

Federal Estate Tax Returns, 1995–1997

by Barry W. Johnson and Jacob M. Mikow

The number of Federal estate tax returns filed for decedents with at least $600,000 in gross estate increased from an estimated 69,755 in 1995 to 90,006 in 1997, an increase of 29.0 percent. Approximately 78,023 of the returns filed during this 3-year period were for decedents who died in 1995. These 1995 decedents had combined gross estates, for tax purposes, of $136.1 billion and average gross estates of $1.7 million. Just under half of the returns filed for 1995 decedents reported a tax liability, which totaled $14.3 billion. After debts, administration expenses, and taxes, these decedents reported combined distributable assets of $108.3 billion. Of this total, $9.7 billion, or 9.0 percent, was bequeathed to charitable organizations, and $40.9 billion, or 37.8 percent, was bequeathed to surviving spouses, leaving $57.7 billion, or 53.3 percent, for children and other individuals.

Introduction

The Federal estate tax, the gift tax, and the generation-skipping transfer tax together form the Federal unified transfer tax system. This system taxes transfers made by individuals both during life, inter vivos transfers, and at death, testamentary transfers. This article presents data from Federal estate tax returns (Form 706) filed in 1995–1997, with an emphasis on decedents who died in 1995 (see Data Sources and Limitations).

Background on Estate Taxation

The Revenue Act of 1916, which formed the basic framework of our modern Federal estate tax, was enacted on September 8, 1916. It applied a graduated tax rate schedule to a decedent's net estate, defined as the total property a decedent owned—the gross estate—less deductions, including debts, expenses, and losses of the estate. Opponents of the tax appealed to the United States Supreme Court, arguing that it was an infringement on the States' right to regulate the process of transferring property at death. The Constitutionality of the tax, however, was upheld, and the Federal estate tax became a permanent element of the U.S. tax system [1].

During the 60 years following the 1916 Act, Federal estate tax law underwent many changes. The U.S. Congress added a gift tax, allowed estates the option of valuing property on a date other than the decedent's date of death in cases where the value of some assets had subsequently changed, and added deductions for bequests to surviving spouses and qualified charities (see Figure A). The Tax Reform Act (TRA) of 1976 (Public Law 94-455 sections 2001-2009) introduced major changes in the way both estates and gifts were taxed. The Act established a unified estate and gift tax rate schedule that applied to both cumulative lifetime gifts and wealth transfers at death. Under prior law, the tax rate for transfers at death had been significantly higher than the tax rate for inter vivos gifts. The 1976 Act provided a unified system in which gifts made during life and transfers made at death were taxed uniformly.

The TRA of 1976 combined the estate tax exclusion and the lifetime gift tax exclusion into a single “unified credit” that could be used to offset tax liability incurred during the donor's life (gift tax) or at death (estate tax). In addition to the unified credit, the Act provided for an annual gift tax exclusion of $3,000 per donee. The TRA of 1976 also added a new tax, the generation-skipping transfer (GST) tax. The GST tax, as modified by the Tax Reform Act of 1986, was enacted to ensure taxation of wealth transfers from one generation to the next, regardless of the form of the transfer [2]. By taxing distributions and certain events, such as the death of a beneficiary, at the highest marginal Federal estate tax rate, the GST discourages transfers that split the benefits of property between two subsequent generations through the use of trusts [3]. In addition, direct transfers that skip over a younger generation are taxed at the maximum marginal Federal estate tax rate under the GST. Subsequent legislation established a lifetime cumulative exemption of $1 million per donor. Like the gift tax, the GST tax allows married couples to combine their tax-free exemptions. The TRA of 1976 effectively combined all three taxes into a single framework.

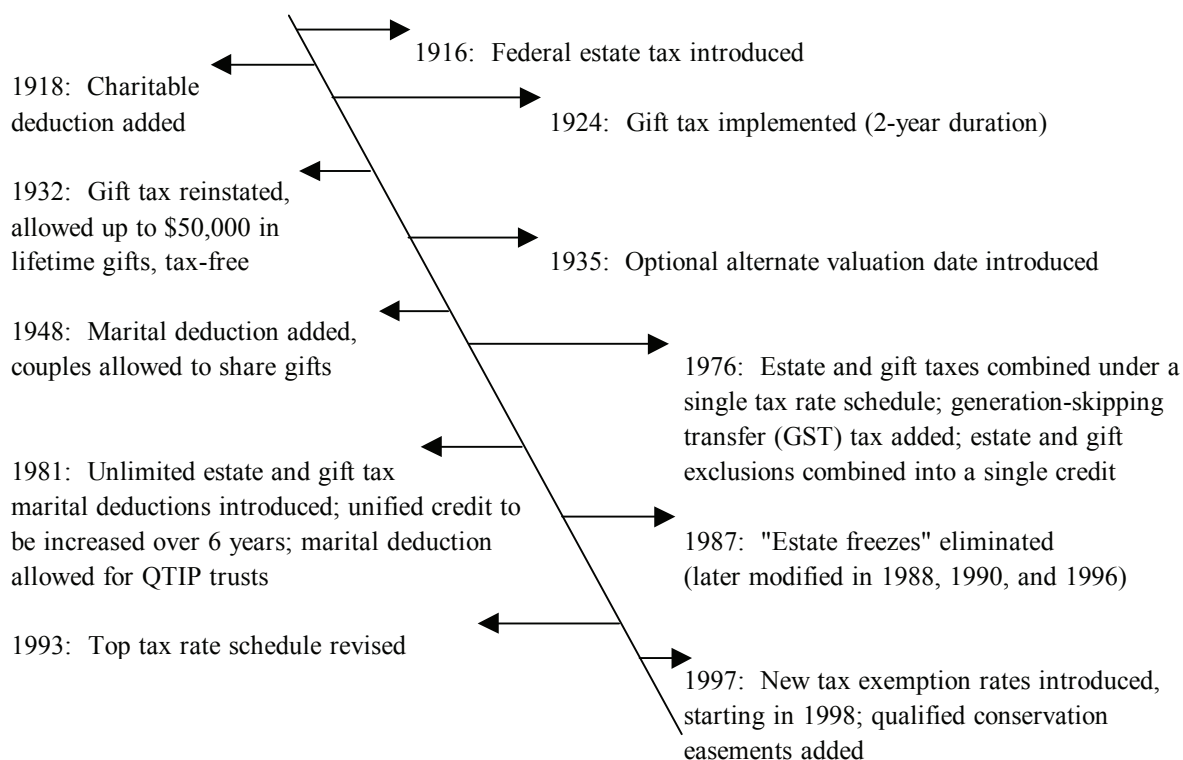

The Economic Recovery Tax Act (ERTA) of 1981 (Public Law 97-34) also significantly altered Federal estate tax law. The Act gradually increased the unified credit from $47,000 to $192,800 over a 6-year period. This effectively raised the exemption and, thus, the filing requirement, from $175,000 in 1981 to $600,000 in 1987. In addition, ERTA provided for an unlimited deduction for property bequeathed to a surviving spouse and raised the annual gift tax exclusion from $3,000 per donee to $10,000 per donee. The Act also provided for lowering the top marginal estate tax rate from 70 percent on taxable estates in excess of $5 million to 50 percent on taxable estates of $3 million or more, to be phased in over 3 years. Subsequent legislation set the top marginal estate tax rate at 55 percent.

