(Rev. November 1998)

Possible Federal Tax Refund Due to the Earned Income Credit (EIC)

What Is the EIC?

The EIC is a refundable tax credit for certain workers. For 1998, the EIC can be as much as $2,271 if you have one qualifying child; $3,756 if you have more than one qualifying child; $341 if you don't have a qualifying child.

Who is a qualifying child? Any child who meets all three of the following conditions is a qualifying child.

1. The child is your son, daughter, adopted child, stepchild, foster child, or a descendant (for example, your grandchild) of your son, daughter, or adopted child. A child who is married at the end of 1998 generally must be claimed as your dependent to be a qualifying child.
2. The child was under age 19 at the end of 1998, or under age 24 at the end of 1998 and a full-time student, or any age at the end of 1998 and permanently and totally disabled.
3. The child lived with you in the United States for over half of 1998 (for all of 1998 if a foster child). If the child did not live with you for the required time because the child was born or died in 1998, the child is considered to have lived with you for all of 1998 if your home was the child's home for the entire time he or she was alive in 1998.

A change to note. You cannot claim the EIC if your 1998 investment income (such as interest, dividends, and net nonbusiness income from rents and royalties) is over $2,300. See your 1998 income tax return instructions for more information.

Who May Claim the EIC

You may be able to claim the EIC for 1998 if you worked and all three of the following conditions apply. But you cannot claim the EIC if you file either Form 2555 or Form 2555-EZ (relating to foreign earned income). You also cannot claim the EIC if you are a nonresident alien for any part of 1998 unless you are married to a U.S. citizen or resident and elect to be taxed as a resident alien for the entire year.

1. Your 1998 earned income and modified AGI (adjusted gross income) are both under $26,473 if you have one qualifying child; under $30,095 if you have more than one qualifying child; under $10,030 if you do not have a qualifying child.

Note: Earned income for this purpose does not include amounts inmates in penal institutions are paid for their work. For most people, modified AGI is the same as adjusted gross income. But see your 1998 tax return instructions to find out how to figure modified AGI if you received tax-exempt interest; nontaxable payments from a pension, annuity, or an IRA; or you file Form 1040.

2. Your filing status is any status except married filing a separate return.

3. You (and your spouse if filing a joint return) were not a qualifying child of another person.

If you do not have a qualifying child, you must also meet these conditions.

- You (or your spouse if filing a joint return) were at least age 25 but under age 65 at the end of 1998.
- You (and your spouse if filing a joint return) cannot be claimed as a dependent on someone else's 1998 tax return.
- Your home (and your spouse's if filing a joint return) was in the United States for over half of 1998.

Note: If you are in the military on extended active duty outside the United States, your home is considered to be in the United States during that duty period and you may be able to claim the EIC.

More information? See the 1998 instructions for Form 1040, 1040A, or 1040EZ and Pub. 596, Earned Income Credit. You can get these items from IRS offices or by calling 1-800-829-3676.

How To Claim the EIC

If you are eligible, claim the EIC on your 1998 tax return. If you have a qualifying child, you must fill in Schedule EIC and attach it to your return. You must show the child's social security number on Schedule EIC.

If eligible, you can claim the EIC to get a refund even if you have no tax withheld from your pay or owe no tax. For example, if you had no tax withheld in 1998 and owe no tax but are eligible for a credit of $791, you must file a 1998 return to get the $791 refund.

EIC with your pay. If you have a qualifying child and are eligible to claim the EIC for 1999, you may be able to get part of it in advance with your pay. For details, get Form W-5, Earned Income Credit Advance Payment Certificate, from your employer or by calling 1-800-829-3676. If you get the EIC with your pay, you must file a 1999 tax return.
