction

1.1.1 Purpose
The purpose of this guide is to help users navigate the Political Organization Filing and Disclosure website. The step-by-step instructions walk users through the searching process.

1.1.2 How to Use this Guide
This user guide is divided into multiple sections and documents the procedures for the form search and form download pages. A table of contents is provided at the beginning of the guide as a tool to locate specific page information.

The guide contains screen shots to help users through the process of selecting criteria and initiating search requests and using other features of the site.

For each page, applicable button and page references will be presented in bold type and “Notes” will further explain the instructions.

Additionally, this guide contains a glossary (Appendix A) of some of the most commonly used field terms as a reference. Appendix B contains an article on general search information and tips to support the step-by-step search procedure.

1.1.3 Political Organization Disclosure
The Political Organization Disclosure site can be used for searching paper and electronic filings of Forms 8871 and Forms 8872, as well as paper filings of Form 990. The information below will increase your success in searching and your understanding of the results. The most important tip for successful searching of political organization disclosures is to understand what data is available in the search and from which dates. This information will be provided in this article and on the search pages.

All paper and electronic forms on the Political Organization Disclosure site are in PDF format. To view PDF files you will need the free Adobe Acrobat Reader. For more information on Adobe Acrobat Reader, view the related help section from IRS.gov.

As an alternative to online searching, you may choose to download the entire database of electronically submitted Forms 8871 and Forms 8872. Please note that the downloadable data files do not include any paper submissions of Forms 8871, Forms 8872, or Form 990.

4.0 Advanced Search

4.1.1 Purpose of the Advanced Search Page
The Advanced Search page enables users to be more specific in performing searches for information through the use of more criteria. There are three types of advanced searches: Form 8871, Form 8872, and a combined search of Form 8871 and Form 8872. The advanced search only returns results from electronically filed Forms 8871 and Forms 8872.

The default page for users clicking on the Advanced Search tab is the Search 8871 page.

A user can perform an advanced search using any of the fields on the forms (Name of Organization, Contact Name, Period Begin and End Dates, EIN, etc.). The results of an Advanced Search will be limited by the dates the information in the fields on the forms was collected by the IRS. If an Advanced Search is performed over more than one date range, the results will be limited to the most recent time period.

The Advanced Search Results Page displays information or links to information requested in the Advanced Search. Based on the criteria entered by the user, this page will present different results.

This section contains a sample of an advanced search performed for a custodian’s city/town. The pages for the sample provided are presented in order and document the use of an advanced search to narrow the number of results displayed when a specific location is entered as the search criteria.

- No federal candidate or office holder controls or materially participates in the direction of the organization, solicits contributions to the organization, or directs any of the organization’s disbursements.

For additional information, see § 527(e)(5) and Revenue Ruling 2003-49, 2003-20 I.R.B. 903 (May 19, 2003).

- The aggregate amount of the contributions accepted from that person during the calendar year as of the end of this reporting period was at least $200 and
- Any of those contributions were accepted during this reporting period.

Treat contributions as accepted if the contributor has contracted or is otherwise obligated to make the contribution.

- Name of Contributor’s Employer: If the contributor is an individual, enter the name of the organization or person by whom the contributor is employed (and not the name of his or her supervisor). If the individual is self-employed, enter “Self-employed.” If the contributor is not an individual, enter “N/A”.

An independent expenditure means an expenditure by a person for a communication expressly advocating the election or defeat of a clearly identified candidate for federal office that is not made with the cooperation or prior consent of, in consultation with, or at the request or suggestion of, a candidate for federal office or agent or authorized committee of a candidate for federal office.

T

Type of Report
Check only one box. An organization may choose to file Form 8872 on a monthly basis or on a quarterly/semi-annual basis, but it must file on the same basis for the entire calendar year.

- Quarterly/Semi-annual Report: For Quarterly reports (in even-numbered years), file the first report for the first quarter of the calendar year in which the organization accepts a contribution or makes an expenditure. In addition, the organization may have to file a pre-election report, a post-general election report, or both. For Semi-annual reports (in odd-numbered years), the organization must file a mid-year report and a year-end report. Monthly Report: If the organization is filing on a monthly basis, enter the month for which this report is being filed. File the first report for the first month of the calendar year in which the organization accepts a contribution or makes expenditure. This report must reflect all reportable contributions accepted and expenditures made during the month for which the report is being filed. During a year in which a regularly scheduled general election is held, do not check this box to report October, November, or December activity. Instead, file a pre-election report, post-general election report, and a year-end report.

- Pre-election Report: For organizations that choose to file quarterly, this report must be filed before any election for which the organization made a contribution or expenditure with respect to a candidate for federal office. For organizations that choose to file monthly, this report must be filed in lieu of the October monthly report in even-numbered years. This report must reflect all reportable contributions accepted and expenditures made through the 20th day before the election. If the organization is filing a pre-election report also indicate the type of election (primary, general, convention, special, or run-off), the date of the election, and the state in which the election was held.
- Post-general Election Report: This report must reflect all reportable contributions accepted and expenditure made through the 20th day after the general election. If the organization is filing a post-general election report, indicate the date of the election and the state in which the election was held.