In recent years, the estate tax has been the focus of renewed interest. In 1997, the 105th Congress passed The Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997 (Public Law 105-34). This law included several important changes to estate and gift taxes, the most significant of which was the incremental increase of the estate tax filing threshold to $1 million by the year 2006. For a more detailed explanation of tax law changes under the 1997 Act, as well as highlights of tax law changes in 1996, see the Appendix.

Estate Tax Law, 1987-1997

Estates of decedents who at death owned assets valued in excess of the effective filing threshold must file a Form 706, U.S. Estate (and Generation-Skipping Transfer) Tax Return. The return must be filed within 9 months of the decedent's date of death. However, if a filing extension is approved, the form may be filed up to 6 months after the original filing deadline. Thus, estates may take up to 15 months after the decedent's date of death to file the return. Between 1987 and 1997, the filing threshold in effect was $600,000.

The tax applied to qualifying estates is based on the decedent's gross estate less allowable deductions. For tax purposes, gross estate includes "all property in which the decedent had an interest at the time of his or her death and certain property transferred during the lifetime of the decedent without adequate consideration; certain property held jointly by the decedent with others; property over which the decedent had a general power of appointment; proceeds of certain insurance policies on the decedent's life; dower or curtesy of a surviving spouse; and certain life estate property for which the marital deduction was previously allowed" [4]. In most cases, assets held by the decedent are valued as of the date of death. However, in cases where the value of the decedent's portfolio falls within 6 months of death, resulting in a lower overall tax liability for the estate, the tax liability may be calculated using an "alternate valuation" date. Allowable deductions include expenses, taxes, and losses incurred while administering the estate; the decedent's debts; and bequests to qualified charities. In addition, estates of married decedents are allowed an unlimited deduction for property bequeathed to the surviving spouse.

A unified credit is allowed, and, between 1987 and 1997, the credit was $192,800, the credit equivalent of $600,000 in total taxable transfers. The unified tax rate schedule on taxable estate and gift transfers is graduated from the initial rate of 18 percent to the top tax rate of 55 percent on transfers of $3 million or more. In addition, for decedents dying between 1987 and 1997, the reduction in taxes due to graduated tax rates and the unified credit were phased out for taxable estates between $10,000,000 and $21,040,000, effectively creating a 60-percent bracket for taxable estates within this range. Taxable generation-skipping transfers, those transfers in excess of $1 million, are taxed at the 55-percent tax rate.

1995 Decedents: Demographic Data

There were an estimated 78,023 decedents who died in 1995 for whom a Federal estate tax return was filed, an increase of 29.9 percent over the number of 1992 decedents whose estates were required to file. The 1995 estate tax decedents accounted for only 3.4 percent of all U.S. deaths in 1995. An estimated 42,864, or 54.9 percent, of all 1995 estate tax decedents were male, while 35,159, or 45.1 percent, were female (see Figure B). While a significantly higher percentage of these wealthy decedents were male, this was not true for the general U.S. decedent population, where the number of male and female decedents was nearly the same, 50.7 percent and 49.3 percent of all U.S. deaths, respectively [5]. The average age of 1995 estate tax decedents was 75.3 years for males and 80.9 years for females, while the life expectancy for males and females in the general population was, on average, 72.5 and 78.9 years, respectively. Male estate tax decedents lived 2.8 years longer than their counterparts in the U.S. decedent population, while female estate tax decedents lived 2.0 years longer than their U.S. decedent population counterparts. In addition, the difference between the average age at death for males and females in the 1995 estate tax population of 5.6 years was a less pronounced difference than that in the general 1995 U.S. decedent population (6.4 years), but about the same as the difference observed for 1992 estate tax decedents. Factors such as access to better health care, better nutrition, and safer work environments may explain the increased longevity of 1995 estate tax decedents when compared to all U.S. decedents [6].

Returns filed for 1995 estate tax decedents reported $136.1 billion in combined gross estate for estate tax purposes, an increase of 30.3 percent over that of estate tax decedents who died in 1992. Male 1995 estate tax decedents held $81.4 billion, or 59.8 percent of combined gross estate, while females held $54.7 billion, or 40.2 percent of combined gross estate. Although males accounted for 54.9 percent of 1995 estate tax decedents and owned 59.8 percent of combined gross estate, estates of male decedents incurred only 45.5 percent of the reported $14.3 billion in total estate tax liability. The disparity between the relatively large share of combined gross estate owned by male decedents and the relatively small share of the total tax liability attributable to their estates is due, in part, to the large number of married male decedents whose estates took advantage of the unlimited marital deduction. Of the 41,436 nontaxable estates, 24,110, or 58.2 percent, belonged to married males, and only 7,089, or 17.1 percent of nontaxable estates, belonged to married females. While the percentage of nontaxable returns filed for married decedents was similar for males and females, 87.0 and 81.6, respectively, the greater number of married male decedents meant that a large share of their tax liabilities was shifted to the estates of widowed females. Thus, the average tax liability for estates of married male decedents was only $70,222, compared to the average tax liability for estates of widowed female decedents of $294,342.

Of the 42,864 male decedents in the estate tax decedent population, 27,720, or 64.7 percent, were married (see Figure C). Only 8,684, or 24.7 percent, of female estate tax decedents were married. While only 23.1 percent of male decedents were widowed at death, the majority of female decedents were widowed, with 21,920, or 62.3 percent, of all female decedents in this category. The percentages of decedents who were classified as either single or as separated or divorced were similar for both sexes. Only 8.0 percent of males and 8.8 percent of females were single, while 4.2 percent of both males and females were separated or divorced [7].

On average, estates of male decedents were larger than those of their female counterparts, regardless of marital status. Married male decedents had an average gross estate of $2.0 million, compared to $1.6 million for married female decedents. Widowed male decedents had average gross estate of $1.7 million, about $100,000 more than the average gross estate for widowed female decedents. Divorced or separated male decedents had the highest average gross estate among 1995 estate tax decedent groups, $2.2 million, while female decedents in that category had an average gross estate of just $1.5 million. The larger average estate size for male decedents compared to female decedents may be at least partially due to age at death. Since female estate tax decedents outlived their male counterparts by an average 5.6 years, females use more of their lifetime savings for living expenses, which may increase in later years.

