What’s New for 2006

Qualified Reservist Distributions. The additional 10% tax on early distributions does not apply to a qualified reservist distribution. A qualified reservist distribution is a distribution from an IRA or an elective deferral account made after September 11, 2001, to a military reservist or a member of the National Guard who has been called to active duty for at least 180 days or for an indefinite period. All or part of a qualified reservist distribution can be recontributed to an IRA.

Qualified Roth contribution program. For tax years beginning after December 31, 2005, your 401(k) plan may allow an employee to contribute to a qualified Roth contribution program. Under this program, an employee can designate all or a portion of his or her elective deferrals as after-tax Roth contributions.

Compensation limit. For 2006, the maximum compensation used for figuring contributions and benefits increases to $220,000. This amount increases to $225,000 in 2007.

Elective deferrals. The limit on elective deferrals increases to $15,000 for tax years beginning in 2006 and then increases to $15,500 in 2007. These new limits will apply for participants in SARSEPs, 401(k) plans (excluding SIMPLE plans), and deferred compensation plans of state or local governments and tax-exempt organizations. The $15,500 figure is subject to cost-of-living increases after 2007.

Catch-up contributions. A plan can permit participants who are age 50 or over at the end of the calendar year to also make catch-up contributions. The catch-up contribution limit for 2006 and 2007 is $5,000. The limit is subject to cost-of-living increases after 2007. The catch-up contributions a participant can make for a year cannot exceed the lesser of the following amounts.

- The catch-up contribution limit.
- The excess of the participant’s compensation over the elective deferrals that are not catch-up contributions.

SIMPLE plan salary reduction contributions. The $10,000 limit on salary reduction contributions remains the same for 2006. This limit increases to $10,500 in 2007.

Catch-up contributions. A SIMPLE plan can permit participants who are age 50 or over at the end of the calendar year to make catch-up contributions. The catch-up contribution limit for 2006 and 2007 is $2,500. The limit is subject to cost-of-living increases after 2006. The catch-up contributions a participant can make for a year cannot exceed the lesser of the following amounts.

- The catch-up contribution limit.
- The excess of the participant’s compensation over the salary reduction contributions that are not catch-up contributions.

What’s New for 2007

Rollovers by nonspouse beneficiaries. For distributions after December 31, 2006, non-spouse designated beneficiaries may be able to make direct trustee-to-trustee transfers from eligiable retirement plans of deceased employees to their own IRAs. The transfer will be treated as an eligible rollover distribution and the receiving IRA will be treated as an inherited IRA.

Rollover of after-tax contributions. For tax years beginning after December 31, 2006, par-cipants in a qualified plan or a section 403(b) plan can roll over after-tax contributions to another qualified plan or section 403(b) plan provided the rollover is made through a direct trustee-to-trustee transfer and the receiving plan separately accounts for the rollover.

Retirement savings contributions credit. The retirement savings contributions credit, originally set to terminate after December 31, 2006, was made permanent in the Pension Protection Act of 2006. For further information see Retirement savings contributions credit in Reminders.

Reminders

Credit for startup costs. You may be able to claim a tax credit for part of the ordinary and necessary costs of starting a SEP, SIMPLE, or qualified plan. The credit equals 50% of the cost to set up and administer the plan and educate employees about the plan, up to a maximum of $500 per year for each of the first 3 years of the plan. To claim this credit, you must choose to start claiming the credit in the tax year before the tax year in which the plan becomes effective.

You must have had 100 or fewer employees who received at least $5,000 in compensation from you for the preceding year. At least one participant must be a non-highly compensated employee. The employees generally cannot be substantially the same employees for whom contributions were made or benefits accrued under a plan of any of the following employers in the 3-tax-year period immediately before the first year to which the credit applies.

1. You.
2. A member of a controlled group that includes you.
3. A predecessor of (1) or (2).

The credit is part of the general business credit, which can be carried back or forward to other tax years if it cannot be used in the current year. However, the part of the general business credit attributable to the small employer pension plan startup cost credit cannot be carried back to a tax year beginning before January 1, 2002. You cannot deduct the part of the startup costs equal to the credit claimed for a tax year, but you can choose not to claim the allowable credit for a tax year.

To take the credit, get Form 8881, Credit for Small Employer Pension Plan Startup Costs, and the instructions.

User fee. The user fee for requesting a determination letter does not apply to certain requests made by employers who have 100 or fewer employees, at least one of whom is a non-highly compensated employee participating in the plan. See User fee under Setting Up a Qualified Plan in chapter 4.

Retirement savings contributions credit. Retirement plan participants (including self-employed individuals) who make contributions to a plan may qualify for the retirement savings contributions credit. The amount of the credit is based on the contributions participants make and their credit rate. The maximum contribution eligible for the credit is $2,000. The credit rate can be as low as 10% or as high as 50%, depending on the participant’s adjusted gross income. The credit also depends on the participant’s filing status. Form 8880, Credit for Quali-tied Retirement Savings Contributions, and the instructions explain how to claim the credit. In addition, the income limits for the credit are subject to indexing for inflation.

Photographs of missing children. The Internal Revenue Service is a proud partner with the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children. Photographs of missing children selected by the Center may appear in this publication on pages that would otherwise be blank. You can help bring these children home by looking at the photographs and calling 1-800-THE-LOST (1-800-843-5678) if you recognize a child.

Introduction

This publication discusses retirement plans you can set up and maintain for yourself and your employees. In this publication, “you” refers to the employer. See chapter 1 for the definition of the term employer and the definitions of other terms used in this publication. This publication covers the following types of retirement plans.

- SEP (simplified employee pension) plans.
- SIMPLE (savings incentive match plan for employees) plans.
- Qualified plans (also called H.R. 10 plans or Keogh plans when covering self-employed individuals), including 401(k) plans.
- SEP, SIMPLE, and qualified plans offer you and your employees a tax-favored way to save for retirement. You can deduct contributions you make to the plan for your employees. If you are a sole proprietor, you can deduct contributions you make to the plan for yourself. You can also deduct trustees’ fees if contributions to the plan do not cover them. Earnings on the contributions are generally tax free until you or your employees receive distributions from the plan.

Under a 401(k) plan, employees can have you contribute limited amounts of their before-tax (after-tax, in the case of a qualified Roth contribution program) pay to the plan. These amounts (and the earnings on them) are generally tax free until your employees receive distributions from the plan or, in the case of a qualified distribution from a designated Roth account, completely tax free.

What this publication covers. This publication contains the information you need to understand the following topics.

- What type of plan to set up.
- How to set up a plan.
- How much you can contribute to a plan.
- How much of your contribution is deductible.
- How to treat certain distributions.
- How to report information about the plan to the IRS and your employees.

Basic features of retirement plans. Basic features of SEP, SIMPLE, and qualified plans are discussed below. The key rules for SEP, SIMPLE, and qualified plans are outlined in Table 1.

SEP plans. SEPs provide a simplified method for you to make contributions to a retirement plan for your employees. Instead of setting up a profit-sharing or money purchase plan with a trust, you can adopt a SEP agreement and make contributions directly to a traditional individual retirement account or a traditional individual retirement annuity (SEP-IRA) set up for each eligible employee.
SIMPLE plans. A SIMPLE plan can be set up by an employer who had 100 or fewer employees who received at least $5,000 in compensation from the employer for the preceding calendar year and who meets certain other requirements. Under a SIMPLE plan, employees can choose to make salary reduction contributions rather than receiving these amounts as part of their regular pay. In addition, you will contribute matching or nonelective contributions. The two types of SIMPLE plans are the SIMPLE IRA plan and the SIMPLE 401(k) plan. Qualified plans. The qualified plan rules are more complex than the SEP plan and SIMPLE plan rules. However, there are advantages to qualified plans, such as increased flexibility in designing plans and increased contribution and deduction limits in some cases.

Definitions You Need To Know

Certain terms used in this publication are defined below. The same term used in another publication may have a slightly different meaning.

Annual additions. Annual additions are the total of all your contributions in a year, employee contributions (not including rollovers), and forfeitures allocated to a participant’s account.

Annual benefits. Annual benefits are the benefits to be paid yearly in the form of a straight life annuity (with no extra benefits) under a plan to which employees do not contribute and under which no rollover contributions are made.

Business. A business is an activity in which a profit motive is present and economic activity is involved. Service as a newspaper carrier under age 18 or as a public official is not a business. However, a service as a newspaper dealer or as a sharecropper under an owner-tenant arrangement is a business.

Common-law employee. A common-law employee is any individual who, under common law, would have the status of an employee. A leased employee can also be a common-law employee.

A common-law employee is a person who performs services for an employer who has the right to control and direct the results of the work and the way in which it is done. For example, the employer:

- Provides the employee’s tools, materials, and workplace, and
- Can fire the employee.

Common-law employees are not self-employed and cannot set up retirement plans for their earnings from those employments, even though their earnings are treated as self-employment income.

However, an individual may be a common-law employee and a self-employed person as well. For example, an attorney can be a corporate common-law employee during regular working hours and also practice law in the evening as a self-employed person. In another example, a minister employed by a congregation for a salary is a common-law employee even though the salary is treated as self-employment income for social security tax purposes. However, fees reported on Schedule C (Form 1040), Profit or Loss From Business, for performing marriages, baptisms, and other personal services are self-employment earnings for qualified plan purposes.

Compensation. Compensation for plan allocations is the pay a participant received from you for personal services for a year. You can generally define compensation as including all the following payments.

1. Wages and salaries.
2. Fees for professional services.
3. Other amounts received (cash or noncash) for personal services actually rendered by an employee, including, but not limited to, the following items.
   a. Commissions and tips.
   b. Fringe benefits.
   c. Bonuses.

For a self-employed individual, compensation means the earned income, discussed later, of that individual.

Compensation generally includes amounts deferred in the following employee benefit plans. These amounts are elective deferrals.

- Qualified cash or deferred arrangement (section 401(k) plan).
- Salary reduction agreement to contribute to a tax-sheltered annuity (section 403(b) plan), a SIMPLE IRA plan, or a SARSEP.
- Section 457 nonqualified deferred compensation plan.
- Section 125 cafeteria plan.
- Section 402A designated Roth contributions.

However, an employer can choose to exclude elective deferrals under the above plans from the definition of compensation. The limit on elective deferrals is discussed in chapter 2 under Salary Reduction Simplified Employee Pension (SARSEP) and in chapter 4.

Other options. In figuring the compensation of a participant, you can treat any of the following amounts as the employee’s compensation.

- The employee’s wages as defined for income tax withholding purposes.
- The employee’s wages you report in box 1 of Form W-2, Wage and Tax Statement.
- The employee’s social security wages (including elective deferrals).

Compensation generally cannot include either of the following items.

- Reimbursements or other expense allowances (unless paid under a nonaccountable plan).
- Deferred compensation (either amounts going in or amounts coming out) other than certain elective deferrals unless you choose not to include those elective deferrals in compensation.

Contribution. A contribution is an amount you pay into a plan for all those participating in the plan, including self-employed individuals. Limits apply to how much, under the contribution formula of the plan, can be contributed each year for a participant.

Deduction. A deduction is the plan contributions you can subtract from gross income on your federal income tax return. Limits apply to the amount deductible.

