Introduction

IRS Multilingual websites are a set of websites that opens the door to taxpayers whose primary language is not English. These websites, available through IRS.gov, provide taxpayers with basic tax information in Spanish, Chinese, Korean, Vietnamese, and Russian.

Background Information

Providing service to limited English proficient (LEP) taxpayers is an IRS responsibility pursuant to Presidential Executive Order 13166. This order requires that access to Federal benefits and services be provided to all eligible recipients regardless of the language they speak.

IRS is expanding its use of online services to meet the needs of taxpayers, practitioners, businesses, and others. The IRS Multilingual websites broaden online services from English to a wider population of LEP taxpayers, focusing on those who speak Spanish, Russian and Asian languages.

Highlights and Benefits

The IRS Multilingual websites provides:

- Easy access to tax-related information in Spanish, Chinese, Vietnamese, Korean, and Russian.
- Tax topics for individuals, businesses, and international taxpayers.
- Useful information that will assist Limited English proficient taxpayers in knowing their rights and responsibilities as taxpayers.
- Content in multiple formats so taxpayers can read files online or print them for future reference.
- Easy to use links to other tax-related information in IRS.gov.
