Subject: RE: Follow-up Questions - 872-I and TMP

Only the parent need sign. [REDACTED]. Generally we only assess the consolidated liability against the parent in any event and the sub has no authority to sign for the parent. So as long as the parent is solvent, we should be O.K. with the existing consent.

[REDACTED]. We should just send a generic TMP notice and FPAA's directly to the indirect partners. Any consents should be secured directly from the ultimate indirect partners using Forms 872-i. [REDACTED]