Earned income. Earned income is net earnings from self-employment, discussed later, from a business in which your services materially helped to produce the income. You can also have earned income from property your personal efforts helped create, such as royalties from your books or inventions. Earned income includes net earnings from selling or otherwise disposing of the property, but it does not include capital gains. It includes income from licensing the use of property other than goodwill.

Earned income includes amounts received for services by self-employed members of recognized religious sects opposed to social security benefits who are exempt from self-employment tax.

If you have more than one business, but only one has a retirement plan, only the earned income from that business is considered for that plan.

Employer. An employer is generally any person for whom an individual performs or did perform any service, of whatever nature, as an employee. A sole proprietor is treated as his or her own employer for retirement plan purposes. However, a partner is not an employer for retirement plan purposes. The partnership is treated as the employer of each partner.

Highly compensated employee. A highly compensated employee is an individual who:

- Owns more than 5% of the interest in your business at any time during the year or the preceding year, or
- For the preceding year, received compensation from you of more than $95,000 if the preceding year is 2005, $100,000 if the preceding year is 2006 or 2007) and, if you so choose, was in the top 20% of employees when ranked by compensation.

Leased employee. A leased employee who is not your common-law employee must generally be treated as your employee for retirement plan purposes if he or she does all the following.

- Provides services to you under an agreement between you and a leasing organization.
- Has performed services for you (or for you and related persons) substantially full time for at least 1 year.
- Performs services under your primary direction or control.

Exception. A leased employee is not treated as your employee if all the following conditions are met.

Note. All references to “section” in the following discussions are to sections of the Internal Revenue Code (which can be found at most libraries) unless otherwise indicated.
1. Leased employees are not more than 20% of your non-highly compensated work force.

2. The employee is covered under the leasing organization’s qualified pension plan.

3. The leasing organization’s plan is a money purchase pension plan that has all the following provisions.
   a. Immediate participation. (This requirement does not apply to any individual whose compensation from the leasing organization in each plan year during the 4-year period ending with the plan year is less than $1,000.)
   b. Full and immediate vesting.
   c. A nonintegrated employer contribution rate of at least 10% of compensation for each participant.

However, if the leased employee is your common-law employee, that employee will be your employee for all purposes, regardless of any pension plan of the leasing organization.

Net earnings from self-employment. For SEP and qualified plans, net earnings from self-employment is your gross income from your trade or business (provided your personal services are a material income-producing factor) minus allowable business deductions. Allowable deductions include contributions to SEP and qualified plans for common-law employees and the deduction allowed for one-half of your self-employment tax.

Net earnings from self-employment do not include items excluded from gross income (or their related deductions) other than foreign earned income and foreign housing cost amounts.

For the deduction limits, earned income is net earnings for personal services actually rendered to the business. You take into account the income tax deduction for one-half of self-employment tax and the deduction for contributions to the plan made on your behalf when figuring net earnings.

Net earnings include a partner’s distributive share of partnership income or loss (other than separately stated items, such as capital gains and losses). It does not include income passed through to shareholders of S corporations. Guaranteed payments to limited partners are net earnings from self-employment if they are paid for services to or for the partnership. Distributions of other income or loss to limited partners are not net earnings from self-employment.

For SIMPLE plans, net earnings from self-employment is the amount on line 4 of Short Schedule SE (Form 1040), Self-Employment Tax, before subtracting any contributions made to the SIMPLE plan for yourself.

Participant. A participant is an eligible employee who is covered by your retirement plan. See the discussions of the different types of plans for the definition of an employee eligible to participate in each type of plan.

Partner. A partner is an individual who shares ownership of an unincorporated trade or business with one or more persons. For retirement plans, a partner is treated as an employee of the partnership.

Self-employed individual. An individual in business for himself or herself is self-employed.

Sole proprietors and partners are self-employed. Self-employment can include part-time work.

Not everyone who has net earnings from self-employment for social security tax purposes is self-employed for qualified plan purposes. See Common-law employee, earlier. Also see Net earnings from self-employment.

In addition, certain fishermen may be considered self-employed for setting up a qualified plan. See Publication 595, Capital Construction Fund for Commercial Fishermen, for the special rules used to determine whether fishermen are self-employed.

Sole proprietor. A sole proprietor is an individual who owns an unincorporated business by himself or herself. For retirement plans, a sole proprietor is treated as both an employer and an employee.

2. Simplified Employee Pension (SEP)

Topics
This chapter discusses:
- Setting up a SEP
- How much to contribute
- Deducting contributions
- Salary reduction simplified employee pensions (SARSEPs)
- Distributions (withdrawals)
- Additional taxes
- Reporting and disclosure requirements

A simplified employee pension (SEP) is a written plan that allows you to make contributions toward your own retirement (if you are self-employed) and your employees’ retirement without getting involved in a more complex qualified plan.

Under a SEP, you make the contributions to a traditional individual retirement arrangement (called a SEP-IRA) set up by or for each eligible employee. A SEP-IRA is owned and controlled by the employee, and you make contributions to the financial institution where the SEP-IRA is maintained.

SEP-IRAs are set up for, at a minimum, each eligible employee (defined later). A SEP-IRA may have to be set up for a leased employee (defined in chapter 1), but does not need to be set up for excludable employees (defined later).

Eligible employee. An eligible employee is an individual who meets all the following requirements.
- Has reached age 21.
- Has worked for you in at least 3 of the last 5 years.
- Has received at least $450 in compensation from you for 2006. In 2007, the $450 amount increases to $500.

You can use less restrictive participation requirements than those listed, but not more restrictive ones.

Excludable employees. The following employees can be excluded from coverage under a SEP.
- Employees covered by a union agreement and whose retirement benefits were bargained for in good faith by the employees’ union and you.
- Nonresident alien employees who have received no U.S. source wages, salaries, or other personal services compensation from you. For more information about nonresident aliens, see Publication 519, U.S. Tax Guide for Aliens.

Setting Up a SEP

There are three basic steps in setting up a SEP.

1. You must execute a formal written agreement to provide benefits to all eligible employees.

2. You must give each eligible employee certain information about the SEP.

3. A SEP-IRA must be set up by or for each eligible employee.

Many financial institutions will help you set up a SEP.

Formal written agreement. You must execute a formal written agreement to provide benefits to all eligible employees under a SEP. You can satisfy the written agreement requirement by adopting an IRS model SEP using Form 5305-SEP. However, see When not to use Form 5305-SEP, later.
If you adopt an IRS model SEP using Form 5305-SEP, no prior IRS approval or determination is needed. Keep the original form. Do not file it with the IRS. Also, using Form 5305-SEP will usually relieve you from filing annual retirement plan information returns with the IRS and the Department of Labor. See the Form 5305-SEP instructions for details.

When not to use Form 5305-SEP. You cannot use Form 5305-SEP if any of the following apply:

1. You currently maintain any other qualified retirement plan. This does not prevent you from maintaining another SEP.
2. You have any eligible employees for whom IRAs have not been set up.
3. You use the services of leased employees (as described in chapter 1).
4. You are a member of any of the following unless all eligible employees of all the members of these groups, trades, or businesses participate under the SEP:
   a. An affiliated service group described in section 414(m).
   b. A controlled group of corporations described in section 414(b).
   c. Trades or businesses under common control described in section 414(c).
5. You do not pay the cost of the SEP contributions.

Information you must give to employees. You must give each eligible employee a copy of Form 5305-SEP, its instructions, and the other information listed in the Form 5305-SEP instructions. An IRS model SEP is not considered adopted until you give each employee this information.

Setting up the employee’s SEP-IRA. A SEP-IRA must be set up by or for each eligible employee. SEP-IRAs can be set up with banks, insurance companies, or other qualified financial institutions. You send SEP contributions to the financial institution where the SEP-IRA is maintained.

Deadline for setting up a SEP. You can set up a SEP for a year as late as the due date (including extensions) of your income tax return for that year.

Credit for startup costs. You may be able to claim a tax credit for part of the ordinary and necessary costs of starting a SEP that first became effective in 2006. For more information, see Credit for startup costs under Reminders, earlier.

How Much Can I Contribute?

The SEP rules permit you to contribute a limited amount of money each year to each employee’s SEP-IRA. If you are self-employed, you can contribute to your own SEP-IRA. Contributions must be in the form of money (cash, check, or money order). You cannot contribute property. However, participants may be able to transfer or roll over certain property from one retirement plan to another. See Publication 590 for more information about rollovers.

You do not have to make contributions every year. But if you make contributions, they must be based on a written allocation formula and must not discriminate in favor of highly compensated employees (defined in chapter 1). When you contribute, you must contribute to the SEP-IRAs of all participants who actually performed personal services during the year for which the contributions are made, even employees who die or terminate employment before the contributions are made.

The contributions you make under a SEP are treated as if made to a qualified pension, stock bonus, profit-sharing, or annuity plan. Consequently, contributions are deductible within limits, as discussed later, and generally are not taxable to the plan participants.

A SEP-IRA cannot be designated as a Roth IRA. Employer contributions to a SEP-IRA will not affect the amount an individual can contribute to a Roth IRA.

Time limit for making contributions. To deduct contributions for a year, you must make the contributions by the due date (including extensions) of your tax return for the year.

Contribution Limits

Contributions you make for 2006 to a common-law employee’s SEP-IRA cannot exceed the lesser of 25% of the employee’s compensation or $44,000 ($45,000 for 2007). Compensation generally does not include your contributions to the SEP.

Example. Your employee, Mary Plant, earned $21,000 for 2006. The maximum contribution you can make to her SEP-IRA is $5,250 (25% x $21,000). Contributions you make for yourself. The annual limits on your contributions to a common-law employer’s SEP-IRA also apply to contributions you make to your own SEP-IRA. However, special rules apply when figuring your maximum deductible contribution. See Deduction Limit for Self-Employed Individuals, later.

Annual compensation limit. You cannot consider the part of an employee’s compensation over $220,000 when figuring your contribution limit for that employee. However, $44,000 is the maximum contribution for an eligible employee. The annual compensation limit of $220,000 increases to $225,000 for 2007.

More than one plan. If you contribute to a defined contribution plan (defined in chapter 4), annual additions to an account are limited to the lesser of $44,000 or 100% of the participant’s compensation. When you figure this limit, you must add your contributions to all defined contribution plans. Because a SEP is considered a defined contribution plan for this limit, your contributions to a SEP must be added to your contributions to other defined contribution plans.

Tax treatment of excess contributions. Excess contributions are your contributions to an employee’s SEP-IRA (or to your own SEP-IRA) for 2006 that exceed the lesser of the following amounts:

- 25% of the employee’s compensation (or, for you, 20% of your net earnings from self-employment).
- $44,000.

Excess contributions are included in the employee’s income for the year and are treated as contributions by the employee to his or her SEP-IRA. For more information on employee tax treatment of excess contributions, see chapter 1 in Publication 590.

Reporting on Form W-2. Do not include SEP contributions on your employee’s Form W-2 unless contributions were made under a salary reduction arrangement (discussed later).

Deducting Contributions

Generally, you can deduct the contributions you make each year to each employee’s SEP-IRA. If you are self-employed, you can deduct the contributions you make each year to your own SEP-IRA.

Deduction Limit for Contributions for Participants

The most you can deduct for your contributions (other than elective deferrals) for participants is the lesser of the following amounts:

1. Your contributions (including any excess contributions carryover).
2. 25% of the compensation (limited to $220,000 per participant) paid to the participants during 2006 from the business that has the plan, not to exceed $44,000 per participant.

