Dear :

I am responding to your inquiry to Senator Klobuchar. You asked about the Making Work Pay Credit and the amount of tax you owe for 2009. Senator Klobuchar wrote to us on your behalf and asked us to respond directly to you.

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 provides that taxpayers with earned income in 2009 and 2010 may be eligible for the Making Work Pay Credit (section 1001 of the Act). The credit is the lesser of 6.2 percent of earned income or $400 for individuals ($800 for married couples filing jointly). The credit begins phasing out for taxpayers with modified adjusted gross income over $75,000 per year for individuals ($150,000 for married couples filing jointly). Only individuals who include their social security account number on their tax return are eligible to receive the credit. Taxpayers claim the Making Work Pay credit on the Form 1040, U.S. Individual Income Tax Return. The Congress wanted taxpayers to receive the benefit of the Making Work Pay Credit as soon as possible, so they instructed us to revise the income tax withholding schedules for the remaining months of 2009. See H.R. Rep. 111-16.

In February 2009, we issued the revised withholding tables for wages paid in 2009 and told employers to begin using them as soon as possible but no later than April 1, 2009. You can find information about these tables in News Release 2009-13 (enclosed). In May 2009, we released the enclosed Publication 4766, Making Work Pay Credit and Form W-4 Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate, a one page flyer explaining that certain individuals (including married couples) might need to adjust their withholding before the 2009 tax return filing season. We have since provided new tables for wages paid in 2010. These tables are available in Publication 15, (Circular E), Employer's Tax Guide, for 2010 which is available at www.irs.gov.

Eligible workers received the benefit of the reduced withholding to reflect the credit without any action on their part. This means that workers do not need to fill out a new Form W-4, Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate. However, some people may find that the changes built into the withholding tables result in less tax withheld than they prefer.

For taxpayers not eligible for the Making Work Pay credit, the withholding changes may mean a smaller refund for 2009, or for those who normally receive small refunds, a balance due. A few taxpayers, including those who usually receive very small refunds, could incur a penalty if the underpayment is more than we can attribute to the change in the withholding tables. Individuals may owe an underwithholding penalty for 2009 if their unpaid tax liability is $1,000 or more and if their total withholding and timely estimated payments did not equal at least the smaller of 90 percent of their 2009 tax or 100 percent of their 2008 tax (assuming the 2008 tax covers a 12 month period).

However, if an individual has an underpayment, we will waive all or part of the penalty if we determine that the adjustments we made to the withholding tables in spring 2009 caused the underpayment. To request a waiver of the penalty, taxpayers must follow the Instructions for Form 2210, Underpayment of Estimated Tax by Individuals, Estates, and Trusts (enclosed).

The IRS is offering assistance to taxpayers who are facing financial difficulties and struggling to meet their tax obligations. You may be able to enter into a payment plan or may be eligible for an offer in compromise for your 2009 tax. You can find additional information at www.irs.gov or by calling 1-800-829-1040.

Because the Making Work Pay Credit also applies to 2010, you may want to consult the IRS withholding calculator on www.irs.gov to see if your withholding will cover your expected tax liability for 2010. The enclosed Publication 919, How Do I Adjust My Tax Withholding? provides additional guidance.

I hope this information is helpful. If you need further information, please contact at . In addition, you can find information about the Making Work Pay Credit and the changes in withholding at www.irs.gov.

Sincerely,

Janine Cook
