Instructions

Please read Publication 54, Tax Guide for U.S. Citizens Abroad, before completing this form or filing your United States income tax return. You can get copies from offices of District Directors of Internal Revenue, from most United States embassies and consulates, or by writing to the Internal Revenue Service Center, Philadelphia, PA 19255, U.S.A.

Purpose of Form.—If you expect to qualify for the deduction of excess foreign living expenses or the exclusion of income earned in a hardship area camp using the bona fide residence or physical presence rules, you may request an extension of time to file your United States income tax return. (U.S. citizens and U.S. resident aliens may qualify under the physical presence rules, but only U.S. citizens may qualify under the bona fide residence rules.) Form 2350 must be filed by the due date for filing your return. The due date for a 1979 calendar year return is April 15, 1980. A two month automatic extension to June 15 is granted to U.S. citizens residing or traveling outside the United States and Puerto Rico.

Generally, you are granted an extension to 30 days beyond the date on which you can reasonably expect to qualify for the special tax treatment.

Generally, if you will be allocating your moving expenses, you may be granted an extension to 90 days after the close of the year following the year of first arrival in the foreign country or the 30-day extension provided above, whichever is later.

An extension of time to file a return after the automatic two month extension, unless it specifies otherwise, does not extend the time for payment of the tax. You will be charged a penalty for the late payment of tax (other than estimated tax) of one-half percent a month or part of a month, unless you can show reasonable cause for not paying on time. The penalty applies to any unpaid tax shown on your return.

Interest will be charged from the regular due date of the return until the tax is paid. The interest will be charged even if you show reasonable cause.

Where to File.—File two copies of this form with either:

- The Internal Revenue Service Center, Philadelphia, PA 19255, or
- The local Internal Revenue Service Representative or other Internal Revenue Service Employee.

Definition of Bona Fide Resident.—No specific rule can be stated for determining whether a U.S. citizen is a bona fide resident of a foreign country, because the determination involves your intentions regarding the length and nature of your stay. Your intention to establish a bona fide residence in a foreign country may be shown by words and acts, but where they conflict, more emphasis will be placed on the acts than on the words. Generally, if you go to a foreign country for a definite but temporary purpose, and return to the United States after you have accomplished the purpose, you are not a bona fide resident of that foreign country. However, if an extended and indefinite stay is necessary for you to accomplish the purpose, and to that end you make your home in the foreign country, you may be a bona fide resident of the foreign country for Federal income tax purposes. The term "foreign country" does not include a possession of the United States.

Definition of Physical Presence in Foreign Country.—In general, you must be physically present in a foreign country or countries for a total of at least 510 full days during any period of 18 consecutive months.

In figuring the minimum of 510 full days presence in any foreign country or countries, add all separate periods of presence during the 18-month period. The 510 full days need not be consecutive, but may be interrupted by periods during which you are traveling over international waters or are otherwise not present in a foreign country.

Requests for Any Other Reason.—To request an extension of time to file for any reason other than the fact that you expect to qualify for special tax treatment, you should file Form 2688.

Note: The Internal Revenue Code provides for a penalty for underpayment of estimated tax. If you do not qualify for special tax treatment, you may be charged a penalty.