In 2007, the $220,000 and $44,000 amounts in (2) above increase to $225,000 and $45,000.

Compensation in (2) above includes elective deferrals (explained, later, under Salary Reduction Simplified Employee Pension (SARSEP)). Elective deferrals are no longer subject to this deduction limit. However, the combined deduction for a participant and all other SEP contributions cannot exceed $44,000.

Your SEP document may limit contributions to lower amounts because of elective deferrals.

Deduction Limit for Self-Employed Individuals

If you contribute to your own SEP-IRA, you must make a special computation to figure your maximum deduction for these contributions. When figuring the deduction for contributions made to your own SEP-IRA, compensation is your net earnings from self-employment (defined in chapter 1), which takes into account both the following:

- The deduction for one-half of your self-employment tax.
- The deduction for contributions to your own SEP-IRA.
The deduction for contributions to your own SEP-IRA and your net earnings depend on each other. For this reason, you determine the deduction for contributions to your own SEP-IRA indirectly by reducing the contribution rate called for in your plan. To do this, use the Rate Table for Self-Employed or the Rate Worksheet for Self-Employed, whichever is appropriate for your plan’s contribution rate, in chapter 5. Then figure your maximum deduction by using the Deduction Worksheet for Self-Employed in chapter 5.

Salary Reduction Simplified Employee Pension (SARSEP)

A SARSEP is a SEP set up before 1997 that includes a salary reduction arrangement. (See the CAUTION, next.) Under a SARSEP, your employee can choose to have you contribute part of their pay to their SEP-IRAs rather than receive it in cash. This contribution is called an "elective deferral" because employees choose (elect) to set aside the money, and they defer the tax on the money until it is distributed to them.

You are not allowed to set up a SARSEP after 1996. However, participants (including employees hired after 1996) in a SARSEP set up before 1997 can continue to have you contribute part of their pay to the plan. If you are interested in setting up a retirement plan that includes a salary reduction arrangement, see chapter 3.

Who can have a SARSEP? A SARSEP set up before 1997 is available to you and your eligible employees only if all the following requirements are met.

• At least 50% of your employees eligible to participate choose to make elective deferrals.
• You have 25 or fewer employees who were eligible to participate in the SEP at any time during the preceding year.
• The elective deferrals of your highly compensated employees meet the SARSEP test.

SARSEP ADP test. Under the SARSEP ADP test, the amount deferred each year by each eligible highly compensated employee as a percentage of pay (the deferral percentage) cannot be more than 125% of the average deferral percentage (ADP) of all non-highly compensated employees eligible to participate. A highly compensated employee is defined in chapter 1.

Deferral percentage. The deferral percentage for an employee for a year is figured as follows.

The elective employer contributions (excluding certain catch-up contributions) paid for each employee for the year divided by the employee’s compensation (limited to $220,000). The instructions for Form 5305A-SEP have a worksheet you can use to determine whether the elective deferrals of your highly compensated employees meet the SARSEP ADP test.

Employee compensation. For figuring the deferral percentage, compensation is generally the amount you pay to the employee for the year. Compensation includes the elective deferral and other amounts deferred in certain employee benefit plans. See Compensation in chapter 1. Elective deferrals under the SARSEP are included in figuring your employees’ deferral percentage even though they are not included in the income of your employees for income tax purposes.

Compensation of self-employed individuals. If you are self-employed, compensation is your net earnings from self-employment as defined in chapter 1.

Catch-up contributions. A SARSEP can permit participants who are age 50 or over at the end of the calendar year to also make catch-up contributions. The catch-up contribution limit for 2006 and 2007 is $5,000. Elective deferrals are not treated as catch-up contributions for 2006 until they exceed the elective deferral limit (the lesser of 25% of compensation or $15,000), the SARSEP ADP test limit discussed earlier, or the plan limit (if any). However, the catch-up contribution to a participant can make for a year cannot exceed the lesser of the following amounts.

• The catch-up contribution limit.
• The excess of the participant’s compensation over the elective deferrals that are not catch-up contributions.

Catch-up contributions are not subject to the elective deferral limit (the lesser of 25% of compensation or $15,000).

Overall limit on SEP contributions. If you also make nonelective contributions to a SEP-IRA, the total of the nonelective and elective contributions to that SEP-IRA cannot exceed the lesser of 25% of the employee’s compensation or $220,000.
compensation or $44,000 ($45,000 for 2007). The same rule applies to contributions you make to your own SEP-IRA. See Contribution Limits, earlier.

Figuring the elective deferral. For figuring the 25% limit on elective deferrals, compensation does not include SEP contributions, including elective deferrals or other amounts deferred in certain employee benefit plans.

Tax Treatment of Deferrals

Elective deferrals are no longer subject to the deduction limits discussed earlier under Deducting Contributions. However, the combined deduction for a participant’s elective deferrals and other SEP contributions cannot exceed $44,000.

Elective deferrals that are not more than the limits discussed earlier under Limit on Elective Deferrals are excluded from your employees’ wages subject to federal income tax in the year of deferral. However, these deferrals are included in wages for social security, Medicare, and federal unemployment (FUTA) tax.

Excess deferrals. For 2006, excess deferrals are the elective deferrals for the year that are more than the $15,000 limit discussed earlier. For a participant who is eligible to make catch-up contributions, excess deferrals are the elective deferrals that are more than $20,000. The treatment of excess deferrals made under a SARSEP is similar to the treatment of excess deferrals made under a qualified plan. See Treatment of Excess Deferrals under Elective Deferrals (401(k) Plans) in chapter 4.

Excess SEP contributions. Excess SEP contributions are elective deferrals of highly compensated employees that are more than the amount permitted under the SARSEP ADP test. You must notify your highly compensated employees within 2 1/2 months after the end of the plan year of their excess SEP contributions. If you do not notify them within this time period, you must pay a 10% tax on the excess. For an explanation of the notification requirements, see Revenue Procedure 91-44 in Cumulative Bulletin 1991-2. If you adopted a SARSEP using Form 5305A-SEP, the notification requirements are explained in the instructions for that form.

Reporting on Form W-2. Do not include elective deferrals in the “Wages, tips, other compensation” box of Form W-2. You must, however, include them in the “Social security wages” and “Medicare wages and tips” boxes. You must also include them in box 12. Mark the “Retirement plan” checkbox in box 13. For more information, see the Form W-2 instructions.

Distributions (Withdrawals)

As an employer, you cannot prohibit distributions from a SEP-IRA. Also, you cannot make your contributions on the condition that any part of them must be kept in the account.

Distributions are subject to IRA rules. For information about IRA rules, including the tax treatment of distributions, rollovers, required distributions, and income tax withholding, see Publication 590.

Additional Taxes

The tax advantages of using SEP-IRAs for retirement savings can be offset by additional taxes. There are additional taxes for all the following actions.

• Making excess contributions.
• Making early withdrawals.
• Not making required withdrawals.

For information about these taxes, see chapter 1 in Publication 590. Also, a SEP-IRA may be disqualified, or an excise tax may apply, if the account is involved in a prohibited transaction, discussed next.

Prohibited transaction. If an employee improperly uses his or her SEP-IRA, such as by borrowing money from it, the employee has engaged in a prohibited transaction. In that case, the SEP-IRA will no longer qualify as an IRA. For a list of prohibited transactions, see Prohibited Transactions in chapter 4.

Effects on employee. If a SEP-IRA is disqualified because of a prohibited transaction, the assets in the account will be treated as having been distributed to the employee on the first day of the year in which the transaction occurred. The employee must include in income the fair market value of the assets (on the first day of the year) that is more than any cost basis in the account. Also, the employee may have to pay the additional tax for making early withdrawals.

Reporting and Disclosure Requirements

If you set up a SEP using Form 5305-SEP, you must give your eligible employees certain information about the SEP when you set it up. See Setting Up a SEP, earlier. Also, you must give your eligible employees a statement each year showing any contributions to their SEP-IRAs. You must also give them notice of any excess contributions. For details about other information you must give them, see the instructions for Form 5305-SEP or 5305A-SEP (for a salary reduction SEP).

Even if you did not use Form 5305-SEP or Form 5305A-SEP to set up your SEP, you must give your employees information similar to that described above. For more information, see the instructions for either Form 5305-SEP or Form 5305A-SEP.

3. SIMPLE Plans

Topics

This chapter discusses:

• SIMPLE IRA plan
• SIMPLE 401(k) plan

• 5305-SIMPLE Savings Incentive Match Plan for Employees of Small Employers (SIMPLE)—For Use With a Designated Financial Institution

A savings incentive match plan for employees (SIMPLE plan) is a written arrangement that provides you and your employees with a simplified way to make contributions to provide retirement income. Under a SIMPLE plan, employees can choose to make salary reduction contributions to the plan rather than receiving these amounts as part of their regular pay. In addition, you will contribute matching or nonelective contributions.

SIMPLE plans can only be maintained on a calendar-year basis. A SIMPLE plan can be set up in either of the following ways.

• Using SIMPLE IRAs (SIMPLE IRA plan).
• As part of a 401(k) plan (SIMPLE 401(k) plan).

Many financial institutions will help you set up a SIMPLE plan.

SIMPLE IRA Plan

A SIMPLE IRA plan is a retirement plan that uses SIMPLE IRAs for each eligible employee. Under a SIMPLE IRA plan, a SIMPLE IRA must be set up for each eligible employee. For the definition of an eligible employee, see Who Can Participate in a SIMPLE IRA Plan, later.

Who Can Set Up a SIMPLE IRA Plan?

You can set up a SIMPLE IRA plan if you meet both the following requirements.

• You meet the employee limit.
• You do not maintain another qualified plan unless the other plan is for collective bargaining employees.

Employee limit. You can set up a SIMPLE IRA plan only if you had 100 or fewer employees who received $5,000 or more in compensation from you for the preceding year. Under this rule, you must take into account all employees employed at any time during the calendar year regardless of whether they are eligible to participate. Employees include self-employed individuals who received earned income and leased employees (defined in chapter 1).

Once you set up a SIMPLE IRA plan, you must continue to meet the 100-employee limit each year you maintain the plan.

Grace period for employers who cease to meet the 100-employee limit. If you maintain the SIMPLE IRA plan for at least 1 year and you cease to meet the 100-employee limit in a later year, you will be treated as meeting it for the 2 calendar years immediately following the calendar year for which you last met it.

A different rule applies if you do not meet the 100-employee limit because of an acquisition, disposition, or similar transaction. Under this rule, the SIMPLE IRA plan will be treated as meeting the 100-employee limit for the year of the transaction and the 2 following years if both the following conditions are satisfied:

• Coverage under the plan has not significantly changed during the grace period.

• The SIMPLE IRA plan would have continued to qualify after the transaction if you had remained a separate employer.

The grace period for acquisitions, dispositions, and similar transactions also applies if, because of these types of transactions, you do not meet the rules explained under Other qualified plan or Who Can Participate in a SIMPLE IRA Plan, below.

Other qualified plan. The SIMPLE plan normally must be the only retirement plan to which you make contributions, or to which benefits accrue, for service in any year beginning with the year the SIMPLE plan becomes effective.

Exception. If you maintain a qualified plan for collective bargaining employees, you are permitted to maintain a SIMPLE IRA plan for other employees.