1995 Decedents: Industry and Occupation Data

Starting in 1995, SOI collected and coded data on both the industry in which an estate tax decedent worked and his or her occupation within that industry. Figures D and E show industry and occupation data by sex within ten industry categories and seventeen occupation categories based on the Department of Commerce's Standard Industrial Classification (SIC) and Standard Occupational Classification (SOC) [8]. While decedents' occupations and the industries in which they worked were, in general, widely dispersed across the categories presented, a surprising 26.9 percent of all male decedents and 24.8 percent of all female decedents worked in the services industry (legal profession, recreation services, and business services). This industry employed the largest number of decedents for both sexes. Of all male decedents, 14.5 percent worked in the manufacturing industry (manufacture of food products, chemicals, and wood products), the second largest industry category for male decedents, while the retail industry (food, apparel, and miscellaneous retail) was the second largest industry category for females, employing 6.0 percent of all female decedents. The wholesale industry (the sale of materials, industrial supplies, and chemicals to businesses) employed the smallest number of decedents of either sex, with just 1.9 percent of all male decedents and 0.3 percent of all female decedents in this industry.

Since many occupations are specific to a particular industry, some trends present in the industry data were repeated in the occupation data. The executive and managerial occupation category (administrators, upper management, and business owners--excluding retail and wholesale businesses) included the largest number of males, 27.7 percent of all male estate tax decedents. The teacher and counselor occupation category (school teachers, librarians, and guidance counselors) included the largest number of females, 14.8 percent of all female estate tax decedents. This occupation category included the second largest number of males, 12.3 percent of all male decedents. For females, the administrative support category (clerical, service, and support occupations) was the second largest occupation category, accounting for 9.6 percent of all female decedents. Farmers, included in the agricultural workers category in Figure E, accounted for 8.7 percent of all male decedents and just 1.4 percent of all female decedents. The handler and helper occupation category (laborers, supervisors, and equipment cleaners) included the smallest number of males, 0.4 percent of all male estate tax decedents. The transportation (transportation and material moving occupations) and military (officers and crew members) occupation categories included the smallest number of female decedents, with each category employing less than 0.03 percent of all female estate tax decedents.

The average size of gross estate for estate tax decedents varied significantly among occupation and industry categories and between sexes (see Figures F and G). Overall, decedents who worked in the finance, insurance, and real estate industry (bankers, brokers, and agents) had the largest average gross estate, $2.5 million. Within this industry, the average gross estate of male estate tax decedents was $2.8 million, while the average gross estate of female estate tax decedents was $1.9 million, only 69.0 percent of the male average gross estate. In the manufacturing industry, where the average gross estate was the second largest for all decedents, the average gross estate of male decedents was $2.2 million, 37.8 percent higher than the average gross estate of $1.6 million for female decedents in this industry. Workers in the public administration industry (Federal, State, local, and international government workers) had the lowest average gross estate, only $1.1 million for both sexes. Although average gross estate size varied by industry and sex, the average gross estate value for male decedents overall was greater than or equal to the average gross estate value for female decedents in all industry categories.

Decedents in the executive and managerial occupation category had the highest average gross estate size, $2.4 million. Within this occupation category, male decedents had an average gross estate of $2.6 million compared to female decedents whose average gross estate was only $1.6 million. This $1.0-million difference in the size of average gross estate for males and females was the largest difference within a single occupation category. Decedents whose occupations were included in the entertainer and athlete occupation category (writers, artists, and performers) had the second highest average gross estate for all decedents, $2.3 million. Although male decedents had a larger average gross estate than female decedents in this occupation category, $2.3 million compared to $2.2 million, the difference was only $0.1 million. For both sexes, decedents whose jobs were classified in the military occupation category had the lowest average gross estate, $1.0 million for males and $0.7 million for females. Overall, the average gross estate values of male decedents were greater than or equal to those of female decedents in nearly all occupation categories.

1995 Decedents: Asset Data

Federal estate tax law requires the executor or preparer to report all assets that comprise the decedent's gross estate. The Federal estate tax return includes nine different asset schedules, each of which broadly represents an asset type. SOI further assigns the assets to one of 27 different categories. The distribution of these assets provides a profile of the financial priorities and preferences of 1995 estate tax decedents at the time of death.

Figure H shows that, for both male and female estate tax decedents, $96.3 billion, or almost three-quarters of combined gross estate, was held in real estate, stock, and bonds [9]. The remainder of their assets was held primarily as cash, retirement assets, life insurance, or interests in non-corporate businesses. Although patterns of asset allocation are similar between male and female decedents, there are a few notable differences. Differences in portfolio mix between males and females may reflect differences in age at death, attitudes toward risk, or source of wealth.

Composition of Gross Estates at Date of Death, 1992 and 1995 Decedents

NOTE: Detail may not add to 100 percent because of rounding.

Investments in stock comprised the largest share of combined gross estate for both male and female decedents. Male decedents held a larger percentage of their total assets in stock, 33.6 percent, compared to 31.5 percent for females. The category “stock” in Figure H includes the value of stock that is not publicly traded, usually that of a small family corporation. This “closely held stock” accounted for $9.6 billion, or 21.5 percent, of the value of all stock held by 1995 estate tax decedents. While male decedents held $8.3 billion in closely held stock, or 30.2 percent of their total stock investments, female decedents held only $1.3 billion, or 7.7 percent, of their total stock investments in closely held companies. These sex-based differences may reflect differences in the number and size of female-owned businesses, compared to male-owned businesses. Traditionally, there have been fewer U.S. female entrepreneurs than male entrepreneurs, and their businesses, on average, have been smaller, in terms of receipts, than those of their male counterparts [10].

Overall, investments in real estate, including the value of a personal residence, accounted for the second largest share of combined gross estate in the portfolios of 1995 estate tax decedents. For male decedents, real estate comprised $15.3 billion, or 18.8 percent of their total portfolios, while female decedents held $10.7 billion, or 19.5 percent of their combined gross estates, as real estate. For male decedents, the value of a personal residence accounted for 33.3 percent of their total real estate investments. The average value of the personal residence was $187,947 for male decedents. For female decedents, the value of a personal residence accounted for 39.1 percent of their total real estate investments. The average value of the personal residence for female decedents was $214,318.