An election year is any year in which a regularly scheduled general election for federal office is held (i.e., any even-numbered year). A non-election year is therefore any odd-numbered year.
General Search Information and Tips

In both the basic and advanced search, the more information provided in the search query will produce more refined results because searches on the Political Organization Disclosure site are “AND” queries. This means that there is an implied AND between each term entered. For example, when conducting an advanced search for an organization with an officer named “John Smith,” you will return more refined results if you type “John Smith” rather than only “John” or “Smith.” Conversely, using the previous search example, if you are uncertain of the officer’s first name, entering only “Smith” will return all names containing “Smith,” thus allowing you to scan the results to find the target organization.

None of the search fields on the Political Organization Disclosure site are case sensitive. All words are understood as lower case (not capitalized) during searching. Therefore, searching with the phrases “JOHN SMITH,” “John Smith,” or “john smith” will all produce the same results. All of these searches will return records containing “John Smith” regardless of the case in which it exists on the site.

Wild Card Searching

The Political Organization Disclosure site allows “wild card” searches. To conduct a wild card search, use an asterisk (*) to truncate a word or phrase to the portion you require in your results. The asterisk represents a wild card because it stands for ANY characters. There are three types of wild card searches: Right Truncation, Left Truncation, and Middle Truncation.

Right Truncation

Right truncation occurs when you end a word or phrase with a wild card character. It results in a search for words matching the characters before the asterisk, and ignoring all characters to the right. For example, a search containing the phrase “Smith” may produce results containing “Smith,” “Smithson,” “Smith for President,” etc.

Left Truncation

Left truncation occurs when you begin a word or phrase with a wild card character. It results in a search for words matching the characters after the asterisk, and ignoring all characters to the left. For example, a search containing the phrase "tion" may produce results containing “organization,” “relation,” “gas station,” etc.

Middle Truncation

Middle truncation occurs when you place a wild card character in the middle of a word or phrase. It results in a search for words matching the characters before and after the asterisk, and ignoring all characters in the middle. For example, a search containing the phrase "orgtion" may produce results containing “organization,” “organized nation,” etc.

Where in the search the asterisk or wild card is placed affects the search results. The information entered in a field by a filer is treated as a single data “string.” The Political Organization Disclosure site searches for exact words in the order you enter them. The following examples illustrate various searches including “wild card” searches. Generally, a search with fewer words yields more results.

for the existence (anywhere in the field) of the exact string “John Smith”. The actual data is “John B. Smith”.

</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td></td>
<td>The query is looking for strings beginning with ANYTHING, and ending with “John B Smith”. This string ends with John B Smith, MD”.</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>

Exact and Partial String Searching
The Political Organization Disclosure site searches for exact words and phrases in the order you enter them, regardless of where they exist in the target string. For example, searching on “John Smith” may produce results containing “John Smith,” “Elect John Smith,” “John Smith for President.” However, using “John Smith” as the query will not return “John A. Smith” or “John Locksmith” in the results.

Exact Match Searching
When you only want a specific phrase in your results, surrounding the word or phrase with quotation marks will restrict your results to exact matches. For example, searching the organization name field with “John Smith for President” (as appears – surrounded by quotation marks) will produce only the single organization named John Smith for President. In this example, the search results would not return “John Smithson for President,” “John Smith for President 2004,” or “John Smith for Vice-President.”

Basic Search Details
The Basic Search is an easy way to find all electronic submissions of Form 8871 and Form 8872 and paper submissions of Form 8871, Form 8872, and Form 990. All paper and electronic filings contain searchable data for the Organization’s Name field, Employer Identification Number (EIN) field, and the date the form was originally posted to the site (Date Posted field). To conduct a basic search, simply enter the terms into one or more of the fields and click the “Submit Basic Search” button. If you want to reset your search, click the “Reset Search” button.
Basic Search Results Explained
Upon submitting a basic search, a results page will display a listing of the names and EINs for organizations that have filed forms meeting your search criteria. To view the actual forms, click the name of the desired organization. The resulting page will display, in detail, the organization’s latest information and a listing of its filings that meet your search criteria.

- To view an Adobe PDF version of a specific filing, click on the word "Paper" or "Electronic" in the Submission Type column next to the appropriate form. The Submission Type refers to how the filing was made (either electronically through the web site or by mailing a paper form).
- To sort the results by a particular column, click on the column heading. Clicking once will sort the list in ascending order, while clicking a second time will sort the list in descending order.
- The list of filings in your results will be limited to 10 per page. Use the page numbers or the “Next” and “Prev” links to view all of the results pages.

Advanced Search Details
There are three types of Advanced Searches: the Advanced 8871 Search, the Advanced 8872 Search, and the Combined 8871 and 8872 Search. Advanced searches are limited to information available from electronically filed forms (not forms filed on paper). In all three advanced searches, you can search any or all fields contained on the electronically filed form (such as Name of Organization, EIN, Contact Name, Amount of Contribution, etc) for criteria that you specify. The results will be limited by the date the information was made available, as the legal requirements and the reporting methods (paper or electronic filing) changed. To help you search, the advanced search pages indicate which information is available from which dates. Therefore, if you search fields across multiple date ranges, your search results will be limited to the most recent date range.

Advanced 8871 Search Details
The Advanced 8871 Search can find all electronic submissions of Form 8871. The Advanced 8871 Search allows the use of ANY or ALL Form 8871 fields in your query.