Who Can Participate in a SIMPLE IRA Plan?

Eligible employee. Any employee who received at least $5,000 in compensation during any 2 years preceding the current calendar year and is reasonably expected to receive at least $5,000 in compensation during the current calendar year is eligible to participate. The term “employee” includes a self-employed individual who received earned income.

You can use less restrictive eligibility requirements (but not more restrictive ones) by eliminating or reducing the prior year compensation requirements, the current year compensation requirements, or both. For example, you can allow participation for employees who received at least $3,000 in compensation during any preceding calendar year. However, you cannot impose any other conditions for participating in a SIMPLE IRA plan.

Excludable employees. The following employees do not need to be covered under a SIMPLE plan.

• Employees who are covered by a union agreement and whose retirement benefits were bargained for in good faith by the employees’ union and you.

• Nonresident alien employees who have received no U.S. source wages, salaries, or other personal services compensation from you.

Compensation. Compensation for employees is the total wages, tips, and other compensation from the employer subject to federal income tax withholding and the amounts paid for domestic service in a private home, local college club, or local chapter of a college fraternity or sorority. Compensation also includes the em-ployee’s salary reduction contributions made under this plan and, if applicable, elective deferrals under a section 401(k) plan, a SARSEP, designated Roth contributions, or section 403(b) annuity contract and compensation deferred under a section 401 plan required to be reported by the employer on Form W-2. If you are self-employed, compensation is your net earnings from self-employment (line 4, Section A, or line 6, Schedule SE (Form 1040)) before subtracting any contributions made to the SIMPLE IRA plan for yourself.

How To Set Up a SIMPLE IRA Plan

You can use Form 5304-SIMPLE or Form 5305-SIMPLE to set up a SIMPLE IRA plan. Each form is a model savings incentive match information, see

Which form you use depends on whether you satisfy other requirements, including the following:

• Meeting employer notification requirements for the SIMPLE IRA plan. Page 3 of Form 5304-SIMPLE and Page 3 of Form 5305-SIMPLE contain a Model Notification to Eligible Employees that provides the necessary information to the employee.

• Maintaining the SIMPLE IRA plan records and proving you set up a SIMPLE IRA plan for employees.

Deadline for setting up a SIMPLE IRA plan. You can set up a SIMPLE IRA plan effective on any date from January 1 through October 1 of a year, provided you did not previously maintain a SIMPLE IRA plan. This requirement does not apply if you are a new employer that comes into existence after October 1 of the year the SIMPLE IRA plan is set up and you set up a SIMPLE IRA plan as soon as administratively feasible after your business comes into existence. If you previously maintained a SIMPLE IRA plan, you can set up a SIMPLE IRA plan effective only on January 1 of a year. A SIMPLE IRA plan cannot have an effective date that is before the date you actually adopt the plan.

Setting up a SIMPLE IRA. SIMPLE IRAs are the individual retirement accounts or annuities into which the contributions are deposited. A SIMPLE IRA must be set up for each eligible employee. Forms 5305-S, SIMPLE Individual Retirement Trust Account, and 5305-SA, SIMPLE Individual Retirement Custodial Account, are model trust and custodial account documents that the employer and the trustee (or custodian) can use for this purpose.

A SIMPLE IRA cannot be designated as a Roth IRA. Contributions to a SIMPLE IRA will not affect the amount an individual can contribute to a Roth IRA.

Deadline for setting up a SIMPLE IRA. A SIMPLE IRA must be set up for an employee before the first date by which a contribution is required to be deposited into the employee’s IRA. See Time limits for contributing funds, later, under Contribution Limits.

Credit for startup costs. You may be able to claim a tax credit for part of the ordinary and necessary costs of starting a SIMPLE IRA plan that first became effective in a calendar year. For more information, see Credit for startup costs under Reminders, earlier.

Notification Requirement

If you adopt a SIMPLE IRA plan, you must notify each employee of the following information before the beginning of the election period.

1. The employee’s opportunity to make or change a salary reduction choice under a SIMPLE IRA plan.

2. Your choice to make either matching contribtions or nonelective contributions (discussed later).

3. A summary description provided by the financial institution.

4. Written notice that his or her balance can be transferred without cost or penalty if you use a designated financial institution.

Election period. The election period is generally the 60-day period immediately preceding January 1 of a calendar year (November 2 to December 31 of the preceding calendar year). However, the dates of this period are modified if you set up a SIMPLE IRA plan in mid-year (for example, on July 1) or if the 60-day period falls before the first day an employee becomes eligible to participate in the SIMPLE IRA plan.
A SIMPLE IRA plan can provide longer periods for permitting employees to enter into salary reduction agreements or to modify prior agreements. For example, a SIMPLE IRA plan can provide a 90-day election period instead of the 60-day period. Similarly, in addition to the 60-day election period under a SIMPLE IRA plan, employees can make quarterly elections during the 30 days before each calendar quarter, other than the first quarter of each year.

Contribution Limits

Contributions are made up of salary reduction contributions and employer contributions. You, as the employer, must make either matching contributions or nonelective contributions, defined later. No other contributions can be made to the SIMPLE IRA plan. These contributions, which you can deduct, must be made timely. See Time limits for contributing funds, later.

Salary reduction contributions. The amount the employee chooses to have you contribute to a SIMPLE IRA on his or her behalf cannot be more than $10,000 for 2006 ($10,500 for 2007). These contributions must be expressed as a percentage of the employee’s compensation unless you permit the employee to express them as a specific dollar amount. You cannot place restrictions on the contribution amount (such as limiting the contribution percentage), except to comply with the $10,000 limit.

If an employee is a participant in any other employer plan during the year and has elective salary reductions or deferred compensation under those plans, the salary reduction contributions under a SIMPLE IRA plan also are elective deferrals that count toward the overall annual limit ($15,000 for 2006) on exclusion of salary reduction contributions and other elective deferrals.

Catch-up contributions. A SIMPLE IRA plan can permit participants who are age 50 or over to make additional contributions. These contributions are not catch-up contributions. The catch-up contribution limit for 2006 and 2007 is $2,500. Salary reduction contributions are not treated as catch-up contributions for 2006 until they exceed $10,000. However, the catch-up contribution a participant can make for a year cannot exceed the lesser of the following amounts:

- The catch-up contribution limit.
- The excess of the participant’s compensation over the salary reduction contributions that are not catch-up contributions.

Example 1. In 2006, your employee, John Rose, earned $25,000 and chose to defer 5% of his salary. You, as the employer, must make 3% matching contributions. The total contribution you can make for John is $2,000, figured as follows.

| Salary reduction contributions | $25,000 × 0.05 | $1,250 |
| Total contributions            |               | $1,250 |

Example 2. Using the same facts as in Example 1, above, the maximum contribution you can make for Jane or for yourself if each earned $75,000 is $11,500, figured as follows.

| Salary reduction contributions | $75,000 × 0.02 | $1,500 |
| Total contributions            |               | $11,500 |

Employer matching contributions. You are generally required to match each employee’s salary reduction contributions on a dollar-for-dollar basis up to 3% of the employee’s compensation. This requirement does not apply if you make nonelective contributions as discussed later.

Example. In 2006, your employee, John Wood, earned $36,000 and chose to have you contribute 10% of her salary. Your net earnings from self-employment are $50,000, and you choose to contribute 10% of your earnings to your SIMPLE IRA. You make a 2% nonelective contribution. Both of you are under age 50. The total contribution you can make for Jane is $4,200, figured as follows.

| Salary reduction contributions | ($36,000 × 0.10) | $3,600 |
| 2% nonelective contributions   | ($36,000 × 0.02) | $720  |
| Total contributions            |                 | $4,320 |

Example 2. Using the same facts as in Example 1, above, the maximum contribution you can make for Jane or for yourself if each earned $75,000 is $11,500, figured as follows.

| Salary reduction contributions | ($50,000 × 0.10) | $5,000 |
| 2% nonelective contributions   | ($50,000 × 0.02) | $1,000 |
| Total contributions            |                 | $6,000 |

Time limits for contributing funds. You must make the salary reduction contributions to the SIMPLE IRA plan during the calendar year of the month in which the amounts would otherwise have been payable to the employee in cash. You must make matching contributions or nonelective contributions by the due date (including extensions) for filing your federal income tax return for the year.

When To Deduct Contributions

You can deduct SIMPLE IRA contributions in the tax year with or within which the calendar year for which contributions were made ends. You can deduct contributions for a particular tax year if they are made for that tax year and are made by the due date (including extensions) of your federal income tax return.

Example 1. Your tax year is the fiscal year ending June 30. Contributions under a SIMPLE IRA plan for the calendar year 2006 (including contributions made in 2006 before July 1, 2006) are deductible in the tax year ending June 30, 2007.

Example 2. You are a sole proprietor whose tax year is the calendar year. Contributions under a SIMPLE IRA plan for the calendar year 2006 (including contributions made in 2006 before April 15, 2007) are deductible in the 2006 tax year.

Where To Deduct Contributions

Deduct the contributions you make for your common-law employees on your tax return. For example, sole proprietors deduct them on Schedule C (Form 1040), Profit or Loss From Business, or Schedule F (Form 1040), Profit or Loss From Farming, partnerships deduct them on Form 1065, U.S. Return of Partnership Income, and corporations deduct them on Form 1120, U.S. Corporation Income Tax Return, Form 1120-A, U.S. Corporation Short-Form Income Tax Return, or Form 1120S, U.S. Income Tax Return for an S Corporation.

Sole proprietors and partners deduct contributions for themselves on line 28 of Form 1040, U.S. Individual Income Tax Return. (If you are a partner, contributions for yourself are shown on the Schedule K-1 (Form 1065), Partner’s Share of Income, Deductions, Credits, etc., you get from the partnership.)

Tax Treatment of Contributions

You can deduct your contributions and your employees can exclude these contributions from their gross income. SIMPLE IRA plan contributions are not subject to social security, Medicare, and federal unemployment (FUTA) taxes. Matching and nonelective contributions are not subject to these taxes.

Reporting on Form W-2. Do not include SIMPLE IRA plan contributions in the "Wages, tips, other compensation box" of Form W-2. However, salary reduction contributions must be included in the boxes for social security and Medicare taxes.
Kinds of Plans

There are two basic kinds of qualified plans—defined contribution plans and defined benefit plans—and different rules apply to each. You can have more than one qualified plan, but your contributions to all the plans must not total more than the overall limits discussed under Contributions and Employer Deduction, later.

Defined Contribution Plan

A defined contribution plan provides an individual account for each participant in the plan. It provides benefits to a participant largely based on the amount contributed to that participant’s account. Benefits are also affected by any income, expenses, gains, losses, and forfeitures of other accounts that may be allocated to an account. A defined contribution plan can be either a profit-sharing plan or a money purchase pension plan.

Profit-sharing plan. A profit-sharing plan is a plan for sharing your business profits with your employees. However, you do not have to make contributions out of net profits to have a profit-sharing plan.

The plan does not need to provide a definite formula for figuring the profits to be shared. But, if there is no formula, there must be systematic and substantial contributions.

The plan must provide a definite formula for allocating the contribution among the participants and for distributing the accumulated funds to the employees after they reach a certain age, after a fixed number of years, or upon certain other occurrences.