Male decedents held 16.7 percent of their combined gross estates in bond investments, significantly less than their female counterparts, who held 21.9 percent of their combined portfolios in bonds. The category “bonds” in Figure H includes investments in bonds issued by State and local governments, foreign and domestic corporations, foreign countries, and the U.S. Government. Investments in bonds issued by State or local governments made up the largest share of bond investments for both male and female decedents. Interest earned on these bonds is exempt from Federal income taxes and is, in some cases, exempt from State and local income tax as well. Male decedents held $9.0 billion, or 66.2 percent of their total bond holdings, as State and local bonds. Female decedents held $7.8 billion, or 64.7 percent of their total bond investments, in these instruments. Most of the remaining portion of bond investments, 22.5 percent for males and 22.9 percent for female decedents, was invested in bonds issued or backed by the U.S. Treasury.

Investments in retirement assets and life insurance accounted for a significant share of the remaining assets in the portfolios of 1995 decedents, and the investments offer a look at how relatively wealthy individuals provided for both their “golden years” and their survivors. Retirement assets include individual retirement arrangements, like IRA’s, Keogh and 401K accounts, and annuity insurance policies. These plans have become increasingly popular, as defined-contribution plans, such as 401K’s, replace defined-benefit pension plans in the workplace [11]. Figure H shows that male decedents held a larger percentage of retirement assets in their portfolios, 7.8 percent, than female decedents, 3.2 percent. This is due, in part, to the large percentage of female estate tax decedents who were not employed outside the home. Male decedents also held more life insurance, as a percentage of gross estate, than female decedents, 4.9 percent compared to 1.0 percent. This difference is not surprising since widowed persons may be less likely to have life insurance than married persons, with the surviving spouse named as the beneficiary. The majority of male estate tax decedents were married and, as expected, had insurance to support surviving family members. On the other hand, the majority of female estate tax decedents were widowed and, thus, were less likely to have life insurance.

Figure H also shows that the portfolios of 1995 decedents were quite similar to the portfolios held by 1992 decedents. Male decedents who died in 1995 held 2.0 percent more in bonds and 2.0 percent more in retirement assets than 1992 male decedents. On the other hand, 1992 male decedents held 1.8 percent more real estate and 1.5 percent more noncorporate business assets than 1995 male decedents. Female decedents who died in 1995 held portfolios that were nearly identical to the portfolios of female decedents who died in 1992. One notable difference was the higher percentage of combined gross estate comprised of noncorporate business assets in the portfolios of 1995 female decedents, compared to portfolios of 1992 female decedents. While still small, the 3.5 percent of combined gross estate held in noncorporate business assets by 1995 female decedents was more than double the 1.7-percent share held in the portfolios of 1992 female decedents.

1995 Decedents: Special Use Valuation
Congress, in an attempt to provide tax relief to small business owners and farmers, provided for special valuation of real property used in a decedent’s farm or closely held business, under Section 2032A of the Internal Revenue Code. Under this provision, real property is valued based on capitalized income from its current use in business rather than its fair market value, which is determined on the basis of the property's highest and best use. For example, a farmer's field might have a considerably higher value if it were sold as lots for a high density housing development. Section 2032A allows the value of the farmer's property to be determined based on its current use as a field, not as a development site.

Under this section of the code, the elected real estate must meet the following provisions: (1) the real estate must be located in the United States; (2) the real estate must pass to a qualified heir; (3) the property must have been used as a farm or in a closely held business in which the decedent or a family member materially participated for 5 of the last 8 years before the decedent's death; (4) the decedent must have been a U.S. citizen or resident; and (5) the value of the real estate must be at least 25 percent of the adjusted value of the gross estate, and the combined value of real and personal property must be at least 50 percent of the gross estate, less expenses. Special use valuation cannot reduce the fair market value of the property under consideration by more than $750,000.

Figure I shows that 456 estates, or 0.6 percent of all 1995 decedents, elected special use valuation. Of the 456 estates that used the election, over half, 57.0 percent, had gross estate values under $1 million. The fair market value of the affected real estate totaled $349.8 million, and the real property had an adjusted value of $178.5 million. The overall reduction in value was $171.3 million, or about 49.0 percent. About 0.5 percent of returns filed for 1992 decedents reported a special use valuation election, slightly less than in 1995. The distribution of estates electing the special valuation was similar for decedents in both years. However, property values for 1992 decedents' assets were reduced by 57.3 percent, about 8.3 percent more than for estates of 1995 decedents making the election, perhaps reflecting the fact that the effective exclusion was smaller in 1995 because the $750,000 reduction limit was not indexed for inflation.

1995 Decedents: Deductions

In the computation of tax liability for estates that met the filing threshold, deductions are allowed for debts and mortgages owed by the decedent, losses and expenses incurred during administration of the estate, bequests to the surviving spouse, and bequests to qualified charities. For 1995 decedents, deductions totaled $60.1 billion, or 44.1 percent of gross estate. Figure J shows these deductions grouped in four categories: spouse, charitable, debts, and other. The category "other" is composed of all expenses associated with the decedent's death and administration of the estate.

Because estates can deduct an unlimited amount for bequests to the surviving spouse, the tax status of returns filed for married decedents is determined, in large part, by the marital deduction. Overall, the marital deduction was the largest deduction from gross estate for 1995 decedents, accounting for 68.1 percent of all deductions and 30.1 percent of total gross estate. Bequests to the surviving spouse accounted for 49.4 percent of total deductions for taxable estates and 77.6 percent for nontaxable estates [12]. In terms of dollars deducted, bequests to the spouse totaled $10.1 billion, or 12.8 percent of total gross estate, for taxable estates and $30.9 billion, or 53.7 percent of total gross estate, for nontaxable estates. Of the 42,864 returns filed for male decedents, 27,066, or 63.1 percent, included spousal bequests, totaling $33.5 billion. By comparison, only 8,328, or 23.7 percent, of the 35,159 returns filed for female decedents included a deduction for spousal bequests, totaling $7.4 billion. Since male estate tax decedents, on average, died before female estate tax decedents, and since the estates of male decedents used the marital deduction at almost 3 times the rate of estates held by female decedents, it is not surprising to find that estates of female decedents who died in 1995 incurred proportionately more of the estate tax liability.

The second largest deduction for 1995 decedents was the deduction for charitable bequests. These totaled $9.7 billion, accounting for 16.2 percent of all deductions and 7.1 percent of total gross estate.

Taxable estates deducted $5.1 billion for charitable bequests, 25.2 percent of all deductions, while nontaxable estates deducted $4.6 billion, only 11.5 percent of total deductions. For estates of $20 million or more, bequests to charities accounted for 30.3 percent of all deductions, a percentage that is two to three times higher than that for other gross estate categories (see Table 2). However, a closer look at these largest estates reveals that 24 of the 182 estates in this group gave 90 percent or more of their total gross estates to charitable organizations. The generosity of these 24 estates explains the disparity in giving between the top gross estate category and other categories.

