There is a problem with your name and/or taxpayer identification number (TIN) on your 2015 estimate payments

Please provide information to resolve this issue

Your 2015 estimated payments show a different name and/or social security number (SSN) from the information provided by the Social Security Administration (SSA).

This can happen if you used your spouse's last name, changed your name, or if there was a simple typographical error.

If you recently updated your name with SSA, or obtained your SSN and are filing a federal tax return for the first time, it may take several weeks to correct this issue.

In the future, be sure to notify the SSA of any name changes so your social security payments are applied correctly.

Otherwise, no action is required at this time.