In general, you can be more flexible in making contributions to a profit-sharing plan than to a profit-sharing plan.
a money purchase pension plan (discussed next) or a defined benefit plan (discussed later). Forfeitures under a profit-sharing plan can be allocated to the accounts of remaining participants in a nondiscriminatory way or they can be used to reduce your contributions.

Money purchase pension plan. Contributions to a money purchase pension plan are fixed and are not based on your business profits. For example, if the plan requires that contributions be 10% of the participants’ compensation without regard to whether you have profits (or the self-employed person has earned income), the plan is a money purchase pension plan. This applies even though the compensation of a self-employed individual as a participant is based on earned income derived from business profits.

Defined Benefit Plan
A defined benefit plan is any plan that is not a defined contribution plan. Contributions to a defined benefit plan are based on what is needed to provide definitely determinable benefits to plan participants. Actuarial assumptions and computations are required to figure these contributions. Generally, you will need continuing professional help to have a defined benefit plan.

Forfeitures under a defined benefit plan cannot be used to increase the benefits any employee would otherwise receive under the plan. Forfeitures must be used instead to reduce employer contributions.

Setting Up a Qualified Plan
There are two basic steps in setting up a qualified plan. First you adopt a written plan. Then you invest the plan assets.

You, the employer, are responsible for setting up and maintaining the plan. If you are self-employed, it is not necessary to have employees besides yourself to sponsor and set up a qualified plan. If you have employees, see Participation, under Qualification Rules, later.

Set-up deadline. To take a deduction for contributions for a tax year, your plan must be set up (adopted) by the last day of that year (December 31 for calendar year employers).

Credit for startup costs. You may be able to claim a tax credit for part of the ordinary and necessary costs of starting a qualified plan that first became effective in 2006. For more information, see Credit for startup costs under Reminders, earlier.

Adopting a Written Plan
You must adopt a written plan. The plan can be an IRS-approved master or prototype plan offered by a sponsoring organization. Or it can be an individually designed plan.

Written plan requirement. To qualify, the plan you set up must be in writing and must be communicated to your employees. The plan’s provisions must be stated in the plan. It is not sufficient for the plan to merely refer to a requirement of the Internal Revenue Code.

Master or prototype plans. Most qualified plans follow a standard form of plan (a master or prototype plan) approved by the IRS. Master and prototype plans are plans made available by plan providers for adoption by employers (including self-employed individuals). Under a master plan, a single trust or custodial account is established, as part of the plan, for the joint use of all adopting employers. Under a prototype plan, a separate trust or custodial account is established for each employer.

Plan providers. The following organizations generally can provide IRS-approved master or prototype plans.

- Banks (including some savings and loan associations and federally insured credit unions).
- Trade or professional organizations.
- Insurance companies.
- Mutual funds.

Individually designed plan. If you prefer, you can set up an individually designed plan to meet specific needs. Although advance IRS approval is not required, you can apply for approval by paying a fee and requesting a determination letter. You may need professional help for this. The Revenue Procedure 2007-6 in Internal Revenue Bulletin 2007-1 may help you decide whether to apply for approval.

Minimum Funding Requirement
In general, if your plan is a money purchase pension plan or a defined benefit plan, you must actually pay enough into the plan to satisfy the minimum funding standard for a defined benefit plan. The amount is based on what should be contributed under the plan formula using actuarial assumptions and formulas. For information on this funding requirement, see section 412 and its regulations.

Quarterly installments of required contributions. If your plan is a defined benefit plan subject to the minimum funding requirements, you must make quarterly installment payments of the required contributions. If you do not pay the full installments timely, you may have to pay interest on any underpayment for the period of the underpayment.

Due dates. The due dates for the installments are 15 days after the end of each quarter. For a calendar-year plan, the installments are due April 15, July 15, October 15, and January 15 of the following year.

Installment percentage. Each quarterly installment must be 25% of the required annual payment.

Extended period for making contributions. Additional contributions required to satisfy the minimum funding requirement for a plan year will be considered timely if made by 8½ months after the end of that year.

Contributions
A qualified plan is generally funded by your contributions. However, employees participating... in the plan may be permitted to make contributions.

Contributions deadline. You can make deductible contributions for a tax year up to the due date of your return (plus extensions) for that year.

Self-employed individual. You can make contributions on behalf of yourself only if you have net earnings (compensation) from self-employment in the trade or business for which the plan was set up. Your net earnings must be from your personal services, not from your investments. If you have a net loss from self-employment, you cannot make contributions for yourself for the year, even if you can contribute for common-law employees based on their compensation.

When Contributions Are Considered Made
You generally apply your plan contributions to the year in which you make them. But you can apply them to the previous year if all the following requirements are met.

1. You make them by the due date of your tax return for the previous year (plus extensions).
2. The plan was established by the end of the previous year.
3. The plan treats the contributions as though it had received them on the last day of the previous year.
4. You do either of the following.
   a. You specify in writing to the plan administrator or trustee that the contributions apply to the previous year.
   b. You deduct the contributions on your tax return for the previous year. (A partnership shows contributions for partners on Schedule K (Form 1065), Partner’s Share of Income, Deductions, Credits, etc.)

Employer’s promissory note. Your promissory note made out to the plan is not a payment that qualifies for the deduction. Also, issuing this note is a prohibited transaction subject to tax. See Prohibited Transactions, later.

Employer Contributions
There are certain limits on the contributions and other annual additions you can make each year for plan participants. There are also limits on the amount you can deduct. See Deduction Limits, later.

Limits on Contributions and Benefits
Your plan must provide that contributions or benefits cannot exceed certain limits. The limits differ depending on whether your plan is a defined contribution plan or a defined benefit plan.

Defined benefit plan. For 2006, the annual benefit for a participant under a defined benefit plan cannot exceed the lesser of the following amounts.

1. 100% of the participant’s average compensation for his or her highest 3 consecutive calendar years.
2. $175,000 ($180,000 for 2007).

Defined contribution plan. For 2006, a defined contribution plan’s annual contributions and other additions (excluding earnings) to the account of a participant cannot exceed the lesser of the following amounts.

1. 100% of the participant’s compensation.
2. $44,000 ($45,000 for 2007).

Catch-up contributions (discussed later under Limit on Elective Deferrals) are not subject to the above limits.

Excess annual additions. Excess annual additions are the amounts contributed to a defined contribution plan that are more than the limits discussed previously. A plan can correct excess annual additions caused by any of the following actions.

• A reasonable error in estimating a participant’s compensation.
• A reasonable error in determining the elective deferrals permitted (discussed later).
• forfeitures allocated to participants’ accounts.

Correcting excess annual additions. A plan can provide for the correction of excess annual additions in the following ways.

1. Allocate and reallocate the excess to other participants in the plan to the extent of their unused limits for the year.
2. If these limits are exceeded, do one of the following.

a. Hold the excess in a separate account and allocate (and reallocate) it to participants’ accounts in the following year (or years) before making any contributions for that year (see also Carryover of Excess Contributions, later).

b. Return employee after-tax contributions or elective deferrals (see Employee Contributions and Elective Deferrals (401(k) Plans), later).

Tax treatment of returned contributions or distributed elective deferrals. The return of employee after-tax contributions or the distribution of elective deferrals to correct excess annual additions is considered a corrective payment rather than a distribution of accrued benefits. The penalties for early distributions and excess distributions do not apply.

These disbursements are not wages reportable on Form W-2. For specific information about reporting them, see the Instructions for Forms 1099, 1098, S4B, and W-2.

Participants must report these amounts on the line for Pensions and annuities on Form 1040 or Form 1040A, U.S. Individual Income Tax Return.

Employee Contributions
Participants may be permitted to make nondeductible contributions to a plan in addition to your contributions. Even though these employee contributions are not deductible, the earnings on them are tax free until distributed in later years. Also, these contributions must satisfy the nondiscrimination test of section 401(m) (discussed later). See Regulations sections 1.401(k)-2 and 1.401(m)-2 for further guidance relating to the nondiscrimination rules under sections 401(k) and 401(m).

Employer Deduction
You can usually deduct, subject to limits, contributions you make to a qualified plan, including those made for your own retirement. The contributions (and earnings and gains on them) are generally tax free until distributed by the plan.

Deduction Limits
The deduction limit for your contributions to a qualified plan depends on the kind of plan you have.

1 There were no carryovers from years before 2003.
Defined contribution plans. The deduction for contributions to a defined contribution plan (profit-sharing plan or money purchase pension plan) cannot be more than 25% of the compensation paid (or accrued) during the year to your eligible employees participating in the plan. If you are self-employed, you must reduce this limit in figuring the deduction for contributions you make for your own account. See Deduction Limit for Self-Employed Individuals, later.

When figuring the deduction limit, the following rules apply:

- Elective deferrals (discussed later) are not subject to the limit.
- Compensation includes elective deferrals.
- The maximum compensation that can be taken into account for each employee is $220,000.

Defined benefit plans. The deduction for contributions to a defined benefit plan is based on actuarial assumptions and computations.

Consequently, an actuary must figure your deduction limit.

In figuring the deduction for contributions, you cannot take into account any contributions or benefits that are more than the limits discussed earlier under Limits on Contributions and Benefits. However, your deduction for contributions to a defined benefit plan can be as much as the plan's unfunded liability.

Deduction Limit for Self-Employed Individuals

If you make contributions for yourself, you need to make a special computation to figure your maximum deduction for these contributions. Compensation is your net earnings from self-employment, defined in chapter 1. This definition takes into account both the following items:

- The deduction for one-half of your self-employment tax.
- The deduction for contributions on your behalf to the plan.

The deduction for your own contributions and your net earnings depend on each other. For this reason, you determine the deduction for your own contributions indirectly by reducing the contribution rate called for in your plan. To do this, use either the Rate Table for Self-Employed or the Rate Worksheet for Self-Employed in chapter 5. Then figure your maximum deduction by using the Deduction Worksheet for Self-Employed in chapter 5.

Where To Deduct Contributions

Deduct the contributions you make for your common-law employees on your tax return. For example, sole proprietors deduct them on Schedule C (Form 1040), Profit or Loss From Business, or Schedule F (Form 1040), Profit or Loss From Farming, partnerships deduct them on Form 1065, U.S. Return of Partnership Income, and corporations deduct them on Form 1120, U.S. Corporation Income Tax Return, Form 1120-A, U.S. Corporation Short-Form Income Tax Return, or Form 1120S, U.S. Income Tax Return for an S Corporation.

Sole proprietors and partners deduct contributions for themselves on line 28 of Form 1040, U.S. Individual Income Tax Return. (If you are a partner, contributions for yourself are shown on the Schedule K-1 (Form 1065), Partner's Share of Income, Deduction, Credits, etc., you get from the partnership.)

Carryover of Excess Contributions

If you contribute more to the plans than you can deduct for the year, you can carry over and deduct the difference in later years, combined with your contributions for those years. Your combined deduction in a later year is limited to 25% of the participants' compensation for that year. For purposes of this limit, a SEP is treated as a profit-sharing (defined contribution) plan. However, this percentage limit must be reduced to figure your maximum deduction for contributions you make for yourself. See Deduction Limit for Self-Employed Individuals, earlier. The amount you carry over and deduct may be subject to the excise tax discussed next.

Table 4-7 illustrates the carryover of excess contributions to a profit-sharing plan.