Debts, the third largest deduction for 1995 decedents, accounted for 13.2 percent of total deductions for taxable estates and 9.0 percent for nontaxable estates (see Figure J). Collectively, debts totaled $6.1 billion, or just 4.5 percent of total gross estate. The category “other” encompassed most expenses related to settling the decedent’s estate, including funeral and burial costs; executor, attorney, and accountant fees; and any losses incurred during the administration of the estate. This category comprised only 12.2 percent of total deductions for taxable estates and 1.9 percent for nontaxable estates. These expenses, which totaled $3.4 billion, accounted for the smallest share of all deductions and represented only 2.5 percent of total gross estate.

1995 Decedents: Charitable Bequests

The decision to include charities among the beneficiaries of an estate depends on many factors. The estate tax deduction for gifts to charity provides an incentive for making such bequests by lowering the price of giving to charitable organizations relative to the price of giving to non-charitable donees. Other factors, such as the utility gained from helping others and the desire to control the use of assets after death, play a role as well. However, living dependents, such as a spouse or children, compete directly with charities for a decedent’s distributable assets.

Selected Deductions as a Percentage of Total Deductions, 1995 Estate Tax Decedents

Interestingly, estates reporting a tax liability claimed only 6.5 percent of gross estate as a charitable deduction, less than the 8.0 percent claimed by estates reporting no tax liability. For estates reporting a tax liability, it is clear that factors other than tax reduction had an important influence on the disposition of assets.

Of the estimated 78,023 estate tax decedents in 1995, 14,283, or 18.3 percent, made charitable bequests (see Table 4) [13]. For those decedents who gave, charitable bequests totaled $10.1 billion, or 28.0 percent of net worth, defined as total gross estate less mortgages and other debts. The amount bequeathed to charity, as well as the nature of the recipient institutions, varied by sex, marital status, and size of gross estate. Overall, fewer male decedents made charitable bequests than female decedents. Those males who made charitable gifts gave a smaller portion of their net worth to charities than their female counterparts. An estimated 5,734 male decedents, or 13.4 percent of all male decedents, made bequests to charitable organizations, bequeathing a total of $5.1 billion, or 26.8 percent of their net worth. Of all female estate tax decedents, 8,549, or 24.3 percent, made charitable bequests that totaled $5.0 billion, or 29.3 percent of their net worth.

Charitable institutions receiving bequests from 1995 estate tax decedents were classified into one of the following six categories: (1) institutions which benefit society as a whole; (2) arts and humanities organizations; (3) religious institutions; (4) educational, medical, or scientific institutions; (5) private foundations; and (6) other, a category for contributions to organizations not includible elsewhere. Of these, religious organizations had the largest number of contributors, 8,401, or 58.8 percent of all contributing estates. Decedents of both sexes gave, on average, to 1.7 types of organizations. Combined, both sexes contributed 87.0 percent of all charitable bequests to the following three groups: educational, medical, and scientific institutions (31.6 percent); private foundations (30.9 percent); and other (24.5 percent). Private foundations received the largest share of total charitable bequests from male decedents, 38.5 percent or $2.0 billion (see Figure K). On the other hand, organizations classified as educational, medical, or scientific in nature received the largest share of total charitable bequests from female decedents, 31.9 percent or $1.6 billion. Organizations that work to improve society as a whole, including those involved in promoting civil rights, community development, social science research, or government effectiveness, received the smallest percentage of total bequests from both male and female decedents, accounting for only 0.4 percent and 1.0 percent, respectively.

Overall, single decedents were more likely to give to charitable organizations than decedents who were married, widowed, separated, or divorced. An estimated 38.3 percent of single male decedents and 48.9 percent of single female decedents made charitable bequests (see Table 4). While the 5,793 widowed female decedents who made charitable bequests constituted the largest group of female decedent donors, accounting for 67.8 percent of all female benefactors, only 26.4 percent of all widowed female decedents made charitable bequests. Likewise, the 2,296 widowed male decedents who gave to charity constituted the largest group of male benefactors, accounting for 40.0 percent of male charitable donors. However, only 23.1 percent of all widowed males made charitable bequests. Married decedents of both sexes were least likely to make charitable bequests. Only 6.9 percent of married males and 9.1 percent of married females included charities among their beneficiaries. This finding supports other research which found that marriage has a negative effect on charitable bequests, since married decedents tend to substitute bequests to spouses and children for charitable gifts [14].

Single decedents of both sexes gave a larger share of their net worth to charities than decedents who were married, widowed, separated or divorced. Single males gave 52.1 percent of net worth to charitable institutions, while single females gave 36.5 percent of net worth to charities. Widowed females, as a group, bequeathed the most property to charities, $3.7 billion or 29.7 percent of net worth. While 62.7 percent of all widowed female donors gave to religious organizations, making it the most frequently named category for all widowed women, they bequeathed the largest amount, $1.1 billion, to educational, medical, or scientific institutions. Widowed males bequeathed $1.6 billion to charities, 28.5 percent of net worth. Married decedents contributed the smallest percentage of net worth to charitable organizations, 19.3 percent for males and 11.2 percent for females. Married 1995 male decedents, as a group, gave $1.9 billion to charities, a bequest greater than that of widowed males. This is due, primarily, to four decedents who made charitable gifts of well over $100 million each. The median bequest for married males, $30,000, was almost 31 percent lower than the median bequest for widowed males, $43,155.

FilingYearData

Between 1987 and 1997, inclusive, the number of returns filed for decedents with at least $600,000 of total gross estate rose from 45,113 to 90,006, an increase of 99.5 percent (see Figure L). Over the same period, the number of returns reporting a tax liability increased from 21,335 to 42,901, just over 47 percent of the total number of returns filed in each of these years. The revenue reported on taxable returns increased more than 160 percent, from $6.4 billion in 1987 to $16.6 billion in 1997. Over this 10-year period, annual estate tax revenue, as a percentage of total Federal receipts, rose from 0.7 percent to more than 1 percent [15].

The tax liability for estate tax returns filed between 1995 and 1997 was assessed using a marginal tax rate schedule that ranged from 18 percent on the first $10,000 of taxable estate to 55 percent for that portion of taxable estate that was over $3 million. In addition, for returns with taxable estate in the range of $10,000,000 - $21,040,000, the benefits of the unified credit and marginal tax rates were phased out by applying a 5-percent surtax. Figure M shows the number of estates whose property was taxed at each of the marginal tax rates and the resulting tax liability generated at each rate. There are no entries for marginal tax rates less than 34 percent, since the tax generated by the lower marginal rates is entirely offset by the unified credit [16]. The average reported tax liability in 1995, as a percentage of net worth, less estate expenses and charitable and spousal bequests, was 22.9 percent. Fewer than half of the estates reporting a tax liability faced marginal rates higher than 41 percent. Only 2,710 estates, or about 3.9 percent of all 1995 filers, were assessed any tax at the 55-percent marginal tax rate. However, the $5.3 billion in reported tax liability incurred at this rate represents about 45 percent of the total tax liability reported on all returns filed in 1995. In addition, 370 estates, or 0.5 percent of all returns filed in 1995, were subject to the surtax, accruing an additional $107.8 million in tax liability.

