If we don't hear from you

You may lose your tax-exempt status

Our records show that you must file Form 990, 990-EZ, or 990-N because we recognize you are tax exempt or you claim tax-exempt status (for example, you claimed you are a non-profit organization when you submitted your EIN application).

If you fail to meet your annual filing requirements for three consecutive years, you will lose your tax-exempt status.

What you need to know

The filing requirements for a tax-exempt organization generally start with the tax year in which it was legally formed. Your filing requirement begins in the tax year in which you applied for your EIN March 31, 2018.

If you don't think you are required to file for this tax year If your organization was not legally formed until after the tax year on this notice, mark the appropriate box on the Response form and fill in the organization's formation date.

If we have the wrong formation tax year for calculating the 3-year revocation period

If your organization legally formed after the tax year it obtained its EIN, but during or prior to the tax year on this notice, provide the correct formation date to us on the Response form at the end of this notice.

Our records still show that a return is due for the tax year on this notice. You should complete any other parts of the Response form that apply to the status of your organization's return.

If you didn't intend to claim tax-exempt status

If you claimed tax-exempt status when you applied for your organization's EIN (by indicating you are a non-profit organization) and you didn't intend to do so, please check "Other reasons for not filing" on the Response form and explain.

If you lose your tax-exempt status

To reapply for tax-exempt status, file the appropriate application, such as a Form 1023 series or Form 1024, and pay the user fee. See Publication 557, Tax-Exempt Status for Your Organization, or go to www.irs.gov/charities for more information.

If you were previously eligible to receive tax-deductible contributions and you lose your tax-exempt status, we'll remove your organization from our list of organizations eligible to receive tax-deductible charitable contributions.