Excise Tax for Nondeductible (Excess) Contributions

If you contribute more than your deduction limit to a retirement plan, you have made nondeductible contributions and you may be liable for an excise tax. In general, a 10% excise tax applies to nondeductible contributions made to qualified pension and profit-sharing plans and to SEPs.

Special rule for self-employed individuals. The 10% excise tax does not apply to any contribution made to meet the minimum funding requirements in a money purchase pension plan or a defined benefit plan. Even if that contribution is more than your earned income from the trade or business for which the plan is set up, the difference is not subject to this excise tax. See Minimum Funding Requirement, earlier.

Reporting the tax. You must report the tax on your nondeductible contributions on Form 5330, includes a computation of the tax. See the separate instructions for completing the form.

Elective Deferrals (401(k) Plans)

Your qualified plan can include a cash or deferred arrangement under which participants can choose to have you contribute part of their before-tax compensation to the plan rather than receive the compensation in cash. A plan with this type of arrangement is popularly known as a "401(k) plan." (As a self-employed individual for a particular year.) For 2007, this limit increases to $15,500. If, in conjunction with other plans, the deferral limit is exceeded, the difference is included in the employee's gross income.

In general, a qualified plan can include a cash or deferred arrangement only if the contribution is one of the following plans:

- A profit-sharing plan.
- A money purchase pension plan in existence on June 27, 1974, that included a salary reduction arrangement on that date.

Note. For tax years beginning after December 31, 2005, a 401(k) plan may allow employees to contribute to a qualified Roth contribution program. For more details see Qualified Roth Contribution Program later.

Automatic enrollment in a 401(k) plan. Your 401(k) plan can have an automatic enrollment feature. Under this feature, you can automatically reduce an employee's pay by a fixed percentage and contribute that amount to the 401(k) plan on his or her behalf unless the employee affirmatively chooses not to have his or her pay reduced or chooses to have it reduced by a different percentage. These contributions qualify as elective deferrals. For more information about the automatic enrollment feature, see Regulations section 1.401(k)-1.

Partnership. A partnership can have a 401(k) plan.

Restriction on conditions of participation. The plan cannot require, as a condition of participation, that an employee complete more than 1 year of service.

Matching contributions. If your plan permits, you can make matching contributions for an employee who makes an elective deferral to your 401(k) plan. For example, the plan might provide that you will contribute 50 cents for each dollar your participating employees choose to defer under your 401(k) plan.

Nonelective contributions. You can, under a qualified 401(k) plan, also make contributions (other than matching contributions) for your participating employees without giving them the choice to take cash instead.

Employee compensation limit. No more than $220,000 of the employee's compensation can be taken into account when figuring contributions.

SIMPLE 401(k) Plan. If you had 100 or fewer employees who earned $5,000 or more in compensation during the preceding year, you may be able to set up a SIMPLE 401(k) plan. A SIMPLE 401(k) plan is not subject to the nondiscrimination and top-heavy plan requirements discussed later under Qualification Rules. For details about SIMPLE 401(k) plans, see SIMPLE 401(k) Plan in chapter 3.

Limit on Elective Deferrals

There is a limit on the amount an employee can defer each year under these plans. This limit applies without regard to community property laws. Your plan must provide that your employees cannot defer more than the limit that applies for a particular year. For 2006, the basic limit on elective deferrals is $15,000. (For 2007, this limit increases to $15,500.) If, in conjunction with other plans, the deferral limit is exceeded, the difference is included in the employee's gross income.
Catch-up contributions. A 401(k) plan can permit participants who are age 50 or over at the end of the calendar year to also make catch-up contributions. The catch-up contribution limit for 2006 and 2007 is $5,000. Elective deferrals are not treated as catch-up contributions for 2006 until they exceed the $15,000 limit, the ADP test limit of section 401(k)(3), or the plan limit (if any). However, the catch-up contribution a participant can make for a year cannot exceed the lesser of the following amounts.

- The catch-up contribution limit.
- The excess of the participant’s compensation over the elective deferrals that are not catch-up contributions.

Treatment of contributions. Your contributions to a 401(k) plan are generally deductible by you and tax free to participating employees until distributed from the plan. Participating employees have a nonforfeitable right to the accrued benefit resulting from these contributions. Distributions are included in wages for social security, Medicare, and federal unemployment (FUTA) tax.

Reporting on Form W-2. You must report the total amount deferred in boxes 3, 5, and 12 of your employee’s Form W-2. See the Form W-2 instructions.

Treatment of Excess Deferrals

If the total of an employee’s deferrals is more than the limit for 2006 the employee can have the difference (called an excess deferral) paid out of any of the plans that permit these distributions. He or she must notify the plan by April 15, 2007 (or an earlier date specified in the plan), of the amount to be paid from each plan. The plan must then pay the employee that amount by April 15, 2007.

Excess withdrawn by April 15. If the employee takes out the excess deferral by April 15, 2007, it is not reported again by including it in the contributions. The catch-up contribution limit for 2006 and 2007 is $5,000. Elective deferrals are not treated as catch-up contributions for 2006 until they exceed the $15,000 limit, the ADP test limit of section 401(k)(3), or the plan limit (if any). However, the catch-up contribution a participant can make for a year cannot exceed the lesser of the following amounts.

- The catch-up contribution limit.
- The excess of the participant’s compensation over the elective deferrals that are not catch-up contributions.

Qualified distributions

A qualified distribution is a distribution that is made after the employee’s nonexclusion period and:
- On or after the employee attains age 59 1/2.
- On account of the employee’s being disabled.
- On or after the employee’s death.

An employee’s nonexclusion period for a plan is the 5-tax-year period beginning with the earlier of the following tax years.

- The first tax year in which the employee made a designated Roth contribution to the plan, or
- If a rollover contribution was made to the employee’s designated Roth account from a designated Roth account previously established for the employee under another plan, then the first tax year the employee made a designated Roth contribution to the previously established account.

Since 2006 was the first year an employee could make designated Roth contributions, the earliest a qualified distribution can be made is January 1, 2011.

Rollover. A distribution from a designated Roth account can only be rolled over to another designated Roth account or a Roth IRA. Rollover amounts do not apply toward the annual deferral limit.

Reporting Requirements

You must report a contribution to a Roth account on Form W-2, Wage and Tax Statement, and a distribution from a Roth account on Form 1099-R. For specific information about reporting corrective distributions, see the Instructions for Forms 1098, 1098-R, 5498, and W-2C.

Tax on excess contributions of highly compensated employees. The law provides tests to detect discrimination in a plan. If tests, such as the actual deferral percentage test (ADP test) (see section 401(k)(3)) and the actual contribution percentage test (ACP test) (see section 401(m)(2)), show that contributions for highly compensated employees are more than the test limits for these contributions, the employer may have to pay a 10% excise tax. Report the tax on Form 5330. The ADP and ACP tests do not apply to safe harbor 401(k) plans.

The tax for the year is 10% of the excess contributions for the plan year ending in your tax year. Excess contributions are elective deferrals, employee contributions, or employer contributions matching or nonelective contributions that are more than the amount permitted under the ADP test or the ACP test.

See Regulations sections 1.401(k)-2 and 1.401(m)-2 for further guidance relating to the nondiscrimination rules under sections 401(k) and 401(m).

Qualified Roth Contribution Program

Under this program an eligible employee can designate all or a portion of his or her elective deferrals as Roth contributions. Elective deferrals designated as Roth contributions must be maintained in a separate Roth account. However, unlike other elective deferrals, designated Roth contributions are not excluded from your gross income but qualified distributions from a Roth account are excluded from your gross income.

Elective deferrals

Under a qualified Roth contribution program, the amount of elective deferrals that an employee may designate as a Roth contribution is limited to the maximum amount of elective deferrals excludable from gross income for the year ($15,000 for 2006, $20,000 if 50 or over) less the total amount of the employee’s elective deferrals that are not designated as Roth contributions.

Designated Roth deferrals are treated the same as pre-tax elective deferrals for most purposes, including:

- The annual individual elective deferral limit (total of all designated Roth contributions and traditional, pre-tax elective deferrals) — $15,000 in 2006 ($15,500 in 2007), with an additional $5,000 if age 50 or over.
- Determining the maximum employee and employer annual contributions — the lesser of 100% of compensation or $44,000 for 2006 ($45,500 in 2007) and subject to cost-of-living adjustments thereafter (section 415).
- Nondiscrimination testing.
Begin receiving regular periodic distributions by the required beginning date in annual amounts calculated to distribute the participant’s entire interest (benefits) over his or her life expectancy or over the joint life expectancy of the participant and the designated beneficiary (or over a shorter period).

These distribution rules apply individually to each qualified plan. You cannot satisfy the requirement for one plan by taking a distribution from another. The plan must provide that these rules override any inconsistent distribution options previously offered.

Minimum distribution. If the account balance of a qualified plan participant is to be distributed (other than as an annuity), the plan administrator must figure the minimum amount required to be distributed each distribution calendar year. This minimum is figured by dividing the account balance by the applicable life expectancy. For details on figuring the minimum distribution, see Tax on Excess Accumulation in Publication 575.

Minimum distribution incidental benefit requirement. Minimum distributions must also meet the minimum distribution incidental benefit requirement. This requirement ensures the plan is used primarily to provide retirement benefits to the employee. After the employee’s death, only “incidental” benefits are expected to remain for distribution to the employee’s beneficiary (or beneficiaries). For more information about distribution requirements, see Publication 575.

Required starting date. Generally, each participant must receive his or her entire benefits in the plan or begin to receive periodic distributions of benefits from the plan by the required beginning date. A participant must begin to receive distributions from his or her qualified retirement plan by April 1 of the first year after the later of the following years.

1. Calendar year in which he or she reaches age 70 1/2.
2. Calendar year in which he or she retires from employment with the employer maintaining the plan.

However, the plan may require the participant to begin receiving distributions by April 1 of the year after the participant reaches age 70 1/2 even if the participant has not retired.

If the participant is a 5% owner of the employer maintaining the plan or if the distribution is from a traditional or SIMPLE IRA, the participant must begin receiving distributions by April 1 of the first year after the calendar year in which the participant reached age 70 1/2. For more information, see Tax on Excess Accumulation in Publication 575.

Distributions after the starting year. The distribution required to be made by April 1 is treated as the distribution for the starting year. (The starting year is the year in which the participant meets (1) or (2) above, whichever applies.) After the starting year, the participant must receive the required distribution for each year by December 31 of that year. If no distribution is made in the starting year, required distributions for 2 years must be made in the next year (one by April 1 and one by December 31).

Distributions after participant’s death. See Publication 575 for the special rules covering distributions made after the death of a participant.

Distributions From 401(k) Plans

Generally, distributions cannot be made until one of the following occurs.

1. The account balance of a qualified plan participant is to be distributed (other than as an annuity), the plan administrator must figure the minimum amount required to be distributed each distribution calendar year. This minimum is figured by dividing the account balance by the applicable life expectancy. For details on figuring the minimum distribution, see Tax on Excess Accumulation in Publication 575.

Minimum distribution incidental benefit requirement. Minimum distributions must also meet the minimum distribution incidental benefit requirement. This requirement ensures the plan is used primarily to provide retirement benefits to the employee. After the employee’s death, only “incidental” benefits are expected to remain for distribution to the employee’s beneficiary (or beneficiaries). For more information about distribution requirements, see Publication 575.