² Totals differ slightly from those in tables 1a, 1b, and 1c, respectively, due to rounding.

³ In a very small number of cases, reported tax liability calculated at lower marginal rates was combined to prevent disclosure of individual taxpayer data.

In 1997, the average tax liability, as a percentage of net worth, less estate expenses and charitable and spousal bequests, was 23.2 percent. More than half of the estates reporting a tax liability faced top marginal rates of 39 percent or less. Again, only about 3.9 percent of all filers were assessed any tax at the 55-percent marginal tax rate. These returns, however, incurred about 47.3 percent of the total tax liability reported on all returns filed in 1997. The surtax on taxable estates over $10 million added a total of $160 million in tax liability to 560 estates, or 0.6 percent of all estates that filed in 1997.

Summary

There were an estimated 78,023 Federal estate tax returns filed for 1995 decedents. The majority of these decedents, 54.9 percent, were males who had aggregate gross assets of $81.5 billion. Although females accounted for only 45.1 percent of all estate tax decedents, their estates incurred 54.5 percent of the total $14.3-billion tax liability reported for 1995 decedents.

Investments in corporate stock accounted for the largest share of the portfolios of both male and female 1995 estate tax decedents. Bonds, primarily tax-exempt State or local debt instruments, made up the second largest share of female decedents' assets. Real estate, on the other hand, made up the second largest share of male decedents' assets. Investments in stock, bonds, and real estate together accounted for almost three-quarters of assets reported for 1995 estate tax decedents.

Estate tax decedents who died in 1995 reported deductions that totaled $60.1 billion. The unlimited marital deduction was the largest deduction taken by estates of married decedents, and it amounted to $41.0 billion. Returns filed for male decedents claimed marital deductions that totaled $33.5 billion. Just 18.3 percent of all decedents reported combined charitable deductions of $10.1 billion, the second largest deduction. Overall, decedents of both sexes who were widowed or single were most likely to make a charitable bequest. These decedents also gave a larger percentage of their net worth to charities than did their married counterparts.

Federal Estate Tax Returns, 1995-1997

Explanation of Selected Terms

Brief definitions of some of the terms used in the text and tables are provided below:

Adjusted taxable estate.--Adjusted taxable estate was equal to the sum of taxable estate and adjusted taxable gifts.

Adjusted taxable gifts.--Certain gifts made during the life of an individual who died before 1982 were automatically included in the gross estate. However, for the estate of an individual who died after 1981, these gifts were not generally included in the gross estate. Instead, they were added to the taxable estate, creating the "adjusted taxable estate" for the purposes of determining the "estate tax before credits."

Bequests to surviving spouse.--This was equal to the value of property interests passing from the decedent to the surviving spouse and was taken as a deduction from the "total gross estate."

Charitable deduction.--This was the deduction allowable for decedents' contributions to qualifying charitable organizations.

Community property.--This was the full value of all property held by married decedents and identified as community property. Currently, Arizona, California, Idaho, Louisiana, Nevada, New Mexico, Texas, Washington, and Wisconsin have community property laws. Only one-half of the value of such property is taxable under Federal estate tax laws.

Estate tax before credits.--This was the tax obtained by applying the graduated estate tax rates to the adjusted taxable estate reduced by the amount of Federal gift taxes previously paid.

Federal gift taxes previously paid.--Credit was allowed against the estate tax for the Federal gift tax paid on gifts made by a decedent before 1977. No credit, apart from the unified credit, was allowed for any gift tax paid on gifts made after 1976.

Net estate tax.--This was the estate's tax liability after credits for State death taxes, foreign death taxes, tax on prior transfers, and Federal gift taxes previously paid were subtracted from gross estate tax. In addition to these credits, a "unified credit," graduated according to the year of death and a "credit" for gift taxes paid on post-1976 gifts, is allowed (see also "unified credit").

Net worth.--Net worth was equal to total gross estate less mortgages and other debts calculated as of the decedent's date of death.

Nontaxable returns.--Nontaxable returns were those with no estate tax liability after credits.

Other tax credits.--This was the sum of the tax credits for death taxes paid to foreign governments and Federal gift taxes previously paid. It also included a tax credit for Federal estate tax paid on property received by the decedent or the estate from a transferor who died within 10 years before, or 2 years after, the decedent. This credit was intended to lessen the burden of double taxation between successive estates whose owners had died within a short period of time. Depending on the time that elapsed between the deaths, a credit was allowed for all or part of the Federal estate tax paid by the transferor's estate with respect to the transfer.

QTIP property.--This was the value of all property transferred to the surviving spouse in trust for which an estate tax deduction was claimed. Any Qualified Terminable Interest Property remaining at the time of the surviving spouse's death must be included in his or her total gross estate.

Taxable estate.--Taxable estate was the base to which the graduated Federal estate tax rates are applied in computing the estate tax before credits. Taxable estate is equal to the value of the "total gross estate" less deductions for the following: funeral and administrative expenses; casualty and theft losses; debts, mortgages, losses and other claims against the estate, including pledges to charitable organizations; bequests to the surviving spouse; and the "employee stock ownership plan" (ESOP) deduction (included in the statistics for "other expenses and losses").

Taxable returns.--Taxable returns were those with estate tax liability after credits.

Total gross estate.--An estate tax return was required in the case of every decedent whose gross estate at the time of death exceeded the legal filing requirement in effect for the year of death. For estate tax purposes, the gross estate included all property or interest in property before reduction by debts (except policy loans against insurance) and mortgage, or administrative expenses. Included in the gross estate were such items as real estate, tangible and intangible personal property, certain lifetime gifts made by the decedent, property in which the decedent had a general power of appointment, the decedent's interest in annuities receivable by the surviving beneficiary, the decedent's share in community property, life insurance proceeds (even though payable to beneficiaries other than the estate), dower or courtesy of the surviving spouse (inherited property), and, with certain exceptions, joint estates with right of survivorship and tenancies by the entirety. Assets may be valued either on the decedent's date of death or at a date 6 months after death if a fall in asset values in this time period results in a reduced estate tax liability. Total Gross Estate, Date of Death, reflected the value of all assets at the time of the decedent's death. Total Gross Estate, for Tax Purposes, reflected the asset values used to calculate the taxable estate and may be either date of death or alternate valuation values. In this article, total gross estate refers to the value of assets used to calculate the estate tax liability unless otherwise specified.

Unified credit.--The unified credit, so called because it is used for both estate and gift tax purposes, is applied as a dollar-for-dollar reduction of the estate tax. (The unified credit represents the amount of tax on that part of gross estate which is below the filing requirement.) The credit must be used to offset gift taxes on lifetime transfers made after 1976. However, to the extent it is so used, the amount of credit available at death is reduced.

Data Sources and Limitations

The data presented in this article are estimates based on samples of Federal estate tax returns filed in 1995, 1996, and 1997. These samples were limited to returns filed for decedents who died after 1981 with total gross estates of at least $600,000. The sample of returns filed in 1995 included 8,901 returns out of a total population of 69,755. In 1996, the year in which most returns for 1995 decedents were filed, 15,622 returns were sampled out of a total of 79,321 filed. There were 11,186 returns sampled out of a total of 90,006 returns filed during 1997. Of the 35,709 returns sampled during 1995-1997, there were 14,700 returns filed for 1995 decedents.

Estate tax returns were statistically sampled while the returns were being processed for administrative purposes, prior to any audit examination. Thus, returns were selected on a flow basis using a stratified random probability sampling method (Bernoulli sampling). Sample rates were preset based on the desired sample size and an estimate of the population. The design had three stratification variables: year of death, age at death, and size of total gross estate. For returns filed in 1995-1997, the year of death variable was separated into two categories: 1995 year of death and non-1995 year of death. Age was disaggregated into five categories: less than 40, 40 under 50, 50 under 65, 65 under 75, and 75 and older (including age unknown). Total gross estate was limited to four categories: $500,000 under $1 million, $1 million under $5 million, $5 million under $10 million, and $10 million or more. Sampling rates ranged from 3 percent to 100 percent. More than half of the strata were selected with certainty.

An examination of returns filed between 1982 and 1995 revealed that almost 99 percent of all returns for decedents who die in a given year are filed by the end of the second calendar year following the year of death. Further, the decedent's age at death and the length of time between the decedent's date of death and the filing of an estate tax return are related. Therefore, it was possible to predict the percentage of unfiled returns within age strata, using a ratio adjustment. The sample weights were adjusted accordingly, in order to account for returns for 1995 decedents not filed by the end of the 1997 calendar year.

Appendix: Summary of Significant Tax Law Changes, 1996-1997

Small Business Act of 1996

In the Small Business Act of 1996, the U.S. Congress addressed the Federal estate and gift tax in order to clarify provisions set forth in the Revenue Reconciliation Act of 1990. All of the provisions made by the 1996 law are retroactive to transfers made after October 8, 1990, as if the 1996 provisions had been included in the original 1990 law. The following four clarifications, set forth by the 1996 law in section 1702, apply to "estate freezes."

An "estate freeze" is a technique used by individuals who own a large interest in a business or other property in order to limit or reduce the value of that interest for estate tax purposes. The owner of the business, usually a member of an older generation, transfers the part of the ownership interest that will appreciate over time to another party, usually a relative in a younger generation, while retaining income-producing ownership interests, those usually vested with control of the asset. A gift tax liability is incurred on the transferred asset, but any future appreciation in the transferred asset's value accrues to the transferee. Estate freeze laws established special valuation rules to ensure that the value of the transferred assets were assigned accurately. Under these rules, the value of the transferor's retained interests are disregarded in order to maximize the value of the transferred ownership interests and the resulting gift tax liability.

The special valuation rules apply only to certain "applicable retained interests." Two types of rights, called affected rights, comprise applicable retained interests. The first type of right is a liquidation, put, call, or conversion right. The second type of right is a distribution right, not including a distribution right on junior equity interests [17]. Under existing rules, an affected right, other than a right to a qualified payment, is valued at zero [18]. However, any retained interest that confers both a liquidation, put, call, or conversion right and a distribution right to a qualified payment is valued on the assumption that each right is exercised in order to yield its lowest value for the right.

The Technical Corrections Act of 1996 modified estate freeze rules (section 2701 of the Internal Revenue Code) as follows:

- (1) The Act clarifies existing rules by specifying that the value of a distribution right is not determined under the special valuation rules when the following condition is met: an applicable retained interest that confers a distribution right to receive qualified payments includes no liquidation, put, call, or conversion right.
- (2) When an applicable retained interest that confers a distribution right to receive qualified payments has no liquidation, put, call, or conversion right, the 1996 law provides that retaining such a distribution right may result in an increase in the transferor's taxable estate or taxable gifts.
- (3) The 1996 law grants regulatory authority to the IRS to treat partnership interests with rights that are junior with respect to either income or capital as junior equity interests for valuation purposes. It also broadens the definition of a junior interest so that the special valuation rules do not affect the valuation of a transferred interest that is senior to the retained interest, even if the retained interest does not technically meet the definition of a junior equity interest.

- (4) The new law conforms section 2702 of the Internal Revenue Code to existing regulatory terminology by substituting the term "incomplete gift" for "incomplete transfer." The law limits the exception for gifts incomplete in entirety, but the law allows the IRS to create additional exceptions not inconsistent with the purposes of section 2702.

The Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997

This Act addresses several areas of Federal estate and gift tax law and includes changing filing requirements, indexing certain provisions, restricting the statute of limitations for examining gift tax returns, providing exclusions for conservation easements and family-owned businesses, and clarifying certain charitable deductions. The most dramatic change is the increase in the unified credit, now called the "applicable exclusion amount." The change in the applicable exclusion amount, combined with indexing certain provisions and providing an exclusion for qualified family-owned businesses, is estimated to reduce Federal fiscal year budget receipts, as shown in Figure N.

The change in the applicable credit effectively raises the filing requirement over a 9-year period to $1 million by the year 2006. Figure O reflects the new applicable credit based on the decedent's year of death and the credit equivalent in total taxable transfers.

In addition, under prior law, the tax savings attributable to the unified credit and graduated tax rates were phased out for large estates by adding a surtax of 5 percent for estates with taxable transfers between $10 million and $21,040,000 (for larger estates, the surtax was $552,000). In effect, estates with taxable transfers greater than $21,040,000 were taxed at a flat 55-percent rate with no reduction in tax because of the unified credit. The new law retains only the phaseout of the graduated rates, allowing these large estates to retain the tax savings attributable to the applicable exclusion amount. The 5-percent surtax is applied to taxable transfers between $10 million and $17,184,000. For estates with taxable transfers larger than $17,184,000, the surtax is $359,200, effectively taxing the entire transfer at the 55-percent rate.