Minimum distribution incidental benefit requirement. Minimum distributions must also meet the minimum distribution incidental benefit requirement. This requirement ensures the plan is used primarily to provide retirement benefits to the employee. After the employee’s death, only “incidental” benefits are expected to remain for distribution to the employee’s beneficiary (or beneficiaries). For more information about distribution requirements, see Publication 575.

Qualified domestic relations order (QDRO). These distribution restrictions do not apply if the distribution is to an alternate payee under the terms of a QDRO, which is defined in Publication 575.

Tax Treatment of Distributions

Distributions from a qualified plan minus a pro-rated part of any cost basis are subject to income tax in the year they are distributed. Since most recipients have no cost basis, a distribution is generally fully taxable. An exception is a distribution that is properly rolled over as discussed next under Rollover. The tax treatment of distributions depends on whether they are made periodically over several years (periodic distributions) or are nonperiodic distributions. See Taxation of Periodic Payments and Taxation of Nonperiodic Payments in Publication 575 for a detailed description of how distributions are taxed, including the 10-year tax option or capital gain treatment of a lump-sum distribution.

Rollover. The recipient of an eligible rollover distribution from a qualified plan can defer the tax on it by rolling it over into a traditional IRA or another eligible retirement plan. However, it may be subject to withholding as discussed under Withholding requirement, later.

Eligible rollover distribution. This is a distribution of all or any part of an employee’s balance in a qualified retirement plan that is not any of the following.

1. A required minimum distribution. See Required Distributions, earlier.
2. Any of a series of substantially equal payments made at least once a year over any of the following periods.
   a. The employee’s life or life expectancy.
   b. The joint lives or life expectancies of the employee and beneficiary.
   c. A period of 10 years or longer.
3. A hardship distribution.
4. The portion of a distribution that represents the return of an employee’s nondeductible contributions to the plan. See Employee Contributions, earlier. Also, see the Tip below.
5. A corrective distribution of excess contributions or deferrals under a 401(k) plan and any income allocable to the excess, or of excess annual additions and any allocable gains. See Correcting excess annual additions, earlier, under Limits on Contributions and Benefits.
6. Loans treated as distributions.
7. Dividends on employer securities.
8. The cost of life insurance coverage.

A distribution of the employee’s nonde- ductible contributions may qualify as a rollover distribution. The transfer must be made either (1) through a direct rollover to a defined contribution plan (or, beginning in 2007, to a section 403(b) plan) that separately accounts for the taxable and nontaxable parts of the rollover or (2) through a rollover to a traditional IRA.

More information. For more information about rollovers, see Rollovers in Publications 575 and 596.

Withholding requirement. If, during a year, a qualified plan pays to a participant one or more eligible rollover distributions (defined earlier that are reasonably expected to total $200 or more, the payor must withhold 20% of each distribution for federal income tax.

Exceptions. If, instead of having the distribution paid to him or her, the participant chooses to have the plan pay it directly to an IRA or another eligible retirement plan (a direct rollover), no withholding is required. If the distribution is not an eligible rollover distribution, defined earlier, the 20% withholding requirement does not apply. Other withholding rules apply to distributions such as long-term periodic distributions and required distributions (periodic or nonperiodic). However, the participant can still choose not to have tax withheld from these distributions. If the participant does not make this choice, the following withholding rules apply.

For periodic distributions, withholding is based on their treatment as wages.

For nonperiodic distributions, 10% of the taxable part is withheld.

Estimated tax payments. If no income tax is withheld or not enough tax is withheld, the recipient of a distribution may have to make estimated tax payments. For more information, see Withholding Tax and Estimated Tax in Publication 575.

Tax on Early Distributions

If a distribution is made to an employee under the plan before he or she reaches age 59 1/2, the employee may have to pay a 10% additional tax on the distribution. This tax applies to the amount received that the employee must include in income.
Exceptions. The 10% tax will not apply if distributions before age 59½ are made in any of the following circumstances.

• Made to a beneficiary (or to the estate of the employee) on or after the death of the employee.
• Made due to the employee having a qualifying disability.
• Made as part of a series of substantially equal periodic payments beginning after separation from service and made at least annually for the life or life expectancy of the employee or the joint lives or life expectancies of the employee and his or her designated beneficiary. (The payments under this exception, except in the case of deadly or disability, must continue for at least 5 years or until the employee reaches age 59½, whichever is the longer period.)
• Made to an employee after separation from service if the separation occurred during or after the calendar year in which the employee reached age 55.
• Made to an alternate payee under a qualidied domestic relations order (QDRO).
• Made to an employee for medical care up to the amount allowable as a medical expense deduction (determined without regard to whether the employee itemizes deductions).
• Timely made to reduce excess contributions under a 401(k) plan.
• Timely made to reduce excess elective deferrals.
• Made because of an IRS levy on the plan.
• Made a qualified reservist distribution.
  A qualified reservist distribution is a distribution from an IRA or an elective deferral account made after September 11, 2001, to a military reservist or a member of the National Guard who has been called to active duty for at least 180 days or for an indefinite period.

Reporting the tax. To report the tax on early rissions, file Form 5329, Additional Taxes
section 4975 and the related regulations.

Reporting the tax. Include Form 1040, line 63, any tax you owe for an excess benefit. On the dotted line next to the total, write “Sec.
72(m)(5)” and write in the amount.

Lump-sum distribution. The amount subject to the additional tax is not eligible for the optional methods of figuring income tax on a lump-sum distribution. The optional methods are discussed under Lump-Sum Distributions in Publilication 575.

Excise Tax on Reversion of Plan Assets
A 20% or 50% excise tax is generally imposed on the cash and fair market value of other property an employer receives directly or indirectly from a qualified plan. If you owe this tax, report it in Part IX of Form 5330. See the form instructions for more information.

Notification of Significant Benefit Accrual Reduction
An employer or the plan will have to pay an excise tax if both the following occur.

• A defined benefit plan or money purchase pension plan is amended to provide for a significant reduction in the rate of future benefit accrual.
• The plan administrator fails to notify the affected individuals and the employee or organizations representing them of the reduction in writing. Affected individuals are the participants and alternate payees whose rate of benefit accrual under the plan may reasonably be expected to be significantly reduced by the amendment.
A plan amendment that eliminates or reduces any early retirement benefit or retirement-type subsidy reduces the rate of future benefit accrual.
The notice must be written in a manner calculated to be understood by the average plan participant and must provide enough information to allow each individual to understand the effect of the plan amendment. It must be provided within a reasonable time before the amendment takes effect.
The tax is $100 per participant or alternate payee for each day the notice is late. It is imposed on the employer, or, in the case of a multi-employer plan, on the plan.

There are certain exceptions to, and limitations on, the tax. The tax does not apply in any of the following situations.

• The person liable for the tax was unaware of the failure and exercised reasonable dil-gence to meet the notice requirements.
• The person liable for the tax exercised reasonable diligence to meet the notice requirements and provided the notice within 30 days starting on the first date the person knew or should have known that the failure to provide notice existed.

If the person liable for the tax exercised reasonable diligence to meet the notice requirement, the tax cannot be more than $500,000 during the tax year. The tax can also be waived to the extent it would be excessive or unfair if the failure is due to reasonable cause and not to willful neglect.

Prohibited Transactions

Prohibited transactions are transactions between the plan and a disqualified person that are prohibited by law. (However, see Exemption, later.) If you are a disqualified person who takes part in a prohibited transaction, you must pay a tax (discussed later).

Prohibited transactions generally include the following transactions.

1. A transfer of plan income or assets to,
or use of them by or for the benefit of,
a disqualified person.
2. Any act of a fiduciary by which he or she deals with plan income or assets in his or her own interest.
3. The receipt of consideration by a fiduciary for his or her own account from any party dealing with the plan in a transaction that involves plan income or assets.
4. Any of the following acts between the plan and a disqualified person.
  a. Selling, exchanging, or leasing property.
  b. Lending money or extending credit.
  c. Furnishing goods, services, or facilities.

Exemption. Certain transactions are exempt from being treated as prohibited transactions.
For example, a prohibited transaction does not take place if you are a disqualified person and receive any benefit to which you are entitled as a plan participant or beneficiary. However, the benefit must be figured and paid under the same terms as for all other participants and beneficiaties. For other transactions that are exempt, see section 4975 and the related regulations.

Disqualified person. You are a disqualified person if you are any of the following.

1. A fiduciary of the plan.
2. A person providing services to the plan.
3. An employer, any of whose employees are covered by the plan.
4. An employee organization, any of whose members are covered by the plan.
5. Any direct or indirect owner of 50% or more of any of the following.
  a. The combined voting power of all classses of stock entitled to vote, or the total value of shares of all classes of stock of a corporation that is an employer or employee organization described in (3) or (4).
b. The capital interest or profits interest of a partnership that is an employer or employee organization described in (3) or (4).

c. The beneficial interest of a trust or unincorporated enterprise that is an employer or an employee organization described in (3) or (4).

6. A member of the family of any individual described in (1), (2), (3), or (5). (A member of a family is the spouse, ancestor, lineal descendant, or any spouse of a lineal descendant.)

7. A corporation, partnership, trust, or estate of which (or in which) any direct or indirect owner described in (1) through (5) holds 50% or more of any of the following.

a. The combined voting power of all classes of stock entitled to vote or the total value of shares of all classes of stock of a corporation.

b. The capital interest or profits interest of a partnership.

c. The beneficial interest of a trust or estate.

8. An officer, director (or an individual having powers or responsibilities similar to those of officers or directors), a 10% or more shareholder, or highly compensated employee (earning 10% or more of the yearly wages of an employer) of a person described in (3), (4), (5), or (7).

9. A 10% or more (in capital or profits) partner or joint venturer of a person described in (3), (4), (5), or (7).

10. Any disqualified person, as described in (1) through (9) above, who is a disqualified person with respect to any plan to which a section 501(c)(22) trust is permitted to make payments under section 4223 of ERISA.

The plan does not cover a business that is a corporation. Doing it as much as you can without putting the $100,000 or less at the end of every plan year beginning after December 31, 1993.

Example. You are a sole proprietor and your plan meets all the conditions for filing Form 5500-EZ. The total plan assets are more than $100,000. You should file Form 5500-EZ.

All one-participant plans must file Form 5500-EZ for their final plan year, even if the total plan assets have always been less than $100,000. The final plan year is the year in which distribution of all plan assets is completed.

Form 5500. If you do not meet the requirements for filing Form 5500-EZ, you must file Form 5500.

Schedule A (Form 5500). If any plan benefits are provided by an insurance company, insurance service, or similar organization, complete and attach Schedule A (Form 5500) to Form 5500. Schedule A is not needed for a plan that covers only one of the following.

1. An individual or an individual and spouse who wholly own the trade or business, whether incorporated or unincorporated.

2. Partners in a partnership or the partners and their spouses.

Do not file a Schedule A (Form 5500) with a Form 5500-EZ.

Schedule B (Form 5500). For most defined benefit plans, complete and attach Schedule B (Form 5500), Actuarial Information, to Form 5500 or Form 5500-EZ.

Schedule P (Form 5500). The IRS no longer requires the filing of Schedule P (Form 5500).