An important feature of the 1997 law is a provision to index several items for inflation. The annual exclusion for gifts, the generation-skipping transfer tax exemption, the ceiling on the reduction in value allowed under special use valuation, and the ceiling on the amount of deferred tax eligible for the special low interest rate are all indexed annually for inflation and then rounded [19]. This provision is effective for decedents dying and gifts made after December 31, 1998.

A key provision of the 1997 Act was designed to preserve and protect family-owned businesses. If more than 50 percent of a decedent's estate consists of a qualified family-owned business or businesses, the executor may elect to treat up to $675,000 of the business value as a deduction for estate tax purposes. To qualify, the business must be predominantly owned by the family. In addition, the decedent or member of the decedent's family must have been a material participant in the business. Finally, additional estate tax is imposed if, within a period of 10 years after the decedent's death and before the heir's death, the decedent's qualified heir fails to materially participate in the business. The deduction, combined with the applicable credit, cannot exceed $1.3 million.

The 1997 legislation also allows an elective reduction of up to 40 percent of the fair market value of a qualified real property interest given to a charity. To qualify, the property must meet certain ownership criteria and be within 25 miles of a metropolitan area, national park, or wilderness area, or within 10 miles of an Urban National Forest. Property subject to a conservation easement may only be used for conservation purposes, such as preservation of open spaces, outdoor recreation, protection of a natural habitat or ecosystem, or for public education. The total exclusion varies by year of death as shown in Figure P. This provision is effective for estates of decedents dying after December 31, 1997.

Three provisions of the 1997 law address gifts and gifts to charities. First, if the entire property transferred to a charity qualifies for the gift tax charitable deduction, the donor is not required to report the transfer on a gift tax return. Second, to qualify as a deduction for estate tax purposes, the charitable beneficiary of a charitable remainder annuity trust or unitrust must receive at least 10 percent of the net fair market value of the transferred property, as valued on the date the property was originally placed in trust. The 10-percent rule is applied to each transfer to charitable trust. The new rule applies to transfers made after July 28, 1997.

Finally, under the 1997 law, the gift tax statute of limitations runs only if the gift is accurately reported on a gift tax return [20]. This means that the statute of limitations will not run on inadequately disclosed transfers after the effective date. Under prior law, this provision was only explicitly extended to gifts valued under special valuation rules. However, the more significant effect of this change is to nullify Revenue Ruling 84-11, 1994-1 C.B. 201, which allowed the IRS to revalue properly reported gifts outside the statute of limitations for the purposes of determining the appropriate estate tax bracket in cases where the unified credit had been used to offset any tax liability generated by the gift. Under the new law, properly reported gifts that used the applicable exclusion amount to offset the tax liability cannot be revalued once the statute of limitations has tolled. The new law also mandates an administrative appeals process to resolve valuation disputes within the statute of limitations period for returns on which the applicable exclusion amount has been used to offset the tax liability. The law also enables the U.S. Tax Court to make final decisions in cases where disputes are not resolved through the appeals process. Provisions of the 1997 law become effective for gifts made in 1997.

- [7] It is likely that some of the decedents whose marital status was reported as single were actually widowed, since, for income tax purposes, the filing status of a widow is considered "single." The "separated or divorced" category also includes a small number of decedents for whom marital status was not reported.

- [8] Occupation was coded as “unknown” or “none” for 51.3 percent of female decedents and 2.8 percent of males. Industry was coded as “unknown” or “none” for 53.1 percent of female decedents and 6.3 percent of males. For a significant portion of these cases, occupation was reported either as “retired,” or, for female decedents, “homemaker.”
- [9] Assets discussed in this section are valued as of the decedent’s date of death (see Table 3). The column in Tables 2 and 3 that is labeled “unclassifiable mutual funds” was allocated proportionately to the stock and bond categories for the purposes of Figure H. Overall, these funds amounted to almost $1.8 billion, or 1.3 percent of aggregate gross estate.
- [10] For example, unpublished SOI data from Form 1040 for Tax Year 1994 show that only 33.4 percent of sole proprietorship businesses are operated by females. These businesses accounted for just 14.7 percent of the total business receipts reported for all U.S. sole proprietorships that year.
- [11] A defined-benefit pension plan is a type of pension plan in which the amount of pension benefit is determined by a formula generally based on the number of years an employee has worked, the age at which he or she retires, and his or her salary or wages. It is an employer-owned fund. A defined-contribution pension plan is a type of pension plan in which benefits depend upon the amount of money accumulated in an account. Individual workers have their own accounts that are funded by employee contributions. Employers often make contributions as well.
- [12] While it may seem counter intuitive for estates eligible for a marital deduction to pay tax, in some cases, paying some tax at the time of the first spouse’s death is a sound strategy for minimizing estate taxes. By carefully dividing the taxable estate between both spouses and by taking advantage of the structure of the marginal tax rates, a lower overall tax liability may often be achieved.
- [13] Charitable bequests discussed in the Charitable Bequests section deal with gross charitable deductions which totaled $10.1 billion. The deduction allowed for charitable bequests discussed in the Deductions section totaled $9.7 billion. Because the charitable deduction is not allowed for Federal estate, GST, and State death taxes paid out of property designated for a charity, the two charitable figures differ.

- [15] These numbers exclude additional estate tax revenue from adjustments, interest, and penalties assessed during examinations and audits of estate tax returns, as well as revenue from estates that elected to pay the tax liability in annual installments.
- [16] The estates reporting tax liability assessed at the 34-percent marginal tax rate were mainly for delinquent returns filed for decedents who died before 1987.
- [17] “Junior equity interest” may mean two things, depending on the way the business is organized. In most cases, it refers to common stock. In the case of a partnership, it refers to any interest in which the rights to income and capital are “junior” to the rights of all other classes of equity.
- [18] A qualified payment is a dividend payable on a periodic basis and at a fixed rate under cumulative preferred stock (or a comparable payment under a partnership agreement). Any other distribution right may be treated as a qualified payment to be paid in the amount and at the times specified on the election if elected. In addition, a dividend (or similar payment) may not be treated as a qualified payment if elected.
- [19] The Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997 lowered the special interest rate available to estates electing special use valuation from 4 percent to 2 percent. It also eliminated the estate and income tax deduction allowed for interest paid on the deferred estate tax.
- [20] The Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997 includes a number of provisions affecting the tax treatment of various transactions involving several types of trusts that are beyond the scope of this article.

² Net worth is calculated as "total gross estate" less "debts and mortgages." Negative values of net worth were constrained to zero.

³ Life insurance is shown net of any outstanding policy loans and associated interest and penalties.

 Data deleted or combined to prevent disclosure of individual taxpayer data.

NOTE: Detail may not add to totals because of rounding.