Form 5310. If you terminate your plan and are the plan sponsor or plan administrator, you can file Form 5310, Application for Determination for Terminating Plan. Your application must be accompanied by the appropriate user fee and Form 8717, User Fee for Employee Plan Determination, Opinion, and Advisory Letter Request.
More information. For more information about reporting requirements, see the forms and their instructions.

Qualification Rules

To qualify for the tax benefits available to qualified plans, a plan must meet certain requirements (qualification rules) of the tax law. Generally, unless you write your own plan, the financial institution that provided your plan will take the continuing responsibility for meeting qualification rules that are later changed. The following is a brief overview of important qualification rules that generally have not yet been discussed. It is not intended to be all-inclusive. See Setting Up a Qualified Plan, earlier.

Generally, the following qualification rules also apply to a SIMPLE 401(k) retirement plan. A SIMPLE 401(k) plan is, however, not subject to the top-heavy plan rules and nondiscrimination rules if the plan satisfies the provisions discussed in chapter 3 under SIMPLE 401(k) Plan.

Plan assets must not be diverted. Your plan must make it impossible for its assets to be used for, or diverted to, purposes other than the benefit of employees and their beneficiaries. As a general rule, the assets cannot be diverted to the employer.

Minimum coverage requirement must be met. To be a qualified plan, a defined benefit plan must benefit at least the lesser of the following.

1. 50 employees.
2. The greater of:
   a. 40% of all employees, or
   b. Two employees.

If there is only one employee, the plan must benefit that employee.

Contributions or benefits must not discriminate. Under the plan, contributions or benefits to be provided must not discriminate in favor of highly compensated employees.

Contributions and benefits must not be more than certain limits. Your plan must not provide contributions or benefits before the normal retirement age specified in the plan.

Minimum vesting standard must be met. Your plan must satisfy certain requirements regarding when benefits vest. A benefit is vested (you have a fixed right to it) when it becomes nonforfeitable. A benefit is nonforfeitable if it cannot be lost upon the happening, or failure to happen, of any event.

Participation. In general, an employee must be allowed to participate in your plan if he or she meets both the following requirements.

• Has reached age 21.
• Has at least 1 year of service (2 years if the plan is not a 401(k) plan and provides that after not more than 2 years of service the employee has a nonforfeitable right to all his or her accrued benefit).

A plan can exclude an employee because he or she has reached a specified age.

Leased employee. A leased employee, defined in chapter 1, who performs services for you (recipient of the services) is treated as your employee for certain plan qualification rules. These rules include those in all the following areas.

• Nondiscrimination in coverage, contributions, and benefits.
• Minimum age and service requirements.
• Vesting.
• Limits on contributions and benefits.
• Top-heavy plan requirements.

Contributions or benefits provided by the leasing organization for services performed for you are treated as provided by you.

Benefit payment must begin when required. Your plan must provide that, unless the participant chooses otherwise, the payment of benefits to the participant must begin within 60 days after the close of the latest of the following periods.

• The plan year in which the participant reaches the earlier of age 65 or the normal retirement age specified in the plan.
• The plan year in which the 10th anniversary of the year in which the participant began participating in the plan occurs.
• The plan year in which the participant separates from service.

Early retirement. Your plan can provide for payment of retirement benefits before the normal retirement age. If your plan offers an early retirement benefit, a participant who separates from service before satisfying the early retirement age requirement is entitled to that benefit if he or she meets both the following requirements.

• Satisfies the service requirement for the early retirement benefit.
• Separates from service with a nonforfeitable right to an accrued benefit. The benefit, which may be actuarially reduced, must be payable when the early retirement age requirement is met.

Survivor benefits. Defined benefit and money purchase pension plans must provide automatic survivor benefits in both the following forms.

• A qualified joint and survivor annuity for a vested participant who does not die before the annuity starting date.
• A qualified pre-retirement survivor annuity for a vested participant who dies before the annuity starting date and who has a surviving spouse.

The automatic survivor benefit also applies to any participant under a profit-sharing plan unless all the following conditions are met.

• The participant does not choose benefits in the form of a life annuity.
• The plan pays the full vested account balance to the participant in the form of a lump sum (or other beneficiary if the surviving spouse consents or if there is no surviving spouse) if the participant dies.
• The plan is not a direct or indirect transfer of a plan that must provide automatic survivor benefits.

Loaned by benefits. If survivor benefits are required for a spouse under a plan, he or she must consent to a loan that uses as security the accrued benefits in the plan.

Waiver of survivor benefits. Each plan participant may be permitted to waive the joint and survivor annuity or the pre-retirement survivor annuity (or both), but only if the participant has the written consent of the spouse. The plan also must allow the participant to withdraw the waiver. The spouse’s consent must be witnessed by a plan representative or notary public.

Waiver of 30-day waiting period before annuity starting date. A plan may permit a participant to waive (with spousal consent) the 30-day minimum waiting period after a written explanation of the terms and conditions of a joint and survivor annuity is provided to each participant.

The waiver is allowed only if the distribution begins more than 7 days after the written explanation is provided.

Involuntary cash-out of benefits not more than dollar limit. A plan may provide for the immediate distribution of the participant’s benefit under the plan if the present value of the benefit is not greater than $5,000.

However, the distribution cannot be made after the annuity starting date unless the participant and the spouse or surviving spouse of a participant consents in writing to the distribution. If the present value is greater than $5,000, the plan must have the written consent of the participant and the spouse or surviving spouse (if automatic survivor benefits are required for a spouse under the plan) for any immediate distribution of the benefit.

Benefits attributable to rollover contributions and earnings on them can be ignored in determining the present value of these benefits.

For distributions made on or after March 28, 2005, a plan must provide for the automatic rollover of any cash-out distribution of more than $1,000 to an individual retirement account, unless the participant chooses otherwise. The plan administrator must notify the participant in writing that the distribution can be transferred to another IRA.

Consolidation, merger, or transfer of assets or liabilities. Your plan must provide that, in the case of any merger or consolidation with, or transfer of assets or liabilities to, any other plan, each participant would (if the plan then terminated) receive a benefit equal to or more than the benefit he or she would have been entitled to just before the merger, etc. (If the plan had then terminated).

The type and rule above prints on all proofs including departmental reproduction proofs. MUST be removed before printing.
Table and Worksheets for the Self-Employed

As discussed in chapters 2 and 4, if you are self-employed, you must include the following rate table or rate sheet and deduction worksheet to figure your deduction for contributions you made for yourself to a SEP-IRA or qualified plan.

First, use either the rate table or rate sheet to find your reduced contribution rate. Then complete the deduction worksheet to figure your deduction for contributions.

The table and the worksheets that follow apply only to self-employed individuals who have only one defined contribution plan, such as a profit-sharing plan. A SEP plan is treated as a profit-sharing plan. However, do not use this worksheet for SAR-SEPs.

Rate table for self-employed. If your plan's contribution rate is a whole percentage (for example, 12% rather than 12 1/2%), you can use the following table to find your reduced contribution rate. Otherwise, use the rate worksheet provided later.

First, find your plan contribution rate (the contribution rate stated in your plan) in Column A of the table. Then read across to the rate column for self-employed. Enter the rate from Column B in step 4 of the Deduction Worksheet for Self-Employed.

Example. You are a sole proprietor with no employees. If your plan's contribution rate is 10% of a participant's compensation, your rate is 0.090909. Enter this rate in step 4 of the Deduction Worksheet for Self-Employed.

Rate worksheet for self-employed. If your plan's contribution rate is not a whole percentage (for example, 10 1/2%), you cannot use the Rate Table for Self-Employed. Use the following worksheet instead.

Rate Worksheet for Self-Employed

1) Plan contribution rate as a decimal (for example, 10 1/2% = 0.105).
2) Rate in line 1 plus 1 (for example, 0.105 + 1 = 1.105).
3) Self-employed rate as a decimal rounded to at least 3 decimal places.

Figuring your deduction. Now that you have your self-employed rate from either the rate table or rate sheet worksheet, you can figure your maximum deduction for contributions for yourself by completing the Deduction Worksheet for Self-Employed.

Community property laws. If you reside in a community property state and you are married and filing a separate return, disregard community property laws for step 1 of the Deduction Worksheet for Self-Employed. Enter on step 1 the total net profit you actually earned.

Example. You are a sole proprietor with no employees. The terms of your plan provide that you contribute 8 1/2% (0.085) of your compensation to your plan. Your net profit from line 31, Schedule C (Form 1040) is $200,000. You have no elective deferrals or catch-up contributions.

6. How To Get Tax Help

You can get help with unresolved tax issues, order free publications and forms, ask tax questions, and get information from the IRS in several ways. By selecting the method that is best for you, you will have quick and easy access to tax help.

Contacting your Taxpayer Advocate. If you have attempted to deal with an IRS problem unsuccessfully, you should contact your Taxpayer Advocate.

The Taxpayer Advocate independently represents your interests and concerns within the IRS by protecting your rights and resolving problems that have not been fixed through normal channels. While Taxpayer Advocates cannot change the tax law or make a technical tax decision, they can clear up problems that result from previous contacts and ensure that your case is given a complete and impartial review.

To contact your Taxpayer Advocate:
- Call the Taxpayer Advocate toll free at 1-877-777-4778.
- Call, write, or fax the Taxpayer Advocate office in your area.

For more information, see Publication 1546, How To Get Help With Unresolved Tax Problems (now available in Chinese, Korean, Russian, and Vietnamese, in addition to English and Spanish).

Free tax services. To find out what services are available, get Publication 910, IRS Guide to Free Tax Services. It contains a list of free tax publications and an index of tax topics. It also describes other free tax information services, including tax education and assistance programs and a list of TeleTax topics.

Internet. You can access the IRS website 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, at www.irs.gov.to:
- E-file your return. Find out about commercial tax preparation and e-file services available free to eligible taxpayers.
- Check the status of your 2006 refund. Click on Where’s My Refund? Be sure to wait at least 6 weeks from the date you filed your return (3 weeks if you filed electronically). Have your 2006 tax return available because you will need to know your social security number, your filing status, and the exact whole dollar amount of your refund.
- Download forms, instructions, and publications.

Evaluating the quality of our telephone services. To ensure that IRS representatives give accurate, courteous, and professional answers, we use several methods to evaluate the quality of our telephone services. One method is for a second IRS representative to sometimes listen in on or record telephone calls. Another is to ask some callers to complete a short survey at the end of the call.

Walk-in. Many products and services are available on a walk-in basis.
- Products. You can walk in to many post offices, libraries, and IRS offices to pick up certain forms, instructions, and publications. Some IRS offices, libraries, grocery stores, copy centers, city and county government offices, credit unions, and office supply stores have a collection of products available to print from a CD-ROM or photocopy from reproducible proofs. Also, some IRS offices and libraries have the Internal Revenue Code, regulations, Internal Revenue Bulletins, and Cumulative Bulletins available for research purposes.
- Services. You can walk in to your local Taxpayer Assistance Center every business day for personal, face-to-face tax help. An employee can explain IRS letters, request adjustments to your tax account, or help you set up a payment plan. If you need to resolve a tax problem, have questions about how the tax law applies to your individual tax return, or you’re more comfortable talking with someone in person, visit your local Taxpayer Assistance Center where you can spread out your records and talk with an IRS representative face-to-face. No appointment is necessary, but if you prefer, you can call your local Center and leave a message requesting an appointment to resolve a tax account issue. A representative will call you back within 2 business days to schedule an in-person appointment at your convenience.
